TWO PUERTO RICAN NATIONALISTS FAIL IN ATTEMPT TO KILL TRUMAN

Reds Trap American Regiment

Other Allied Units Forced To Withdraw

Tanks Lead Chinese N. Korean Assault

SEOUL, Thursday, Nov. 2, (AP) — Rocket-firing Chinese and North Korean troops today pressed attacks which have encircled an American regiment and forced other units to retreat in northwestern Korea.

Utilizing a new weapon—82 millimeter rockets—the revitalized Reds struck on the left flank of an American armored column which pushed up the west coast to within 15 air miles of the Manchurian border. This was a four-mile advance since yesterday.

A U. S. First Army Corps spokesman called the situation serious. The attacks put U. S. First Cavalry elements and four South Korean divisions—the First, Sixth, Seventh and Eighth—on the defensive. One thousand Reds on horseback were in the attacking forces.

For the first time, a U. S. First Corps spokesman admitted that "Chinese Troops" were attacking in the northwest.

Corps officers cautiously added hey were "not sure whether Chinese troops form the bulk of enemy forces which have thrown the United Nations off balance for the moment."

High American officers previously had acknowledged a Chinese Red regiment was in action in northeastern Korea. South Korean officers have insisted at least two Chinese Red divisions were in battle there.

The surrounded American regiment, a unit of the U. S. First Cavalry Division, was in the Unsan area on the east flank of a U. S. armored spearhead which drove west 13 miles yesterday to within 19 air miles of the Manchurian border.

Aid Is Moved Up

Other First Cavalry elements moved up to the aid of the encircled regiment.

Division headquarters said the situation was "too confused" to say exactly how far the American and South Korean units had been forced to retreat.

The enemy blows rained down on U. S. First Cavalry and South Korean forces in the Unsan area, about 30 miles east of one of two 24th Infantry Division columns pounding for the border.

So close was the fighting that the First Cavalry Division lost several mortars, which the Reds turned on the Americans. The spokesman said the South Koreans lost heavily in men and equipment.

The blow followed four days of determined attacks by Communist forces, including considerable numbers of the Chinese.

The U. S. 24th Division's spearhead nearest the border moved ahead as Russian-made jet fighter planes made their debut in support of Red forces. Six jet planes fought inconclusively with slower, propeller-driven Mustangs, then broke off the engagement.

Spotty Resistance

East of Unsan on the curving, 250-mile front, North Korean and Chinese Reds put up spotty resistance. While they struck fiercely in some places, they vanished at other points. They dropped out of sight for no apparent reason before South Koreans on the north central front. And they attacked the U. S.

Two Puerto Ricans Shot Down In Blair House Attack

Two Puerto Rican revolutionists who attempted to storm Blair House, President Truman's residence, yesterday were shot down in a gun battle with White House guards before they could carry out their plot to murder the sleeping President. ## One Slain And Other Wounded By Alert Guards As Gun Battle Rages In Front Of Blair House

Secret Service Man Is Fatally Shot, 2 Others Critically Hurt

By ARTHUR EDSON

WASHINGTON, Nov. 1 (AP)—Two fiery Puerto Rican revolutionists shot their way to President Truman's doorstep today but were mowed down in a gun battle with White House guards before the could carry out their plot to murder the sleeping President.

One of the gunmen was killed, the other seriously wounded.

Tonight, a Secret Service man died of bullet wounds suffered in the roaring gun fight in front of Blair House, the President's temporary home across the street from the White House. Two other guards were hurt, one seriously.

It was the first conspiracy—by two or more persons—to kill a president of the United States since John Wilkes Booth shot Abraham Lincoln in a plot to wipe out the whole leadership of the government.

Mr. Truman was taking a nap at the time the assassins stormed his home. The shots awakened him but he was unhurt.

Those killed were:

Griselio Torresola, from New York, one of the gunmen.

Pvt. Leslie Coffelt, 40, of the Secret Service.

He was shot in the chest, stomach and legs in his valiant—and successful—defense of the President.

Truman Taking Nap

The other two guards were criticaly injured, as was the remaining gunmen.

The gun battle took place on the very doorstep of the Blair House. One gunmen went down stretched out across the bottom of the mansion's steps. The other fell amid shrubbery nearby.

Thus Mr. Truman escaped the fate of Presidents Lincoln, Garfield and McKinley, all of whom died of assassins' bullets.

Mr. Truman was taking a nap in his underwear, getting a rest before time to go to Arlington Cemetery to help dedicate a monument to the late Sir John Dill, the British wartime chief of staff.

The President once peered out of the window, to see what the shooting was all about. He was quickly waved back by frantic guards.

Thirty minutes later he attended the Arlington ceremonies as scheduled. He made an address pleading for understanding among peoples.

The dead man was identified by the Secret Service as Griselio Torresola, shot through the head from ear to ear. He was described as a young man from New York. In his pocket were two letters from Pedro Albizu Campos, leader of Puerto Rico's violently anti-United States party.

Injured Assassin May Live

The injured man was Oscar Collazzo, 37, of the Bronx, New York. He was shot in the chest, and may live.

In New York, Mrs. Collazzo said her husband belonged to the nationalist party whose revolution in Puerto Rico was put down earlier this week with a loss of more than 30 lives.

Puerto Rico is a possession of the United States, but elects its own local officers and governor.

The nationalist party has said it started the revolution in an attempt to get independence. Gov. Luiz Munoz Marin has described the rebels as members of "a conspiracy against democracy helped by the Communists."

Mrs. Collazzo said of herself and husband:

"We voted for Roosevelt and Tru-

GBS, Irish Wit, Dies At Age 94

AYOT ST. LAWRENCE, England, Thursday, Nov. 2 (AP) — George Bernard Shaw (above) died this morning. He was 94.

The end came in his cottage on the outskirts of this tiny village of 110 population, where he had lain unconscious for a day.

The Irish wit came home a month ago to die, as his friends knew, from the nearby Luton hospital. He had spent 24 days there after suffering a broken left thigh in his garden where he was trimming a fruit tree on Sept. 10.

Stassen To Give Republican Reply To Truman Talk

[By The Associated Press]

Republicans trained their big guns on President Truman's foreign policy—in the Far East especially—yesterday as the President made ready to fire his own campaign barrage next Saturday night.

The GOP National Committee picked Harold E. Stassen, sharp critic of the Truman policies in China and elsewhere in the Far East, to go on the air immediately after the President's broadcast and give the Republican answer.

GOP Chief Hits Demos

And GOP National Chairman Guy George Gabrielson declared at Charleston, W. Va., that "the Democrat administration must share with Communist imperialism the responsibility for the 30,000 known American casualties—so far—in Korea."

Gabrielson's speech followed a Tuesday night broadcast in which Democratic National Chairman William M. Boyle, Jr., said Mr. Truman's "quick and bold statesmanship has opened a new chapter in history for this country and for mankind."

Vice President Barkley is expected to enlarge on this theme in a Mutual network broadcast from Chicago at 10:30 p. m. (EST) tomorrow (Friday) night.

Agree On One Point

The rival party leaders agreed on only one point—that everybody should vote in next Tuesday's election of a new congress and of 32 state governors.

President Truman and his aides were reported well along on the five-network radio and television speech which the Chief Executive is to deliver at 10 p. m. (EST) Saturday. White House sources indicated the St. Louis speech, an avowed campaign talk, would stress foreign affairs.

Tank "Joyriding" Charge Faces Duo

ASHLAND, Wis., Nov. 1 (AP)—Two young men were accused today of alarming the countryside last Friday by taking a joyride in the National Guard unit's Sherman tank.

Federal warrants charged Theodore Lolich and John Meyers, both 23, with taking the 57-ton tank "with intent to steal" and damaging it to the extent of $50.

Super Carrier Drive Launched

WASHINGTON, Nov. 1 (AP) — A new drive started in Congress today for construction of a super aircraft carrier explicitly designed to mother planes capable of delivering the atomic bomb.

Rep. Vinson (D-Ga) said he will introduce a bill in the short session of Congress starting this month to authorize the building of such a ship, long a fond dream of the Navy.

What he has in mind is a 60,000-ton craft, either of flush deck design or else with small superstructure that would present a minimum of interference for landing and takeoff operations of good-sized bombers. The Navy's biggest carriers now are 45,000-tonners. Even from them fliers have contrived to launch A-bomb size aircraft; recently such a plane negotiated a landing on a 45,000-ton carrier.

Dog Shoots Man

Webb, 25, climbed into a car, the dog jumped into the back seat to welcome him and landed on a shotgun. The gun went off, wounding Webb in the neck. Hospital officials said his condition was serious.

Rebel Leader Under Police Siege In Home

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico, Nov. 1 (AP)—Pedro Albizu Campos, leader of the rebel nationalist party, has been under police siege in his home here for the past two days. Two letters from Campos were found on the body of one of the nationalist revolutionaries who tried today to assassinate President Truman.

Last night a nationalist was shot to death trying to break through the police guard and enter the home of Albizu, a Harvard-educated revolutionary who has served a six-year term in the federal penitentiary at Atlanta, Ga., for insurrectionary activity.

Over 30 Killed

The nationalists set off a revolt here Monday that claimed more than 30 lives in a two-day period. It was marked by an assassination attempt on Gov. Luis Munoz Marin similar to that made on President Truman. The revolt was smashed by Puerto Rican police and national guardsmen. Rounded up were 118 nationalist party members. The outbreak was the most serious since the United States acquired Puerto Rico as a result of the Spanish-American War in 1898.

Governor Says Reds Aid Revolt

Puerto Rico lies in the Caribbean about 1,000 miles southeast of the southern tip of Florida. It has an area of 3,435 square miles, somewhat smaller than Connecticut, and a population of 2,149,000.

Gov. Marin charged that the latest revolt was a "conspiracy against democracy helped by the Communists." He says it is "fanatical" in nature and has no real popular support.

The nationalist party has had a long record of violence. Leader Albizu, has figured in rioting and disturbances that date back to 1931.

U.N. Extends Lie's Term Despite Russian Warnings

Secretary Given 3 More Years In Office

NEW YORK, Nov. 1 (AP)—The U. N. Assembly today gave Secretary-General Trygve Lie three more years in office and a big vote of confidence. It overrode repeated Soviet warnings that Moscow will ignore Lie and refuse to deal with him.

The final vote on extending Lie's term to Feb. 2, 1954, was 46 to 5 with seven abstentions. The Russian bloc alone voted against him. The U. N. listed abstentions as Australia, Nationalist China, Egypt, Iraq, Saudi Arabia, Syria and Yemen. Haiti was absent and the 60th and newest member, Indonesia, did not vote.

Lie deliberately stayed away from the Assembly while it discussed him. He returned this afternoon, accepted the extension, and pledged himself to work for peace through universal collective security against armed aggression.

Lie also called for persistent efforts to bring about a reconciliation of the conflicting interests that divide the world and pledged himself to work hard for that aim. Finally, he said the U. N. must develop a bold and statesmanlike program to raise the standard of living in the world.

Russia Foreign Minister Andrei Y. Vishinsky fought to the last to delay action. He accused Warren R. Austin, U. S. delegate, of trying to rush the issue through the Assembly. He appeared to the delegates to approve a Soviet resolution sending the question back to the Security Council for further talks.

The Russian resolution was rejected. Only nine countries voted for it, 37 against and 11 abstained.

France To Stand Firm, Moch Says

WASHINGTON, Nov. 1 (AP) — French Defense Minister Jules Moch predicted tonight that France never will give up its opposition to the creation of German divisions for the North Atlantic defense force.

He gave his opinion at a news conference only a few hours after Secretary of State Acheson had predicted, also at a session with reporters, that the western democracies shortly will work out an arrangement to include German units in the force.

Just how far apart the French and American cabinet members were was not immediately certain since Acheson did not say what size German units he had in mind. But the disagreement over use of German fighting power was sharp enough to have been the cause of a deadlock on creation of the composite force.

Moch asserted that "clandestine links" would be certain to spring up between any German divisions, thus creating the menace of a new German war machine—something which France traditionally dreads.

The defense minister, who represented France as the 12-nation North Atlantic talks adjourned last night without final agreement, said German units should be no larger than battalions. That would be 800 to 1,200 men.

Communists "Shocked"

NEW YORK, Nov. 1 (AP)—The Communist Party today expressed "profound shock" at the apparent attempt on President Truman's life and suggested a parallel with the Reichstag fire.

Germany's Reichstag fire, instigated by the Nazis, was blamed on the Communists to arouse anti-Communist feeling.

Blair House Gun Battle Described By Eyewitness

Thought That First Shot Was Backfire

(Editor's Note: Miss Mae E. Hayes of Arlington, Va., an official of the Association of American Railroads, was an eyewitness to today's shooting at the Blair House. Here is her story as told to the Associated Press.)

By MAE E. HAYES

WASHINGTON, Nov. 1 (AP) — I saw three, maybe four men shot this afternoon in front of Blair House, where President Truman lives.

I was coming up 17th Street in a taxi. We had just passed around the back of the White House and were stopped at the traffic light at 17th and Pennsylvania Avenue.

Suddenly I heard what I thought was a backfire, just before the light turned green.

"That's no backfire, lady," my driver said. "It ain't movies either. That's shooting for real."

The first shot seemed to come from right close to Blair House. It was followed by at least two more, right away.

The driver told me and a fellow

China Reds Putting Up Only Token Resistance In Korea

TOKYO, Nov. 1 (AP) — Top U. S. commanders say the Chinese Communists so far have put up only token resistance in Korea.

They expect the next few days to be decisive. Those days will decide whether the war is almost over or whether it will drag on.

The test is whether the Chinese Communists intend to throw into battle a substantial number of their best troops.

The appearance of the full Red air force also would change the course of the campaign.

But the officers are convinced the Chinese troops so far identified in action and the appearance of Red aircraft do not signalize the kind of reinforcement necessary.

They see the opposition now meeting United Nations troops as a last-minute gesture, not the start of a long defensive campaign.

These are the predominant opinions in Tokyo and among leading commanders in Seoul, from where I have just returned.

Officers both in Korea and Tokyo said the Chinese Communists so far identified in action represent only small, unimportant units.

They are inclined to think the Peiping regime is using them so they can tell the North Koreans they were not abandoned by their "allies."

Mahoney, Named To Democratic Committee, Endorses Lane

BALTIMORE, Nov. 1 (AP)—George P. Mahoney took up his new allegiance to Gov. Lane today with a statement that the Governor has now adopted the Mahoney platform and principles and should be re-elected in order to carry them out.

Mahoney beat Lane in the popular vote in the Democratic primary in September but Lane got the nomination with more unit votes.

The Mahoney statement asking for Lane's re-election came as the vanquished candidate and his top campaign aides took over the suite of rooms at the Lane headquarters.

"We know by experience," Mahoney said, "that it is impossible to obtain effective and progressive legislation with a Republican governor and a Democratic General Assembly

"I am offering my services and whatever ability I may possess to Gov. Lane.

"I have a solemn obligation to the 192,000 citizens who voted for me in the primary. This responsibility precludes any personal ambitions or feelings.

"I am intensely interested in the welfare of the mentally ill. I advocated completion of the roads and school building program at reasonable cost. (The Governor has promised to give the people of Maryland the tax relief they so sorely needed."

Mahoney On Demo Committee

WASHINGTON, Nov. 1 (AP)—George P. Mahoney of Baltimore tonight was accepted as a member of the Democratic National Committee by the party's national chairman, William M. Boyle, Jr.

This was revealed i a telegram made public by the Democratic National Committee which said that Robert B. Ennis, chairman of the state central committee of Maryland, had informed Boyle of the appointment of Mahoney to succeed Gov. William Preston Lane Jr.

The telegram signed by Boyle and addressed to Mahoney at Owings Mill, Md., said:

"The Democratic National Committee has received the official notification of Robert B. Ennis, chairman of the State Central Committee of Maryland, that pursuant to authority granted him by resolution passed by the Democratic state convention of 1948 he has appointed you Democratic national committeeman from the State of Maryland to replace Gov. William Preston Lane, Jr., whose resignation because of the press of other responsibilities we were forced to accept with regret several days ago.

"While you cannot be formally seated in your new position until the next meeting of the Democratic National Committee I am glad to welcome you as a new member of the Democratic National Committee and to assure you that we will work with you as of today in full cooperation as national committeeman from Maryland. x x x"

Lindstrom Divorces Ingrid, Says He Has No Bitterness

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 1 (AP)—Dr. Peter Lindstrom first learned of Ingrid Bergman's pregnancy by another man from a newspaper story, he testified in obtaining a divorce today. But the deceived husband added:

"I have no bitterness toward her. I think she has many good qualities as well as being beautiful and very fine actress."

The Swedish-born neuro surgeon was less charitable, however, to Italian Director Roberto Rossellini who married the actress after she obtained a Mexican divorce. He has admitted fathering the child, born last Feb. 2. Dr. Lindstrom never once referred to Rossellini by name—only "this Italian director."

Dr. Lindstrom, charging Miss Bergman with cruelty and desertion after 13 years of marriage, said that he went to Italy to beg Ingrid to come back after reading reports she "had taken up a relationship other than professional."

"We had conference (in May, 1949)," testified Dr. Lindstrom. "She said she had changed her mind and would return. To use her own words, she said: 'This ((affair) has to stop.' xxx

"Did you know at that time she was pregnant?" asked his attorney, Isaac Pacht.

"No, I did not. I first learned of it in the newspapers. xxx"

Injured Assassin May Live

The injured man was Oscar Collazzo, 37, of the Bronx, New York. He was shot in the chest, and may live.

In New York, Mrs. Collazzo said her husband belonged to the nationalist party whose revolution in Puerto Rico was put down earlier this week with a loss of more than 30 lives.

Puerto Rico is a possession of the United States, but elects its own local officers and governor.

The nationalist party has said it started the revolution in an attempt to get independence. Gov. Luiz Munoz Marin has described the rebels as members of "a conspiracy against democracy helped by the Communists."

Mrs. Collazzo said of herself and husband:

"We voted for Roosevelt and Tru-

AYOT ST. LAWRENCE, England, Thursday, Nov. 2 (AP) — George Bernard Shaw (above) died this morning. He was 94.

The end came in his cottage on the outskirts of this tiny village of 110 population, where he had lain unconscious for a day.

The Irish wit came home a month ago to die, as his friends knew, from the nearby Luton hospital. He had spent 24 days there after suffering a broken left thigh in his garden where he was trimming a fruit tree on Sept. 10.

Blair House Gun Battle Described By Eyewitness

Thought That First Shot Was Backfire

(Editor's Note: Miss Mae E. Hayes of Arlington, Va., an official of the Association of American Railroads, was an eyewitness to today's shooting at the Blair House. Here is her story as told to the Associated Press.)

By MAE E. HAYES

WASHINGTON, Nov. 1 (AP) — I saw three, maybe four men shot this afternoon in front of Blair House, where President Truman lives.

I was coming up 17th Street in a taxi. We had just passed around the back of the White House and were stopped at the traffic light at 17th and Pennsylvania Avenue.

Suddenly I heard what I thought was a backfire, just before the light turned green.

"That's no backfire, lady," my driver said. "It ain't movies either. That's shooting for real."

The first shot seemed to come from right close to Blair House. It was followed by at least two more, right away.

China Reds Putting Up Only Token Resistance In Korea

TOKYO, Nov. 1 (AP) — Top U. S. commanders say the Chinese Communists so far have put up only token resistance in Korea.

They expect the next few days to be decisive. Those days will decide whether the war is almost over or whether it will drag on.

The test is whether the Chinese Communists intend to throw into battle a substantial number of their best troops.

The appearance of the full Red air force also would change the course of the campaign.

But the officers are convinced the Chinese troops so far identified in action and the appearance of Red aircraft do not signalize the kind of reinforcement necessary.

They see the opposition now meeting United Nations troops as a last-minute gesture, not the start of a long defensive campaign.

These are the predominant opinions in Tokyo and among leading commanders in Seoul, from where I have just returned.

Officers both in Korea and Tokyo said the Chinese Communists so far identified in action represent only small, unimportant units.

They are inclined to think the Peiping regime is using them so they can tell the North Koreans they were not abandoned by their "allies."

Mahoney, Named To Democratic Committee, Endorses Lane

BALTIMORE, Nov. 1 (AP)—George P. Mahoney took up his new allegiance to Gov. Lane today with a statement that the Governor has now adopted the Mahoney platform and principles and should be re-elected in order to carry them out.

Mahoney beat Lane in the popular vote in the Democratic primary in September but Lane got the nomination with more unit votes.

The Mahoney statement asking for Lane's re-election came as the vanquished candidate and his top campaign aides took over the suite of rooms at the Lane headquarters.

"We know by experience," Mahoney said, "that it is impossible to obtain effective and progressive legislation with a Republican governor and a Democratic General Assembly.

"I am offering my services and whatever ability I may possess to Gov. Lane.

"I have a solemn obligation to the 192,000 citizens who voted for me in the primary. This responsibility precludes any personal ambitions or feelings.

"I am intensely interested in the welfare of the mentally ill. I advocated completion of the roads and school building program at reasonable cost. (The Governor has promised to give the people of Maryland the tax relief they so sorely needed."

Mahoney On Demo Committee

WASHINGTON, Nov. 1 (AP) — George P. Mahoney of Baltimore tonight was accepted as a member of the Democratic National Committee by the party's national chairman, William M. Boyle, Jr.

This was revealed in a telegram made public by the Democratic National Committee which said that Robert B. Ennis, chairman of the state central committee of Maryland, had informed Boyle of the appointment of Mahoney to succeed Gov. William Preston Lane Jr.

The telegram signed by Boyle and addressed to Mahoney at Owings Mill, Md., said:

"The Democratic National Committee has received the official notification of Robert B. Ennis, chairman of the State Central Committee of Maryland, that pursuant to authority granted him by resolution passed by the Democratic state convention of 1948 he has appointed you Democratic national committeeman from the State of Maryland to replace Gov. William Preston Lane, Jr., whose resignation because of the press of other responsibilities we were forced to accept with regret several days ago.

"While you cannot be formally seated in your new position until the next meeting of the Democratic National Committee I am glad to welcome you as a new member of the Democratic National Committee and to assure you that we will work with you as of today in full cooperation as national committeeman from Maryland. x x x"

Lindstrom Divorces Ingrid, Says He Has No Bitterness

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 1 (AP)—Dr. Peter Lindstrom first learned of Ingrid Bergman's pregnancy by another man from a newspaper story, he testified in obtaining a divorce today. But the deceived husband added:

"I have no bitterness toward her. I think she has many good qualities as well as being beautiful and very fine actress."

The Swedish-born neuro surgeon was less charitable, however, to Italian Director Roberto Rossellini who married the actress after she obtained a Mexican divorce. He has admitted fathering the child, born last Feb. 2. Dr. Lindstrom never once referred to Rossellini by name—only "this Italian director."

Dr. Lindstrom, charging Miss Bergman with cruelty and desertion after 13 years of marriage, said that he went to Italy to beg Ingrid to come back after reading reports she "had taken up a relationship other than professional."

"We had conference (in May, 1949)," testified Dr. Lindstrom. "She said she had changed her mind and would return. To use her own words, she said: 'This (affair) has to stop.' xxx

"Did you know at that time she was pregnant?" asked his attorney, Isaac Pacht.

"No, I did not. I first learned of it in the newspapers. xxx"

Ancient Roman Catholic Belief Becomes Creed

VATICAN CITY, Nov. 1 (AP)—The ancient Roman Catholic belief that the Virgin Mary was taken into heaven in body as well as in spirit became an article of the church's creed by proclamation of Pope Pius XII in a spectacular ceremony today.

A multitude regarded here as the greatest assembly of its kind since the start of Christendom prayed and cheered under the eyes of the Pope in St. Peter's Square. Vatican sources estimated the crowd numbered more than 500,000.

As night came on around the world, Catholics lit up their churches and homes in rejoicing. This All Saints Day—a day in which all saints are venerated—had witnessed the crowning event of the Catholic 1950 Holy Year Jubilee. It will go down in history as the Jubilee of the Assumption.

From the moment of the proclamation of the dogma, or doctrine, of the Assumption of Mary, the mother of Jesus Christ, all the 425,000,000 communicants of the church were required to accept the belief or risk exposure to the sin of heresy.

White House No Longer Picketed

WASHINGTON, Nov. 1 (AP)—Mrs. Eola Wright, who has been picketing the White House since Sept. 14, gave up today after the shooting across the street at the Blair House.

Mrs. Wright claims her civil rights have been taken from her unfairly, and the placard she carried said she wants them back. She lives in Washington.

man because they promised us independence and we did not get it. Roosevelt is dead so we can't blame him. We are both nationalists."

She said her husband polished pocketbook frames for a living and earned $71 a week.

Connection Not Clear

The connection between Torresola and Collazzo was not immediately made clear. But in one of the letters Campos, the revolutionary leader, told Torresola:

"If for any reason it should be necessary for you to assume the leadership of the movement in the United States, you will do so without hesitation of any kind."

And Collazzo told Secret Service agents:

"We came here for the express purpose of shooting the President."

Only a few hours before the attempted assassination, an unidentified man hurled two blazing gasoline bottles into a crowd at the Puerto Rican government labor office in New York.

The wounded policemen were:

Pvt. Don T. Birdzell, 41. Both knees shattered by shots, but he will recover.

Pvt. Joseph H. Downs, 44, a plain clothes officer. Shot in chest and stomach. His condition is "critical, very serious."

At 2:15 p. m. (EST), all was calm on this warm, lovely fall day. Then pandemonium.

U. E. Baugham, chief of the Secret Service, said that Collazzo strolled by the sentry box at one side of the Blair House without attracting notice.

He went along the Pennsylvania Avenue sidewalk until he was within 10 feet of the entrance.

Birdzell was there, but facing the other way. He heard a click, and turned.

Collazzo said nothing, but opened fire.

Birdzell rushed into the street, even though hit. He said he was trying to draw the fire away from the Blair House.

By this time Officer Floyd Boring, standing outside the sentry box, and Officer Joseph O. Davidson, who was inside, opened fire.

One of them dropped him. Neither knows which one.

He fell at the foot of the steps. One report said he actually had gone up a few steps before the bullets mowed him down.

Torresola was operating to the west of the Blair House.

What happened here is confused. Both the men who shot him are in critical condition, and he is dead.

He died against a clump of shrubbery, about 30 feet from his companion.

Both men were well dressed. Each wore what appeared to be identical pinstripe suits. Oddly, each fell and lay with his hat on.

About 20 shots were fired.

At least four of these ripped into the Blair House. One window, almost at street level, was shattered. One shot lodged in a door.

Court Of Appeals Explains Anti-Subversive Act Ruling

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Nov. 1 (AP)—The Court of Appeals today explained why it upheld loyalty pledges for state-office candidates and the Progressive Party immediately renewed its protest to the Supreme Court.

It was an opinion in which three of the six appellate judges indicated broad approval of the state's entire anti-subversive law.

Earlier this month the Court of Appeals in a split decision ruled Shub off the ballots in next week's general election unless he signed the oath.

The Supreme Court refused an immediate hearing on Shub's appeal for want of an opinion telling how the majority reached its conclusion.

The opinion, along with a dissent, was filed today.

Chief Judge Ogle Marbury wrote the majority opinion which settled only the power of Maryland's legislature to order a candidate to swear he is not "a subversive person." But he alluded briefly to the Progressives' attack on the entire law.

Federal courts already have answered most of their charges in the conviction of 11 top communists for conspiracy and in two other cases, Marbury commented. Then he added:

"We are unable to find that the statute before us, on its face, violates any of the fundamental rights of appellants, or that it is susceptible of an interpretation which makes it necessary for the courts to strike it down.

"On the contrary, there is a presumption in favor of its validity, and there has been presented to us no argument which impairs or rebuts that presumption."

Rape Charge Against Errol Flynn Probed

MONACO, Nov. 1 (AP) — A local judge has opened an investigation of a charge of rape against Movie Actor Errol Flynn, it was disclosed today.

The complaint was filed by the parents of a 19-yeaf-old girl whose name was given only as Danielle D—. The compiaint said the attack occurred in August, 1947, when she was not yet 16.

The judge was told this story:

Flynn's yacht was anchored in the Monaco harbor. Danielle, bathing nearby, was invited aboard for a drink. The attack was alleged to have followed.

passenger to duck down. We squatted in the back of the cab. The shots were coming from very close. They seemed to be going off almost next to my ear.

I remember noticing that the few pedestrians around quickly scattered for cover. I was told to get out of the taxi and take shelter behind a tree in front of the west side of the old State Department building, right on the corner.

I ducked over there behind two other cars but when I arrived the shooting was about over. There were just one or two more desultory shots.

I looked across Pennsylvania Avenue and saw at least three men shot and lying on the ground. I think I saw a fourth.

The policeman was lying in the middle of the avenue and as I watched he moved his head slightly.

Eight Or Ten Shots

The third man, also a civilian, was lying on the pavement in front of Blair House. I have only an unclear recollection of the fourth man.

I just could not believe it. The whole thing happened almost in the time it took the light to change from red to green.

There was hardly any traffic at all at the corner, but at the first shot policemen seemed to come from all over and converge on President Truman's home.

When the shooting stopped — I would say there had been at least eight or ten separate shots or bursts of shots — I crossed Pennsylvania Avenue and walked back to my office two blocks away in a complete daze.

Looking back now, it was just like a dream, grotesque and fantastic.

If it was an attempt to kill President Truman, I certainly am glad those cops were able to take care of it.

"WE'LL HAVE YOU OUT BY LUNCHTIME"—Rescue workers, shown shoveling away dirt which trapped three laborers neck deep in the collapse of a sewer trench wall at Philadelphia yesterday morning, encouraged the men with word they would be freed by lunchtime. Before noon, 2½ hours after the cave-in, the last man was freed. Trapped men (top center, wearing safety belts) still covered waist deep, got oxygen through mask on hose (between heads). Two were removed unhurt; third (hidden by earth and shoring timbers at top left) received leg injuries.

Brewster Urges Probe Of Revolt

WASHINGTON, Nov. 1 (AP)—Sen. Brewster (R-Maine) today demanded an investigation by Congress of the nationalist uprising in Puerto Rico and its reported relationship to the assassination attempt against President Truman.

"It is strange," Brewster told a reporter, "that this situation should have developed apparently without warning.

"Congress should be advised why such intelligence agencies as the FBI, the Secret Service and others did not apparently have a clue as to what was brewing."

Brewster said he is curious, too, about a resolution passed yesterday by Cuba's legislature which he said indicated sympathy for the nationalist rebellion in which many were killed this week.

Coincident with Brewster's remarks the Interior Department, which is responsible for federal activities in Puerto Rico, made it plain that it plans to continue leaving insular affairs to the Puerto Rican government.

Secretary of Interior Chapman said yesterday that he was sure the administration of Gov. Louis Munoz Marin was capable of handling the situation.

A department spokesman reiterated tonight that Chapman has the utmost confidence in the governor's administration and believes that the violence in the island has been ended.

New Bakery Manager Named

Alfred E. Howe has been appointed manager of the Cumberland plant of the Schmidt Baking Company, it was announced yesterday by Carl P. Schmidt, Baltimore, president of the company.

Mr. Howe succeeds Kenton B. Farrell who has been promoted to the capacity as manager of the company's plant in Baltimore. He will assume his new duties about December 1.

Mr. Howe, a graduate of Allegany High and Catherman's Business School, entered the employ of the Schmidt Company in 1935 in a clerical position and became office manager in 1938. He was in the Army five years during World War II. He was drafted in 1941, earned a commission in 1942, and reverted to inactive status in the rank of captain. He is a member of the Army Reserve unit here.

The new manager is a former resident of Cumberland and a past exalted ruler of Cumberland Lodge No. 63, B.P.O. Elks, but has been residing at 118 Centre Street, Frostburg, in recent years. He is married to the former Mary McGraw, of Frostburg, and they have two children.

Moberly To Assume Duties November 15

The new superintendent of Memorial Hospital, John A. Moberly, 36, of Clearfield, Pa., will arrive here November 15 to assume his duties, William A. Gunter, president of the institution's Board of Governors, has announced.

Gunter said that Moberly has purchased a home at 16 North Allegany Street, here. He is married and has an eight-year-old son.

Moberly will replace Benjamin W. Wright, who resigned last month to accept the post of superintendent at Wilmington, Del., Hospital. He has been head of Clearfield Hospital for the past five years.

Of Mines And Men

The Navy candidly admits it hasn't been able to cope with the problem of underwater mines on the east coast of Korea. A naval officer, Capt. R. T. Spofford, points up some of the practical difficulties of sweeping up the mines off Wonsan, the port and naval base up in the narrow waist of the Korean peninsula. The minefield was 30 miles in length, with its width varying according to the depth of the water.

The mines were of two varieties, contact (moored) and "influence." The latter is a particularly nasty variety, as Navy men who operated in European waters will tell you. The magnetic force of a steel hull may detonate them, or the change in water pressure caused by a ship's passage overhead may set them off.

Captain Spofford says these are all brand new types of mines and says experts in mine warfare (he left no doubt that he didn't refer to North Korean experts) had been on the job. To date the Navy has had five minesweepers sunk and has announced that nearly two score men are lost and missing.

Still the cleanup continues under the worst possible conditions. Those in charge of sweeping this vast danger area are short of ships, trained crews and the right equipment for the job. The only blue sky to be seen is that an unhurried examination may now be made of mining techniques that presumably might be met along Russian controlled coastlines.

Admiral Allen E. Smith, who is in overall charge of escort and sweeping operations in Far Eastern waters, thinks mine warfare and mine countermeasures should be given the same priority the Navy now gives to anti-submarine warfare and carrier operations.

Russia Doesn't Pay

Senator Henry Cabot Lodge of Massachusetts says he is going to try to get Russia to pay a larger percentage of the United Nations budget. The United States, smaller than Russia both in population and in area, pays approximately 40 per cent of the UN budget. Russia pays only seven per cent for the privilege of having its foreign minister, the second in command to Stalin in the Soviet, and lesser Communist plotters, roaming about the United States at will.

The altruistic idea was that initially the nations which had suffered heavily from the war should pay less on the UN budget. But that formula should not be expected to apply forever, and this is as good a time as any to revise it.

In the five years since the war ended Russia, in violation of her pledges, has made satellites of her neighbors and proceeded to milk them dry. She has dismantled and looted former enemy territory to an extent not contemplated in the arrangements accepted by her former allies. She is exploiting much of Europe and China, colonial fashion.

Russia seems to have no lack of funds to maintain the largest standing army on earth, or to finance activities of subversion in every country on the globe. Paying a fair share of the relatively small budget of the UN ought to be easy for her now.

But it is doubtful if the Lodge suggestion will get anywhere. Probably this country's delegates to that organization will not even recognize it.

Substitute For Plasma

It is not likely that there will ever be a substitute for whole blood in shock therapy. The presence of little red and white boats in the plasma stream is often required for transfusions. But now the Red Cross is calling for 7,000,000 pints of plasma. Isn't there any substitute for it?

The laboratories often start out with a new, good, but very expensive natural substance and eventually come up with a cheap and effective synthetic. The search for a plasma substitute is intensified now because of the possibility of burns from atomic explosions affecting thousands of persons in a relatively small area. For a person who has lost blood serum after being burned needs plasma to replace it.

A review of the history of the search for a blood substitute dating from World War I is interesting. Gelatin was then seen as possibly a type of protein with cells that would not seep through the blood vessels and out of the circulatory system. There wasn't much success with it. By the end of World War II a new kind of gelatin had been developed which worked better.

The search goes on. At Newark, Del., Dr. Ellice McDonald heads the Biochemical Research Foundation. The staff there is experimenting with a gelatin plasma substitute which differs from other substitutes in containing food for tissue growth. It is described as a gelatin-glucose-salt solution which has had good results on rabbits.

One of the great discoveries of medical science would be a substitute for human blood in any large amount for any purpose.

The Dangerous Drivers

Look out when a 21-year-old is driving down the street. Better not try to enter traffic till he has gone by. He is more menacing than the much-abused teenager, says Prof. A. R. Lauer of Iowa State College. Out of his experience in conducting a driving laboratory, he reported these conclusions to the Chicago convention of the National Safety Council.

His findings on drivers of various ages are interesting. Women are better drivers than men from 16 to 33, and again between 41 and 53. At other ages the men are better. Men would be better than women at all times if they did not take unwise chances and force their way into dangerous situations.

As in many other things, it isn't what you know that matters, but what you think you know. If you are wrong in your estimate, then comes trouble. When a rapidly moving automobile is involved, the trouble is quite often fatal.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By Dr. Theodore R. Van Dellen

To the limit of space, questions pertaining to the prevention of disease will be answered. Personal replies will be made under proper limitations, when return stamped envelope is enclosed. Dr. Van Dellen will not make diagnosis or prescribe for individual diseases.

Poor Sight In Dim Light

ONE of the most remarkable feats performed by man was to duplicate in the laboratory the photochemical reaction that takes place in the eyes to make vision in dim light possible. To see at dusk, the rods of the retina must be able to produce a certain pigment—visual purple—and unless this chemical exists night blindness ensues.

Vitamin A enters the picture because it is an essential constituent of visual purple. Furthermore, by oxidizing this vitamin and adding a special protein, visual purple can be made in the laboratory. The yield is not as great as nature is capable of forming within the eyes but the work is important because it extends our knowledge of the mechanics of night vision.

Light has a tendency to destroy visual purple and, until an additional supply can be manufactured, visual acuity at night is decreased. Vitamin A is of no value in such cases. It is better to wear sunglasses during the day because they screen out a high percentage of light rays, permitting more of the pigment to remain. This does not mean, however, that the vitamin is of no benefit. An inadequate amount of this substance curtails the manufacture of visual purple because the vitamin is the most important ingredient of the pigment.

There are several causes of night blindness but lack of vitamin A has received the most publicity. The disturbance refers to difficulty in adapting to dim light so that after the sun goes down, and before the street lights appear, time is required for the eyes to become used to the change. A machine is available to test for night blindness and is used occasionally to determine the vitamin status.

One of the chief functions of vitamin A is to help keep the cells of the mucous membranes and the outer skin of the body in good condition. By scraping the skin and collecting some of the epithelial cells it is possible for experts to tell whether there is a shortage of the vitamin. A third clew as to the presence or absence of this chemical is obtained by a study of the blood. Tests of this nature are necessary to detect mild cases. Vitamin A deficiencies in America are rare; in one survey of 450 subjects only 11 had blood levels below normal and of these eight were children.

Symptoms seldom appear, but when they do, night blindness, conjunctivitis, and skin dryness are the most common. An eruption also occurs that resembles gooseflesh in that the hair follicles are prominent. It differs from goose-flesh in that chilling does not induce it and warmth will not make it disappear. In this condition, supplementary vitamin A is needed and doses up to 50,000 units daily are required. Thereafter foods rich in vitamin A maintain the supply. These include fruits and vegetables, milk, butter, liver, kidneys, and fish oils.

TOMORROW: Music as a form of treatment.

PHOBIAS

L. K. writes: Should a person with a certain phobia force himself to do the thing he is afraid of? For example looking down from a height frightens me. Would it be better to stay away from elevations or make myself look down from tall buildings?

REPLY

A phobia represents a real fear that stems from an incident earlier in life (which may or may not be remembered). In your particular case, it might be better to shun the high spots rather than go out looking for mountains so you can look down.

•—•—•

HEAT TO SORE KNEE

B. N. writes: I have arthritis of the right knee and would like to know how often to apply a heating pad and how long it should be kept on.

REPLY

Most individuals tolerate one-half hour to one and one-half hours three times daily.

•—•—•

CHEST DEFORMITY

L. K. writes: What would cause a 4 year old boy to have a pigeon breast?

REPLY

In this defect, the breastbone protrudes, producing a deformity resembling a pigeon's breast. In some instances, rickets is responsible; in others, the condition is congenital.

•—•—•

TENSION AND THE HEART

Mrs. T. writes: Does nervous tension cause heart attacks?

REPLY

Indirectly, by encouraging spasm of the coronary arteries. Nerve tension also leads to high blood pressure which in turn has an effect on the coronary circulation.

•—•—•

PRESSURE MEASUREMENT

Mrs. R. writes: Can the blood pressure be taken on the legs instead of the arms?

REPLY

Yes, but the procedure is more difficult. Furthermore, the level is 15 to 20 points higher than in the upper arms.

Ohio Senate Race Involves Future Of Republican Party; Truman Advisers Wanted Taft To Win; Taft's Attack On Marshall Hurt His Chances

Says DREW PEARSON

CLEVELAND, Ohio—The hot and hectic Ohio senatorial campaign has now boiled down to a battle of labor versus capital, the farm belt versus the city. This class-warfare angle is unfortunate, because the issue goes much deeper and involves the future leadership of the Republican party.

The Ohio race is not merely a race between a hard-hitting GOP Senator who had the courage to espouse the Taft-Hartley act; and a nice but colorless Democrat who champions labor. Actually the issue is also whether the Republican party is to become once more the progressive party of Lincoln and Theodore Roosevelt, or whether it is to lapse back to the international creed of the McKinleys and the Herbert Hoovers.

The fact that this basic issue is not defined in the Ohio senatorial race is partly the fault of the Truman high command. For the truth is that Truman's political advisers originally wanted Taft to win. They figured that he would be much easier to beat than Eisenhower in the race for the White House in 1952; therefore, it was better not to run a strong Democrat against Taft this year.

But whereas the White House failed to grasp the basic issue in Ohio, Arthur Vandenberg, who worked beside Taft for years, grasped the issue long ago. So did Senators Ives of New York, Morse of Oregon, Aiken of Vermont, Tobey of New Hampshire, Smith of Maine, and other Republicans who believe that their party cannot remain isolationist, must be made more progressive.

"Pack Of Jackals"

"Taft is so able, so tireless and so headstrong," said the Senator from Michigan, "that he carries the McCarthys, the Malones, the Jenners and the Kems right along with him. That pack o' isolationist jackals meets with Taft almost every night to plot against me and the Marshall plan. I am not sure whether I can lick them."

Vandenberg did lick them in that particular fight. The Marshall plan, which had more to do with defeating European communism than any other factor, was passed.

But Vandenberg is old and sick now. He makes no pretense of trying to hold a whip hand over the "pack of isolationist jackals" whom he used to lick when it came to crucial votes on the bipartisan foreign policy.

And this year the so-called "pack of isolationist jackals" has been crying communism all over the country, despite the fact that their own votes on foreign policy have gone right down the line with pro-Communist Congressman Marcantonio. This group has used the technique of shouting so loudly about Communists at home that the reverberations had obscured their own pro-Communist votes on policies abroad.

Confusing The Issue

This again is where the Truman high command has not played its cards well. In Indiana, for instance, the issue has become not communism, but Truman versus GOP Senator Capehart. Wisely, the Republicans played down the communism issue in Indiana because in that state the Democrat running against Capehart is Alex Campbell, the forthright former assistant attorney general who ordered the prosecution of Alger Hiss, the 12 Communist leaders in New York, Harry Bridges and various others.

In California, however, where GOP Congressman Nixon is running for the Senate, the GOP strategists have pounded home the Communist issue to a faretheewell. For Nixon, as a member of the un-American Activities Committee, hounded Hiss; and this has been played up so adroitly that it covers up Nixon's Marcantonio votes on such things as Korea and military aid under the North Atlantic Pact.

Likewise in Ohio, Taft's Marcantonio votes have now been pretty well obscured in the melee over the Taft-Hartley act. Also forgotten is his private encouragement of Senator McCarthy's spy-hunt at a time when Taft frankly admitted to other Republicans that he "didn't think Joe had anything."

Not quite forgotten in Ohio, however, is Taft's more recent attack on General Marshall when Marshall was appointed secretary of defense. This hurt Taft; and his friends are hoping it will be completely forgotten.

Actually the attack on Marshall was a flare-up of the real Taft—the Taft who is absolutely sincere and honest in believing that we can have no bipartisan foreign policy, that we cannot get along with Europe, and that the isolationist rantings of the Chicago Tribune should be the foreign-affairs platform of the Republican party.

U. S. Needs No Allies

Taft's personal philosophy was quite accurately expressed at an overseas writers' dinner not long before Korea, where, after some amazing statements that the United States was best defended by two oceans, Taft was asked by Barnet Nover of the Denver Post:

"Then you think, Senator, that we would be better off fighting Russia without any allies at all."

"Yes," replied the Senator from Ohio, "I guess that's about it."

Shortly thereafter, when Korea was invaded, Taft publicly reversed himself. He issued a statement clamoring for more allies to help us fight communism.

But Taft's original isolationist thinking, plus his ability, his courage and his indefatigable energy is why he always carries the Kems, the Wherrys, the Jenners, the Malones, the Capeharts and the other GOP isolationists with him. Together they form a compact and powerful unit which guides one wing of the Republican party.

And that is why the basic issue in the current Ohio race is actually whether the Republican party will become more isolationist or more progressive in the future.

Merry-Go-Round

Strictest secrecy precautions in diplomatic history were invoked to guard the meeting of the 12 Atlantic Pact defense ministers and their military chiefs of staff. . . . On the day before the first meeting in the huge government auditorium on Constitution avenue, 20 FBI men and special army counterintelligence agents scoured every nook and cranny for hidden microphones and wiretaps. . . . They even looked into huge chandeliers that light up the conference room to see if the Communists had secreted microphones in them. As an extra precaution, nearly 100 military policemen with fixed bayonets were assigned to guard the building with orders that newsmen were not even to be allowed in the lobby—which is far from the conference room.

MATTER OF FACT

The Dirksen Formula

CHICAGO, Ill.

FORMER Congressman Everett McKinley Dirksen, in a casual remark to this reporter, summed up the basis for both Republican hopes and Republican strategy throughout this area. Dirksen is trying to unseat the well-entrenched Democratic Majority Leader, Sen. Scott Lucas. He is confident he will do so. Asked why, he replied, "The People are dissatified. They are sort of frustrated. They know something has gone very wrong."

This sense of dissatisfaction certainly exists—and it is certainly the function of an opposition party to exploit it. But much depends on how this is done. A speech Dirksen made last Sunday at a Republican rally in the prosperous Chicago suburb of Oak Park may be taken as a fair sample of the technique of exploiting dissatisfaction employed by Dirksen and most other Republicans in this general area.

Dirksen's speaking style is intensely ecclesiastical, like that of a rather gloomy and unctuous parson, with an added suggestion of a radio uncle telling children's bedtime stories. The ecclesiastical note was struck at the outset. Dirksen told how an old man had asked him how his mother would have felt about his campaigning on a Sunday. Dirksen replied that she would have approved highly, because he was engaged, not in a political campaign, but in a crusade spreading "Holy Doctrine."

Dirksen then proceeded to outline the "real issues of this campaign." His old and dear friend Carl Vinson, chairman of the House Armed Services Committee, has said that spending and high taxes and the drafting of young men "must go on and on and on." This meant, he said, "windrows of young men marching away" to an uncertain fate. President Harry Truman had accused the Republicans of "pitchforking the farmer." At least the Republicans had not "pitchforked the young men" into war.

The Republicans had not "grabbed nineteen year old boys" to send them to battle against communism, while at the same time paying "fancy salaries" to the Communists in the government. And what was the result of all this appeasement and Communist-coddling? It was unbearable taxes and intolerable prices. Already, Dirksen warned his hearers, they were headed "down the dismal road to disaster."

Dirksen also says that aid to Europe (for which he himself fought effectively in his last term in Congress) is "throwing money down a bottomless pit." Thus you have the essence of the Dirksen formula for exploiting the dissatisfaction and frustration of the voters. He is clearly convinced that the voters' resentment against the draft, high taxes, Korean casualties, and all the other heavy burdens of American world leadership, can be exploited in such a way that conservative isolationism can again triumph in the Middle West.

Dirksen's enemies say that his reconversion to isolationism really springs from a conversation between Dirksen and Col. Robert R. McCormick, in McCormick's lair in the Tribune tower. It is true that McCormick exercises a veto power over Republican nominations in Illinois, and that Dirksen wanted very much to be nominated. But Dirksen also wants very much to be elected, and he is an extremely astute politician. He has changed his mind on great issues of national policy before this—no less than 63 times, according to the count of the "Chicago Sun-Times," and he has usually succeeded in switching to the popular side of issues. A good many other Republicans, as astute as Dirksen, clearly share his views on the isolationist resurgence.

Meanwhile, there were two aspects of the Dirksen meeting at Oak Park which seemed significant. First, every person present was quite obviously already a convinced Republican. Second, every person present was well on in years. Virtually every Republican rally this reporter has attended has had the same characteristics. At least in this area, the Republican Party is falling into the ancient error of persuading the already persuaded—and it is the undecided, not the already persuaded, who determine the outcome of elections. Partly for this reason, the Republican Party is tending to become the party of the old and middle-aged. The middle-aged become old, unfortunately, and the old die.

In short, the Republican Party is in danger of becoming a permanent minority party—and this is a real danger to the American political system. The Dirksen formula for exploiting the dissatisfactions of the voters may seem to reverse this trend—that will be decided on November 7, which Dirksen, in sepulchral tones, calls "judgment day." But it cannot really reverse the trend, simply because it is flatly inconceivable that the United States should return to isolationism. That is why the continuing battle within the Republican Party, between men like Dirksen and men like Sen. Arthur Vandenberg, may determine whether the two-party system is to survive.

Failure To Vote Is Seen As Defect Of Democracy

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON, Nov. 1—This is the season when it is considered non-partisan and of civic importance to urge people to go to the polls and exercise their prized privilege of voting. There are even some observers who think compulsory voting and a fine for those who fail to vote would be in the public interest.

But, actually, what America has most to fear is a heavy vote when the persons who go to the polls are dragged there and told how to vote.

For many years it has been customary for well-intentioned citizens to organize to transport voters to the polls. There seems to be adequate transportation when the women folks want to get to a beauty parlor or when the men folks want to get to midtown for any one of a hundred errands they have to do in the course of a year. But that it should be necessary to furnish automobiles to get voters to the polls seems to some extent a reflection on the initiative of the citizen as well as his independence of mind.

Obligation Created

For, when the precinct workers call for the voter and take him or her to the polls, an obligation is created to vote the way the precinct workers indicate. There are at the polls also on election day many workers who furnish handbills or engage the voters in conversation at the proper distance from the voting booth.

There can hardly be an objection to the arguing or to the distribution of campaign literature but, with all the controversy nowadays about money being spent in political contests, one rarely sees an estimate of the cost in time and money of those workers who virtually drag citizens to the polls.

It may be wondered how much intelligence is exhibited by an electorate when so large a proportion of the vote cast is controlled, directed or influenced or high pressured by workers, paid or otherwise.

The very exhortations heard every year "to get out the vote" seem innocent enough on the surface but along with this kind of appeal usually there are organized efforts to call on voters at their homes and fill them in a few minutes with last words of prejudice or emotion. The party or candidate having the most effective "organization" of this kind not infrequently wins out.

It is significant that the Democratic chiefs are talking about how certain they are to win more seats in Congress this year if the Democrats get out and vote. It is also significant that Republicans claim that they lost in 1948 because too many Republicans stayed at home.

Non-Partisan Transportation

Surveys made in Akron, Ohio, of what happened in the presidential election a couple years ago reveal that a large percentage of business and professional men and others in what would be called the educated groups failed to go to the polls. It is quite likely that the percentage of the total eligible to vote who do vote would decline considerably if there were no pressure used to get citizens to the polls.

It is frequently asserted that the women do not avail themselves of the vote, as had been predicted when woman suffrage was being urged. This may or may not be due to the fact that household duties and lack of transportation sometimes prevent them from getting to the voting booth. There is undoubtedly a need for transportation but this should be furnished by nonpartisan organizations formed for this purpose and assisted by public funds.

Americans can hardly be proud of any election in which so much effort has to be expended, first, to get people acquainted with the basic issues, and, second, when so much time and money must be spent to transport voters to the polls. Clearly there is here a serious defect in American democracy. Maybe the schools and colleges or even the churches have failed to teach individual responsibility and the obligations of citizenship. Surely, somewhere, there has been a failure.

These Days

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY

The Red Masquerade

SO I WENT to a party of red-baiters — not the Johnny-come-latelies who swear that they were never pinkoes and hate Stalin's very pancreas — but men and women who over the years and at great sacrifice fought Stalin's stooges. There is always a spirit of camaraderie among those who were unafraid when it was more popular to sign petitions and sponsor front organizations and now when the opportunists beg to be forgotten if not forgiven, there is some pardonable elation. Among those present was Angela Calomiris.

I had never seen her before and it was hard enough now. A tiny mite, weighing somewhere near a hundred pounds, sharp-eyed, with a gay humor, she was the guest of honor. A few days earlier, her first book, "Red Masquerade," had appeared and she was now a literary personage.

Angela Calomiris had been an FBI undercover girl for seven dangerous years and it was exciting to see her in the company of other former FBI agents at this party. They were bound together by the ordeal through which they had passed.

But the next morning — it was Sunday — I looked in the book sections of the New York Herald Tribune and the New York Times, two newspapers that have practically monopolized book reviewing in the United States. Not one word appeared about this important book. They did not even say that it was bad; they ignored it. It is the more amazing that both should simultaneously reject this book. What is this, a cartel?

So, I pushed aside a day's work and read, with more excitement and fascination every moment, "Red Masquerade," by Angela Calomiris. Here is an American girl of Greek origin who is recruited by the FBI in wartime to do dangerous work for her country, with no protection, with no compensation, with only her expenses paid. She is told at the start that should she be involved in difficulties, the FBI would not acknowledge her for obvious reasons. This work she did so well that she reached an important place in the Communist movement and thus laid the basis for the indictment and conviction of the 11 Communist leaders in New York.

It is a heroic tale not only of Angie herself but of the hard-working, painstaking FBI agents who are on the job day and night working for the American people.

"Red Masquerade" is the best-written, the most literate, and by far the most accurate description of the methods of the Communist party and their associate organizations in the United States. It is the only book that I know that gives a close-up view of the function of cells and district organizations.

Quite apart from the absorbing story of Angela Calomiris, this is an invaluable sociological and political study which should be in every library in the country.

Yet, the two big Sunday book review magazines ignored it completely. They gave loads of space to Owen Lattimore's self-serving defense, but not one word to a carefully written, competently documented account of the methods by which the FBI actually succeeded in gaining convictions of Communists in our courts.

It is impossible to believe otherwise than that the editors of the "Herald Tribune" and "Times" book review magazines desire that this important book should not be read. Many libraries make their purchases on the basis of reviews in these publications and when a book is not noticed even unfavorably, when it is not even mentioned, its sale becomes extremely difficult.

Therefore, I am appealing to readers to buy this book, "Red Masquerade," by Angela Calomiris, to read it, and if they like it to recommend it to their local library committees.

It is worth-while that in this era when we produced an Aiger Hiss and a Judith Coplon, we also produced an Angela Calomiris. Although she never moved among the great in Washington, she served this country as valiantly and as dangerously as any soldier at the front in the worst of battle.

And to this she has added a book that even the most perfectionistic of reviewers cannot regard as a journalistic makeshift. Hers is a literary gift of high order and her book carries the reader from cover to cover.

Of Mines And Men

The Navy candidly admits it hasn't been able to cope with the problem of underwater mines on the east coast of Korea. A naval officer, Capt. R. T. Spofford, points up some of the practical difficulties of sweeping up the mines off Wonsan, the port and naval base up in the narrow waist of the Korean peninsula. The minefield was 30 miles in length, with its width varying according to the depth of the water.

The mines were of two varieties, contact (moored) and "influence." The latter is a particularly nasty variety, as Navy men who operated in European waters will tell you. The magnetic force of a steel hull may detonate them, or the change in water pressure caused by a ship's passage overhead may set them off.

Captain Spofford says these are all brand new types of mines and says experts in mine warfare (he left no doubt that he didn't refer to North Korean experts) had been on the job. To date the Navy has had five minesweepers sunk and has announced that nearly two score men are lost and missing.

Still the cleanup continues under the worst possible conditions. Those in charge of sweeping this vast danger area are short of ships, trained crews and the right equipment for the job. The only blue sky to be seen is that an unhurried examination may now be made of mining techniques that presumably might be met along Russian controlled coastlines.

Admiral Allen E. Smith, who is in overall charge of escort and sweeping operations in Far Eastern waters, thinks mine warfare and mine countermeasures should be given the same priority the Navy now gives to anti-submarine warfare and carrier operations.

Russia Doesn't Pay

Senator Henry Cabot Lodge of Massachusetts says he is going to try to get Russia to pay a larger percentage of the United Nations budget. The United States, smaller than Russia both in population and in area, pays approximately 40 per cent of the UN budget. Russia pays only seven per cent for the privilege of having its foreign minister, the second in command to Stalin in the Soviet, and lesser Communist plotters, roaming about the United States at will.

The altruistic idea was that initially the nations which had suffered heavily from the war should pay less on the UN budget. But that formula should not be expected to apply forever, and this is as good a time as any to revise it.

In the five years since the war ended Russia, in violation of her pledges, has made satellites of her neighbors and proceeded to milk them dry. She has dismantled and looted former enemy territory to an extent not contemplated in the arrangements accepted by her former allies. She is exploiting much of Europe and China, colonial fashion.

Russia seems to have no lack of funds to maintain the largest standing army on earth, or to finance activities of subversion in every country on the globe. Paying a fair share of the relatively small budget of the UN ought to be easy for her now.

But it is doubtful if the Lodge suggestion will get anywhere. Probably this country's delegates to that organization will not even recognize it.

Substitute For Plasma

It is not likely that there will ever be a substitute for whole blood in shock therapy. The presence of little red and white boats in the plasma stream is often required for transfusions. But now the Red Cross is calling for 7,000,000 pints of plasma. Isn't there any substitute for it?

The laboratories often start out with a new, good, but very expensive natural substance and eventually come up with a cheap and effective synthetic. The search for a plasma substitute is intensified now because of the possibility of burns from atomic explosions affecting thousands of persons in a relatively small area. For a person who has lost blood serum after being burned needs plasma to replace it.

A review of the history of the search for a blood substitute dating from World War I is interesting. Gelatin was then seen as possibly a type of protein with cells that would not seep through the blood vessels and out of the circulatory system. There wasn't much success with it. By the end of World War II a new kind of gelatin had been developed which worked better.

The search goes on. At Newark, Del., Dr. Ellice McDonald heads the Biochemical Research Foundation. The staff there is experimenting with a gelatin plasma substitute which differs from other substitutes in containing food for tissue growth. It is described as a gelatin-glucose-salt solution which has had good results on rabbits.

One of the great discoveries of medical science would be a substitute for human blood in any large amount for any purpose.

The Dangerous Drivers

Look out when a 21-year-old is driving down the street. Better not try to enter traffic till he has gone by. He is more menacing than the much-abused teenager, says Prof. A. R. Lauer of Iowa State College. Out of his experience in conducting a driving laboratory, he reported these conclusions to the Chicago convention of the National Safety Council.

His findings on drivers of various ages are interesting. Women are better drivers than men from 16 to 33, and again between 41 and 53. At other ages the men are better. Men would be better than women at all times if they did not take unwise chances and force their way into dangerous situations.

As in many other things, it isn't what you know that matters, but what you think you know. If you are wrong in your estimate, then comes trouble. When a rapidly moving automobile is involved, the trouble is quite often fatal.

Poor Sight In Dim Light

ONE of the most remarkable feats performed by man was to duplicate in the laboratory the photochemical reaction that takes place in the eyes to make vision in dim light possible. To see at dusk, the rods of the retina must be able to produce a certain pigment—visual purple—and unless this chemical exists night blindness ensues.

Vitamin A enters the picture because it is an essential constituent of visual purple. Furthermore, by oxidizing this vitamin and adding a special protein, visual purple can be made in the laboratory. The yield is not as great as nature is capable of forming within the eyes but the work is important because it extends our knowledge of the mechanics of night vision.

Light has a tendency to destroy visual purple and, until an additional supply can be manufactured, visual acuity at night is decreased. Vitamin A is of no value in such cases. It is better to wear sunglasses during the day because they screen out a high percentage of light rays, permitting more of the pigment to remain. This does not mean, however, that the vitamin is of no benefit. An inadequate amount of this substance curtails the manufacture of visual purple because the vitamin is the most important ingredient of the pigment.

There are several causes of night blindness but lack of vitamin A has received the most publicity. The disturbance refers to difficulty in adapting to dim light so that after the sun goes down, and before the street lights appear, time is required for the eyes to become used to the change. A machine is available to test for night blindness and is used occasionally to determine the vitamin status.

One of the chief functions of vitamin A is to help keep the cells of the mucous membranes and the outer skin of the body in good condition. By scraping the skin and collecting some of the epithelial cells it is possible for experts to tell whether there is a shortage of the vitamin. A third clew as to the presence or absence of this chemical is obtained by a study of the blood. Tests of this nature are necessary to detect mild cases. Vitamin A deficiencies in America are rare; in one survey of 450 subjects only 11 had blood levels below normal and of these eight were children.

Symptoms seldom appear, but when they do, night blindness, conjunctivitis, and skin dryness are the most common. An eruption also occurs that resembles gooseflesh in that the hair follicles are prominent. It differs from goose-flesh in that chilling does not induce it and warmth will not make it disappear. In this condition, supplementary vitamin A is needed and doses up to 50,000 units daily are required. Thereafter foods rich in vitamin A maintain the supply. These include fruits and vegetables, milk, butter, liver, kidneys, and fish oils.

TOMORROW: Music as a form of treatment.

PHOBIAS

L. K. writes: Should a person with a certain phobia force himself to do the thing he is afraid of? For example looking down from a height frightens me. Would it be better to stay away from elevations or make myself look down from tall buildings?

A phobia represents a real fear that stems from an incident earlier in life (which may or may not be remembered). In your particular case, it might be better to shun the high spots rather than go out looking for mountains so you can look down.

CHEST DEFORMITY

Indirectly, by encouraging spasm of the coronary arteries. Nerve tension also leads to high blood pressure which in turn has an effect on the coronary circulation.

Ohio Senate Race Involves Future Of Republican Party; Truman Advisers Wanted Taft To Win; Taft's Attack On Marshall Hurt His Chances

By DREW PEARSON

CLEVELAND, Ohio—The hot and hectic Ohio senatorial campaign has now boiled down to a battle of labor versus capital, the farm belt versus the city. This class-warfare angle is unfortunate, because the issue goes much deeper and involves the future leadership of the Republican party.

The Ohio race is not merely a race between a hard-hitting GOP Senator who had the courage to espouse the Taft-Hartley act; and a nice but colorless Democrat who champions labor. Actually the issue is also whether the Republican party is to become once more the progressive party of Lincoln and Theodore Roosevelt, or whether it is to lapse back to the international creed of the McKinleys and the Herbert Hoovers.

The fact that this basic issue is not defined in the Ohio senatorial race is partly the fault of the Truman high command. For the truth is that Truman's political advisers originally wanted Taft to win. They figured that he would be much easier to beat than Eisenhower in the race for the White House in 1952; therefore, it was better not to run a strong Democrat against Taft this year.

But whereas the White House failed to grasp the basic issue in Ohio, Arthur Vandenberg, who worked beside Taft for years, grasped the issue long ago. So did Senators Ives of New York, Morse of Oregon, Aiken of Vermont, Tobey of New Hampshire, Smith of Maine, and other Republicans who believe that their party cannot remain isolationist, must be made more progressive.

"Pack Of Jackals"

"Taft is so able, so tireless and so headstrong," said the Senator from Michigan, "that he carries the McCarthys, the Malones, the Jenners and the Kems right along with him. That pack o' isolationist jackals meets with Taft almost every night to plot against me and the Marshall plan. I am not sure whether I can lick them."

Vandenberg did lick them in that particular fight. The Marshall plan, which had more to do with defeating European communism than any other factor, was passed.

But Vandenberg is old and sick now. He makes no pretense of trying to hold a whip hand over the "pack of isolationist jackals" whom he used to lick when it came to crucial votes on the bipartisan foreign policy.

And this year the so-called "pack of isolationist jackals" has been crying communism all over the country, despite the fact that their own votes on foreign policy have gone right down the line with pro-Communist Congressman Marcantonio. This group has used the technique of shouting so loudly about Communists at home that the reverberations had obscured their own pro-Communist votes on policies abroad.

Confusing The Issue

This again is where the Truman high command has not played its cards well. In Indiana, for instance, the issue has become not communism, but Truman versus GOP Senator Capehart. Wisely, the Republicans played down the communism issue in Indiana because in that state the Democrat running against Capehart is Alex Campbell, the forthright former assistant attorney general who ordered the prosecution of Alger Hiss, the 12 Communist leaders in New York, Harry Bridges and various others.

In California, however, where GOP Congressman Nixon is running for the Senate, the GOP strategists have pounded home the Communist issue to a faretheewell. For Nixon, as a member of the un-American Activities Committee, hounded Hiss; and this has been played up so adroitly that it covers up Nixon's Marcantonio votes on such things as Korea and military aid under the North Atlantic Pact.

Likewise in Ohio, Taft's Marcantonio votes have now been pretty well obscured in the melee over the Taft-Hartley act. Also forgotten is his private encouragement of Senator McCarthy's spy-hunt at a time when Taft frankly admitted to other Republicans that he "didn't think Joe had anything."

Not quite forgotten in Ohio, however, is Taft's more recent attack on General Marshall when Marshall was appointed secretary of defense. This hurt Taft; and his friends are hoping it will be completely forgotten.

Actually the attack on Marshall was a flare-up of the real Taft—the Taft who is absolutely sincere and honest in believing that we can have no bipartisan foreign policy, that we cannot get along with Europe, and that the isolationist rantings of the Chicago Tribune should be the foreign-affairs platform of the Republican party.

U. S. Needs No Allies

Taft's personal philosophy was quite accurately expressed at an overseas writers' dinner not long before Korea, where, after some amazing statements that the United States was best defended by two oceans, Taft was asked by Barnet Nover of the Denver Post:

"Then you think, Senator, that we would be better off fighting Russia without any allies at all."

"Yes," replied the Senator from Ohio, "I guess that's about it."

Shortly thereafter, when Korea was invaded, Taft publicly reversed himself. He issued a statement clamoring for more allies to help us fight communism.

But Taft's original isolationist thinking, plus his ability, his courage and his indefatigable energy is why he always carries the Kems, the Wherrys, the Jenners, the Malones, the Capeharts and the other GOP isolationists with him. Together they form a compact and powerful unit which guides one wing of the Republican party.

And that is why the basic issue in the current Ohio race is actually whether the Republican party will become more isolationist or more progressive in the future.

Merry-Go-Round

Strictest secrecy precautions in diplomatic history were invoked to guard the meeting of the 12 Atlantic Pact defense ministers and their military chiefs of staff. . . . On the day before the first meeting in the huge government auditorium on Constitution avenue, 20 FBI men and special army counterintelligence agents scoured every nook and cranny for hidden microphones and wiretaps. . . . They even looked into huge chandeliers that light up the conference room to see if the Communists had secreted microphones in them. As an extra precaution, nearly 100 military policemen with fixed bayonets were assigned to guard the building with orders that newsmen were not even to be allowed in the lobby—which is far from the conference room.

The Dirksen Formula

CHICAGO, Ill.

FORMER Congressman Everett McKinley Dirksen, in a casual remark to this reporter, summed up the basis for both Republican hopes and Republican strategy throughout this area. Dirksen is trying to unseat the well-entrenched Democratic Majority Leader, Sen. Scott Lucas. He is confident he will do so. Asked why, he replied, "The People are dissatified. They are sort of frustrated. They know something has gone very wrong."

This sense of dissatisfaction certainly exists—and it is certainly the function of an opposition party to exploit it. But much depends on how this is done. A speech Dirksen made last Sunday at a Republican rally in the prosperous Chicago suburb of Oak Park may be taken as a fair sample of the technique of exploiting dissatisfaction employed by Dirksen and most other Republicans in this general area.

Dirksen's speaking style is intensely ecclesiastical, like that of a rather gloomy and unctuous parson, with an added suggestion of a radio uncle telling children's bedtime stories. The ecclesiastical note was struck at the outset. Dirksen told how an old man had asked him how his mother would have felt about his campaigning on a Sunday. Dirksen replied that she would have approved highly, because he was engaged, not in a political campaign, but in a crusade spreading "Holy Doctrine."

Dirksen then proceeded to outline the "real issues of this campaign." His old and dear friend Carl Vinson, chairman of the House Armed Services Committee, has said that spending and high taxes and the drafting of young men "must go on and on and on." This meant, he said, "windrows of young men marching away" to an uncertain fate. President Harry Truman had accused the Republicans of "pitchforking the farmer." At least the Republicans had not "pitchforked the young men" into war.

The Republicans had not "grabbed nineteen year old boys" to send them to battle against communism, while at the same time paying "fancy salaries" to the Communists in the government. And what was the result of all this appeasement and Communist-coddling? It was unbearable taxes and intolerable prices. Already, Dirksen warned his hearers, they were headed "down the dismal road to disaster."

Dirksen also says that aid to Europe (for which he himself fought effectively in his last term in Congress) is "throwing money down a bottomless pit." Thus you have the essence of the Dirksen formula for exploiting the dissatisfaction and frustration of the voters. He is clearly convinced that the voters' resentment against the draft, high taxes, Korean casualties, and all the other heavy burdens of American world leadership, can be exploited in such a way that conservative isolationism can again triumph in the Middle West.

Dirksen's enemies say that his reconversion to isolationism really springs from a conversation between Dirksen and Col. Robert R. McCormick, in McCormick's lair in the Tribune tower. It is true that McCormick exercises a veto power over Republican nominations in Illinois, and that Dirksen wanted very much to be nominated. But Dirksen also wants very much to be elected, and he is an extremely astute politician. He has changed his mind on great issues of national policy before this—no less than 63 times, according to the count of the "Chicago Sun-Times," and he has usually succeeded in switching to the popular side of issues. A good many other Republicans, as astute as Dirksen, clearly share his views on the isolationist resurgence.

Meanwhile, there were two aspects of the Dirksen meeting at Oak Park which seemed significant. First, every person present was quite obviously already a convinced Republican. Second, every person present was well on in years. Virtually every Republican rally this reporter has attended has had the same characteristics. At least in this area, the Republican Party is falling into the ancient error of persuading the already persuaded—and it is the undecided, not the already persuaded, who determine the outcome of elections. Partly for this reason, the Republican Party is tending to become the party of the old and middle-aged. The middle-aged become old, unfortunately, and the old die.

In short, the Republican Party is in danger of becoming a permanent minority party—and this is a real danger to the American political system. The Dirksen formula for exploiting the dissatisfactions of the voters may seem to reverse this trend—that will be decided on November 7, which Dirksen, in sepulchral tones, calls "judgment day." But it cannot really reverse the trend, simply because it is flatly inconceivable that the United States should return to isolationism. That is why the continuing battle within the Republican Party, between men like Dirksen and men like Sen. Arthur Vandenberg, may determine whether the two-party system is to survive.

Failure To Vote Is Seen As Defect Of Democracy

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON, Nov. 1—This is the season when it is considered non-partisan and of civic importance to urge people to go to the polls and exercise their prized privilege of voting. There are even some observers who think compulsory voting and a fine for those who fail to vote would be in the public interest.

But, actually, what America has most to fear is a heavy vote when the persons who go to the polls are dragged there and told how to vote.

For many years it has been customary for well-intentioned citizens to organize to transport voters to the polls. There seems to be adequate transportation when the women folks want to get to a beauty parlor or when the men folks want to get to midtown for any one of a hundred errands they have to do in the course of a year. But that it should be necessary to furnish automobiles to get voters to the polls seems to some extent a reflection on the initiative of the citizen as well as his independence of mind.

Obligation Created

For, when the precinct workers call for the voter and take him or her to the polls, an obligation is created to vote the way the precinct workers indicate. There are at the polls also on election day many workers who furnish handbills or engage the voters in conversation at the proper distance from the voting booth.

There can hardly be an objection to the arguing or to the distribution of campaign literature but, with all the controversy nowadays about money being spent in political contests, one rarely sees an estimate of the cost in time and money of those workers who virtually drag citizens to the polls.

It may be wondered how much intelligence is exhibited by an electorate when so large a proportion of the vote cast is controlled, directed or influenced or high pressured by workers, paid or otherwise.

The very exhortations heard every year "to get out the vote" seem innocent enough on the surface but along with this kind of appeal usually there are organized efforts to call on voters at their homes and fill them in a few minutes with last words of prejudice or emotion. The party or candidate having the most effective "organization" of this kind not infrequently wins out.

It is significant that the Democratic chiefs are talking about how certain they are to win more seats in Congress this year if the Democrats get out and vote. It is also significant that Republicans claim that they lost in 1948 because too many Republicans stayed at home.

Non-Partisan Transportation

Surveys made in Akron, Ohio, of what happened in the presidential election a couple years ago reveal that a large percentage of business and professional men and others in what would be called the educated groups failed to go to the polls. It is quite likely that the percentage of the total eligible to vote who do vote would decline considerably if there were no pressure used to get citizens to the polls.

It is frequently asserted that the women do not avail themselves of the vote, as had been predicted when woman suffrage was being urged. This may or may not be due to the fact that household duties and lack of transportation sometimes prevent them from getting to the voting booth. There is undoubtedly a need for transportation but this should be furnished by nonpartisan organizations formed for this purpose and assisted by public funds.

Americans can hardly be proud of any election in which so much effort has to be expended, first, to get people acquainted with the basic issues, and, second, when so much time and money must be spent to transport voters to the polls. Clearly there is here a serious defect in American democracy. Maybe the schools and colleges or even the churches have failed to teach individual responsibility and the obligations of citizenship. Surely, somewhere, there has been a failure.

These Days

The Red Masquerade

SO I WENT to a party of red-baiters — not the Johnny-come-latelies who swear that they were never pinkoes and hate Stalin's very pancreas — but men and women who over the years and at great sacrifice fought Stalin's stooges. There is always a spirit of camaraderie among those who were unafraid when it was more popular to sign petitions and sponsor front organizations and now when the opportunists beg to be forgotten if not forgiven, there is some pardonable elation. Among those present was Angela Calomiris.

I had never seen her before and it was hard enough now. A tiny mite, weighing somewhere near a hundred pounds, sharp-eyed, with a gay humor, she was the guest of honor. A few days earlier, her first book, "Red Masquerade," had appeared and she was now a literary personage.

Angela Calomiris had been an FBI undercover girl for seven dangerous years and it was exciting to see her in the company of other former FBI agents at this party. They were bound together by the ordeal through which they had passed.

But the next morning — it was Sunday — I looked in the book sections of the New York Herald Tribune and the New York Times, two newspapers that have practically monopolized book reviewing in the United States. Not one word appeared about this important book. They did not even say that it was bad; they ignored it. It is the more amazing that both should simultaneously reject this book. What is this, a cartel?

So, I pushed aside a day's work and read, with more excitement and fascination every moment, "Red Masquerade," by Angela Calomiris. Here is an American girl of Greek origin who is recruited by the FBI in wartime to do dangerous work for her country, with no protection, with no compensation, with only her expenses paid. She is told at the start that should she be involved in difficulties, the FBI would not acknowledge her for obvious reasons. This work she did so well that she reached an important place in the Communist movement and thus laid the basis for the indictment and conviction of the 11 Communist leaders in New York.

It is a heroic tale not only of Angie herself but of the hard-working, painstaking FBI agents who are on the job day and night working for the American people.

"Red Masquerade" is the best-written, the most literate, and by far the most accurate description of the methods of the Communist party and their associate organizations in the United States. It is the only book that I know that gives a close-up view of the function of cells and district organizations.

Quite apart from the absorbing story of Angela Calomiris, this is an invaluable sociological and political study which should be in every library in the country.

Yet, the two big Sunday book review magazines ignored it completely. They gave loads of space to Owen Lattimore's self-serving defense, but not one word to a carefully written, competently documented account of the methods by which the FBI actually succeeded in gaining convictions of Communists in our courts.

It is impossible to believe otherwise than that the editors of the "Herald Tribune" and "Times" book review magazines desire that this important book should not be read. Many libraries make their purchases on the basis of reviews in these publications and when a book is not noticed even unfavorably, when it is not even mentioned, its sale becomes extremely difficult.

Therefore, I am appealing to readers to buy this book, "Red Masquerade," by Angela Calomiris, to read it, and if they like it to recommend it to their local library committees.

It is worth-while that in this era when we produced an Aiger Hiss and a Judith Coplon, we also produced an Angela Calomiris. Although she never moved among the great in Washington, she served this country as valiantly and as dangerously as any soldier at the front in the worst of battle.

And to this she has added a book that even the most perfectionistic of reviewers cannot regard as a journalistic makeshift. Hers is a literary gift of high order and her book carries the reader from cover to cover.

Uplinger Fined In Liquor Case

Found guilty and fined $150 in Police Court Tuesday for selling alcoholic beverages without a license to an "undercover agent" of the City Police Department was Ralph Uplinger, 41, of 506 Springdale Street. Uplinger, who entered a plea of not guilty, appealed the verdict.

Another defendant, Lee Carroll, who resides at the rear of East Laing Avenue, drew a suspended fine of $100 on the same charge. Police said it was his first offense, and Magistrate Peter J. Carpenti imposed the sentence.

Uplinger, represented by Edward J. Ryan and William L. Wilson, Jr., was arrested once before on a license charge about four months ago. At that time Magistrate Frank E. Perdew fined him $150 and he filed notice of an appeal. The outcome is pending in Circuit Court.

By AUSTINE

WASHINGTON

WE'VE GOT THE White House and Truman's piano. . . . We've got Dean Acheson, the Mellon Gallery and the original Constitution. . . . We've got Frank G. Ashbrook.

He's also one-of-a-kind in the world.

AUSTINE

Prim, neat and almost sixty, you would not think he could look at a bear, let alone eat one . . . But he has eaten almost everything that crawls, hops, runs or swims on the North American Continent . . . And lived to tell about it. And loves to tell about it . . . A fast and long-winded talker, Ashbrook peppers his sentences with cusswords.

He can give you what he claims is an excellent recipe for Armadillo Sausages, for Beaver Barbecued or Fricasseed for a Ragout of Raccoon, or Filet of Whale.

As head of Wild Fur Animal Investigation of the Fish and Wildlife Service of the Department of Interior, he knows all about cooking and eating wild animals.

If you turn up your nose and toes at his Armadillo Sausage, he sneers, "There is no accounting for the average American's timidity. Day after day, year after year, he will travel the tiresome trail of meat, gravy and potatoes."

"How did YOU ever get out of the rut and off the beaten trail? I asked him.

"My father had been telling me for a long time that I was missing a lot by not eating different foods. I wouldn't touch calves brains, vinaigrette, or oysters, for instance. When I got to college I HAD to eat a lot of things I didn't like. I think it must have been in college that I made up my mind I was going to try anything and everything."

"But, Mr. Ashbrook," I argued, "even if I wanted a Ragout of Raccoon, which let it be clearly understood right now I don't, there are few restaurants, if any, where it's on the menu."

"There are fewer and fewer good restaurants left," he admitted.

"The eating habits of the American people are disgraceful," he lectured. "Why, for lunch they go in the nearest drugstore and gulp down the darndest looking sandwich you ever saw. Even doctors don't practice what they preach. They nibble peanut butter crackers all the time. They have to smoke between each course. Can't understand that smoking ruins their sense of taste. Fine cooking isn't appreciated any more. That's one of the reasons Washington has lost so many of its fine restaurants. They can't compete with drugstores."

To prove how miserably we dine, Mr. Ashbrook exhibits a menu of the Gay Nineties. It includes Turkey a la Toulouse, Saddle of Venison with Currant Jelly, and Terrapin a la Maryland, Canvasback Duck, Pheasant, Partridge and Grouse. . . . Accompanied by ten vegetables, dessert and coffee. . . . He doesn't advocate a return to the lax game laws of the Gay Nineties, but urges us to learn that wild birds and animals, hunted in season in our fields, streams and forests, can provide delicious vitamin-rich food, easily prepared, cooked and digested. . . . Game meat is healthful and savory and yet many American families have never tasted it.

In the Ashbrook family he does all the cooking. . . . And his wife, a teacher of dramatics and arts at a nearby Junior College, is a wonderful audience.

One of their favorite recipes is Buffalo Stew. "I always cut it up in chunks, brown it in the pan with onions before adding it to the stew. I never use water in a stew. Tomato puree or tomato juice. It's a dish fit for the gods."

Famous Folks' Favorite Foods

Conducting a private poll from dinner table to dinner table, I find steak and potatoes are far from the favorites in the Capital:

ATTORNEY GENERAL'S WIFE, MRS. J. HOWARD McGRATH: likes (better than anything else in the world) a French Meat Pie, recipe inherited from her grandmother. . . . Ingredients fresh ham, potatoes and sherry.

SENATOR BERT MILLER of Idaho, 79 years old, says his favorite food is Mountain Trout with Bacon. . . . Most Senators from Idaho, when asked their favorite foods, chant "Why, Baked Idaho Potatoes, of course!" But Miller has lived long enough to stand on his convictions.

MRS. STYLES BRIDGES would walk a mile for "Lobster broiled with seaweed." "Gives it that old briny flavor!"

ITALIAN AMBASSADOR TARCHIANI, though he has lived and traveled in America for years, still goes into ecstacy over green noodles covered with fresh-made sauce of meat or mushrooms and pounds of fresh grated Parmesan cheese.

"PTARMIGAN with sour cream sauce - - - Ah, it's divine!" raves MADAME MORGENSTIERNE whose husband is Norwegian Ambassador and Dean of the Diplomatic Corps. . . . But about giving away her secret recipe for her favorite dish, the lady is as silent as the "P" in Ptarmigan.

Here's a preparation schedule to assure party-pretty looks whenever there's an important occasion!

SECRETS OF CHARM

by JOHN ROBERT POWERS

IT TAKES more than a pretty evening dress to create party-pretty looks! Like the setting of a jewel, a low decolletage displays your perfection or points up your flaws.

Of course, I know that no woman strives for anything less than perfection of her beauty on formal occasions. But, hmmm . . . what sins are committed in the name of perfection!

Mistaken Preparations

There's the overdone hair-do with "every hair in place" — yes, plastered right to the head, probably corkscrew curled and certainly styled in an exaggerated way! It's a delusion that appears only on the heads of those who have not learned that it's the natural appearance that charms.

Such disasters can and should be avoided by having your hair done in advance of the big evening in a sleek style that is becoming to you. Then, if you protect it in a net for sleeping and brush "in" the waves and curls as often as you get a chance, your coiffure will look soft, shining and as though it belongs to you — not the hairdresser.

Often the hurried and flurried look, too, is the by-product of the desire for perfection. It's sure to be yours if you try to take care of all details on the party day. Your manicure, pedicure, deoderant and depilatory activities should be completed on the previous day, and each detail of your costume checked as well.

Such thoughtful scheduling will leave you plenty of leisure for those final touches that slay the stag line. You'll have ten minutes for a fragrant, bubbly bath, followed by a complete body rub with creamy lotion. (Pay special attention to smoothing your neck, shoulders, back, arms, elbows and hands. Rub up from your fingertips until you've covered the entire surface your dress leaves exposed.) Twenty minutes now for a nap with your feet elevated and your eyes covered with cold cotton pads. Fifteen minutes to don your clothes with luxurious care.

Party Pretty

Among the greatest party-night sins committed in the name of perfection is the coating of your face with cosmetics until it resembles the dead-pan visage of a store window mannequin. There's no surer way to cancel out the beautiful effect of all your previous pains.

A natural looking make-up never results from seeing how much of the stuff you can use, but how skillfully you can use it. It takes just fifteen minutes to attain perfection this way: A sparing layer of foundation that matches your skin tones; a faint glow of rouge; a pink-tinged powder to off-set the yellow glare of night lights; a clear, bright lipstick (not purply); a whisk of eyeshadow and a flick of mascara; an eyebrow brush and hair brush grooming.

By AUSTINE

WASHINGTON

WE'VE GOT THE White House and Truman's piano. . . . We've got Dean Acheson, the Mellon Gallery and the original Constitution. . . . We've got Frank G. Ashbrook.

He's also one-of-a-kind in the world.

AUSTINE

Prim, neat and almost sixty, you would not think he could look at a bear, let alone eat one . . . But he has eaten almost everything that crawls, hops, runs or swims on the North American Continent . . . And lived to tell about it. And loves to tell about it . . . A fast and long-winded talker, Ashbrook peppers his sentences with cusswords.

He can give you what he claims is an excellent recipe for Armadillo Sausages, for Beaver Barbecued or Fricasseed for a Ragout of Raccoon, or Filet of Whale.

As head of Wild Fur Animal Investigation of the Fish and Wildlife Service of the Department of Interior, he knows all about cooking and eating wild animals.

If you turn up your nose and toes at his Armadillo Sausage, he sneers, "There is no accounting for the average American's timidity. Day after day, year after year, he will travel the tiresome trail of meat, gravy and potatoes."

"How did YOU ever get out of the rut and off the beaten trail? I asked him.

"My father had been telling me for a long time that I was missing a lot by not eating different foods. I wouldn't touch calves brains, vinaigrette, or oysters, for instance. When I got to college I HAD to eat a lot of things I didn't like. I think it must have been in college that I made up my mind I was going to try anything and everything."

"But, Mr. Ashbrook," I argued, "even if I wanted a Ragout of Raccoon, which let it be clearly understood right now I don't, there are few restaurants, if any, where it's on the menu."

"There are fewer and fewer good restaurants left," he admitted.

"The eating habits of the American people are disgraceful," he lectured. "Why, for lunch they go in the nearest drugstore and gulp down the darndest looking sandwich you ever saw. Even doctors don't practice what they preach. They nibble peanut butter crackers all the time. They have to smoke between each course. Can't understand that smoking ruins their sense of taste. Fine cooking isn't appreciated any more. That's one of the reasons Washington has lost so many of its fine restaurants. They can't compete with drugstores."

To prove how miserably we dine, Mr. Ashbrook exhibits a menu of the Gay Nineties. It includes Turkey a la Toulouse, Saddle of Venison with Currant Jelly, and Terrapin a la Maryland, Canvasback Duck, Pheasant, Partridge and Grouse. . . . Accompanied by ten vegetables, dessert and coffee. . . . He doesn't advocate a return to the lax game laws of the Gay Nineties, but urges us to learn that wild birds and animals, hunted in season in our fields, streams and forests, can provide delicious vitamin-rich food, easily prepared, cooked and digested. . . . Game meat is healthful and savory and yet many American families have never tasted it.

In the Ashbrook family he does all the cooking. . . . And his wife, a teacher of dramatics and arts at a nearby Junior College, is a wonderful audience.

One of their favorite recipes is Buffalo Stew. "I always cut it up in chunks, brown it in the pan with onions before adding it to the stew. I never use water in a stew. Tomato puree or tomato juice. It's a dish fit for the gods."

Famous Folks' Favorite Foods

Conducting a private poll from dinner table to dinner table, I find steak and potatoes are far from the favorites in the Capital:

ATTORNEY GENERAL'S WIFE, MRS. J. HOWARD McGRATH: likes (better than anything else in the world) a French Meat Pie, recipe inherited from her grandmother. . . . Ingredients fresh ham, potatoes and sherry.

SENATOR BERT MILLER of Idaho, 79 years old, says his favorite food is Mountain Trout with Bacon. . . . Most Senators from Idaho, when asked their favorite foods, chant "Why, Baked Idaho Potatoes, of course!" But Miller has lived long enough to stand on his convictions.

MRS. STYLES BRIDGES would walk a mile for "Lobster broiled with seaweed." "Gives it that old briny flavor!"

ITALIAN AMBASSADOR TARCHIANI, though he has lived and traveled in America for years, still goes into ecstacy over green noodles covered with fresh-made sauce of meat or mushrooms and pounds of fresh grated Parmesan cheese.

"PTARMIGAN with sour cream sauce - - - Ah, it's divine!" raves MADAME MORGENSTIERNE whose husband is Norwegian Ambassador and Dean of the Diplomatic Corps. . . . But about giving away her secret recipe for her favorite dish, the lady is as silent as the "P" in Ptarmigan.

Here's a preparation schedule to assure party-pretty looks whenever there's an important occasion!

SECRETS OF CHARM

by JOHN ROBERT POWERS

IT TAKES more than a pretty evening dress to create party-pretty looks! Like the setting of a jewel, a low decolletage displays your perfection or points up your flaws.

Of course, I know that no woman strives for anything less than perfection of her beauty on formal occasions. But, hmmm . . . what sins are committed in the name of perfection!

Mistaken Preparations

There's the overdone hair-do with "every hair in place" — yes, plastered right to the head, probably corkscrew curled and certainly styled in an exaggerated way! It's a delusion that appears only on the heads of those who have not learned that it's the natural appearance that charms.

Such disasters can and should be avoided by having your hair done in advance of the big evening in a sleek style that is becoming to you. Then, if you protect it in a net for sleeping and brush "in" the waves and curls as often as you get a chance, your coiffure will look soft, shining and as though it belongs to you — not the hairdresser.

Often the hurried and flurried look, too, is the by-product of the desire for perfection. It's sure to be yours if you try to take care of all details on the party day. Your manicure, pedicure, deodorant and depilatory activities should be completed on the previous day, and each detail of your costume checked as well.

Such thoughtful scheduling will leave you plenty of leisure for those final touches that slay the stag line. You'll have ten minutes for a fragrant, bubbly bath, followed by a complete body rub with creamy lotion. (Pay special attention to smoothing your neck, shoulders, back, arms, elbows and hands. Rub up from your fingertips until you've covered the entire surface your dress leaves exposed.) Twenty minutes now for a nap with your feet elevated and your eyes covered with cold cotton pads. Fifteen minutes to don your clothes with luxurious care.

Party Pretty

Among the greatest party-night sins committed in the name of perfection is the coating of your face with cosmetics until it resembles the dead-pan visage of a store window mannequin. There's no surer way to cancel out the beautiful effect of all your previous pains.

A natural looking make-up never results from seeing how much of the stuff you can use, but how skillfully you can use it. It takes just fifteen minutes to attain perfection this way: A sparing layer of foundation that matches your skin tones; a faint glow of rouge; a pink-tinged powder to off-set the yellow glare of night lights; a clear, bright lipstick (not purply); a whisk of eyeshadow and a flick of mascara; an eyebrow brush and hair brush grooming.

Theater Ready For Longest Run

By CHARLES E. WHITING

LONDON — (AP) — The Old Vic Theater, closed by German bombs nine year ago, is re-opening its doors in November for the longest season in its history.

Its shabbiness has been covered by fresh paint. The new stage has automatic controls. The old temperance tradition has been wiped out with the installation of cocktail bars.

But to Londoners it will be the same Old Vic—the closest approach to a national theater in Britain.

Well outside the fashionable precincts of the West End theater district, the squat brick building in Waterloo road on the south side of the Thames is the home of the star-studded Old Vic company.

Built in 1812 as the Royal Coburg Theater, it was a music hall of ill repute when Lillian Baylis took it over during the First World War and transformed it into a home of Shakespeare and the opera.

All the famous names of the British theater trod her boards during the next quarter century—Lawrence Olivier, Ralph Richardson, John Gielgud, Edith Evans, Dame Sybil Thorndike, and Charles Laughton, to mention a few.

A German land mine smashed the Old Vic's roof in May, 1941, and since then the stage has been darkened. Part of the building has been used, however, as a theater school by the new Vic theater company. It has attracted many students from America.

Reconstruction work now has been completed at a cost of 50,000 pounds ($140,000). Many of the theater's Victorian appointments have been retained.

The narrow benches in the gallery have been kept. They will seat 400 persons at one shilling sixpence (21 cents) per head.

Miss Peggy Ashcroft of the Shakespeare Memorial Theater Company at Stratford-on-Avon, is joining the Old Vic company for its ten-month season. Others in the company include Roger Livesey, Alec Clunes, Ursula Jeans and Robert Eddison.

The company will open with Shakespeare's "Twelfth Night," followed by others of the bard's works; Tchekov's "The Wedding," and Ben Jonson's "Bartholomew Fair."

Benefit Dance To Be Held Tomorrow

A dance for the benefit of the Kiddies Christmas party will be held tomorrow evening at Ali Ghan City Club, sponsored by the Ali Ghan Band. Dancing will be from 9 until 1 o'clock with the Ali Ghaneers playing. An old fashioned cake walk will feature the evening with entertainment during the intermission.

Theater Ready For Longest Run

By CHARLES E. WHITING

LONDON — (AP) — The Old Vic Theater, closed by German bombs nine year ago, is re-opening its doors in November for the longest season in its history.

Its shabbiness has been covered by fresh paint. The new stage has automatic controls. The old temperance tradition has been wiped out with the installation of cocktail bars.

But to Londoners it will be the same Old Vic—the closest approach to a national theater in Britain.

Well outside the fashionable precincts of the West End theater district, the squat brick building in Waterloo road on the south side of the Thames is the home of the star-studded Old Vic company.

Built in 1812 as the Royal Coburg Theater, it was a music hall of ill repute when Lillian Baylis took it over during the First World War and transformed it into a home of Shakespeare and the opera.

All the famous names of the British theater trod her boards during the next quarter century—Lawrence Olivier, Ralph Richardson, John Gielgud, Edith Evans, Dame Sybil Thorndike, and Charles Laughton, to mention a few.

A German land mine smashed the Old Vic's roof in May, 1941, and since then the stage has been darkened. Part of the building has been used, however, as a theater school by the new Vic theater company. It has attracted many students from America.

Reconstruction work now has been completed at a cost of 50,000 pounds ($140,000). Many of the theater's Victorian appointments have been retained.

The narrow benches in the gallery have been kept. They will seat 400 persons at one shilling sixpence (21 cents) per head.

Miss Peggy Ashcroft of the Shakespeare Memorial Theater Company at Stratford-on-Avon, is joining the Old Vic company for its ten-month season. Others in the company include Roger Livesey, Alec Clunes, Ursula Jeans and Robert Eddison.

The company will open with Shakespeare's "Twelfth Night," followed by others of the bard's works; Tchekov's "The Wedding," and Ben Jonson's "Bartholomew Fair."

Benefit Dance To Be Held Tomorrow

Commerce Department To Be Proposed For Md.

The special Commission on Unemployment and Relief of Maryland's employment security system will recommend that the State have a Department of Commerce to induce industries to locate within it borders, according to William H. Mahaney, chief of the system.

Mahaney said another step toward bolstering employment in Western Maryland is a survey the State Planning Commission is now making of recreation possibilities and development of natural resources.

Establishment of the Department of Commerce would follow along the lines of a suggestion made at a public hearing here by David Kauffman, chairman of the Steering Committee For Economic Development. At that time, Kauffman listed as one of his 13 points for state aid to jobless areas, the setting up of a separate bureau of economic or industrial development within the Maryland State Planning Commission.

John B. Funk, state engineer, said yesterday the private organization making the Planning Commission survey will have completed the preliminary phases by the middle of this month and have a report ready for the January session of the General Assembly.

Mahaney's special Unemployment and Relief Commission was set up by a resolution passed in the 1950 general assembly. It's final recommendations are now being drafted for submission to Governor Lane.

The employment commissioner said the situation in Western Maryland is not as critical now as it was when the legislature acted. Many still are jobless, however, because mines have been shut down and some industries have laid off workers.

The commission visited Cumberland and Oakland in September, went through some of the large industrial plants, and conferred with business leaders.

Engineer To Review Plans For District

A State Department of Health engineer will be here next week to review preliminary plans for a Georges Creek sanitary district, according to a letter from George H. Hall, state sanitary engineer, to the Allegany County Metropolitan Sanitary Commission.

Hall said Peter C. Dodge, health department engineer, will assist the commission in reviewing engineering material received from Whitman, Requardt, and Associates, Baltimore engineering firm.

At Westernport, it is planned that a sewage disposal plant, accommodating the trunk line, will be built.

The commission also received a letter from Governor W. Preston Lane acknowledging the county group's request for investigating the possibility of obtaining aid for the creation of an overall sanitary district for the creek region.

Governor Lane informed the commission that he has referred the letter to John B. Funk, chief engineer of the state, for investigation.

Another communication was received from Rep. J. Glenn Beall in which he stated that he was well aware of the sanitary conditions in Georges Creek.

The Frostburg representative asked the board for a conference in the next week or two to discuss the possibilities of obtaining funds from various sources.

Horace P. Whitworth, Jr., chairman of the Allegany County delegation to the General Assembly, also requested a conference next week for the furtherance of this plan.

The first woman newspaper syndicated daily numorist in the United States was Helen Rowland of the New York World in 1908.

Gen. Douglas MacArthur's father also was Army chief of staff.

Today, as always, you can buy Coca-Cola for 5¢ a bottle, 25¢ a carton and $1.00 a case. Our dealers can still sell Coke for these prices because our wholesale price has remained unchanged year after year.

Our production and distribution costs, like those of everyone else, have greatly increased over the last decade. Through your ever-increasing patronage, however, our sales volume has grown tremendously, too. The economies that result from this large volume of business are the main reason why we can still maintain our customary wholesale price.

We hope that you will continue to choose Coca-Cola as your favorite refreshment. And we hope that you will always be able to buy a bottle of Coke for 5¢.

A WORD TO OUR DEALERS:

Through wars, booms and depressions, your experience and ours has proven that sales and profits of soft drinks are highest when they are sold for the traditional prices of 5¢ a bottle, 25¢ a carton and $1.00 a case. To enable you to continue selling Coca-Cola at these prices, we are making no increase in the price you pay for Coke.

Palmer Has One-Stroke Lead In N-S

Three Aces Scored In Pro Golf Tourney

PINEHURST, N. C., Nov. 1 (AP)—Johnny Palmer clung to his North and South Open golf tournament lead at the halfway mark today, but his margin was halved to a single stroke.

While the Badin, N. C., tournament circuit regular was posting a two-under par 70 for a 135 total after his record 65 of yesterday, Jim Ferrier of San Francisco carded a 69. This, added to his 67 of yesterday, elevated him from a five-way tie for second place into sole ownership of the position.

In third place after 67 today for 137, two strokes back of Palmer, was 42-year-old Mike Turnesa, White Plains, N. Y., professional, who authorized one of the day's three holes in one to shoot up into contention.

Fouth place was held at 139 by four players—defending champion Sam Snead of White Sulphur Springs, W. Va.; Toledo, Ohio, amateur Frank Stranahan and professionals Chuck Klein of San Antonio, Texas, and George Fazio, of Washington.

Turnesa made his on the 156-yard ninth shortly after Steve Doctor, Kane, Pa., pro had turned the trick on the same hole. Doctor could manage no better than 152 for the day, however, and his 152 total did not qualify for the third round.

The other ace came on the 186-yard, well-trapped 17th where Harry Dee, assistant to Claude Harmon at the Winged Foot Club in Mamaroneck, N. Y., bagged one for a 69 for the day and a 141 total.

Tokyo Greets Stars

TOKYO, Thursday, Nov. 2 (AP)—Baseball's great Joe DiMaggio and Frank "Lefty" O'Doul, manager of the San Francisco Seals, were showered with bouquets of flowers last night when they arrived by plane from the United States.

Gaels Cop Third 32-0, AHS Loses

SS. Peter and Paul and St. Mary's copped victories in the Knights of Columbus-sponsored Catholic Youth Football League yesterday in games played at Campobello and Penn Avenue.

St. Pete's romped to an easy 51-7 triumph over the Little Campers of Allegany High for its second win in three starts while St. Mary's Gaels blanked St. Patrick's 32-0 for their third straight victory. St. Patrick's and Allegany have yet to win a game in the four-club loop, losing twice each.

John Blake sparked the Flying Dutchmen of SS. Peter and Paul by completing 11 of 13 passes and scoring twice himself while intercepting two Alco passes. The Dutchmen racked up five touchdowns and a safety in the first half to lead 37-0 over the Little Campers at halftime. A 10-yard pass from the quarterback to an end resulted in Allegany's only score.

St. Mary's Flying Gaels racked up touchdowns the first three times they got possession of the ball and led 20-0 at the half in the Penn Avenue game.

St. Patrick's threatened only once, a long pass taking the ball deep into Gaels' territory but time ran out at intermission and the losers failed to score.

Saturday St. Patrick's will play Allegany while SS. Peter and Paul meets St. Mary's. Both games will be played at Campobello.

Comets To Practice

The Cumberland Comets, semi-pro football team, will hold a three-hour session today at Penn Avenue field, beginning at 5 p. m. The session will be in preparation for Sunday's game with Johnstown at the Penn Avenue field. Game time will be 3:15 p. m.

Appling Ends Major League Career, Signs To Manage Memphis

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Nov. 1 (AP) — The dean of American League shortstops, Luke Appling, dropped off the Chicago White Sox roster today to sign up as manager of the Memphis Chicks.

Thus Appling, at 41, ended a 20-year record breaking career as a big league player to move into the brain trust section of the Class AA Southern Association.

He said: "I can't think of a better place to start managing than in Memphis." Memphis is one of the Sox farm clubs.

Allegany Preps For Intra-City Grid Clash With LaSalle Eleven

Campers Weakened By Player Injuries; Fort Hill On Road

The second intra - gridiron clash of the season is on tap Friday night in the Fort Hill stadium when Allegany High's Campers tangle with its LaSalle High Explorers under the arcs at 8 o'clock.

Coach Phil Carolan's Blue and Gold Explorers will be seeking their first win of the current campaign, having lost six straight including a 46-6 defeat at the hands of the defending city champs, Fort Hill.

Campers Are Favored

The Campers, under the direction of Coach Bob Pence, will be heavily favored to make it seven victories in eight starts for the Alco squad, but Mentor Pence has a note of worry in his voice as he laments upon the injuries and bruises suffered by his team in their 19-13 win over Martinsburg (W. Va.) High last week.

To date two of the Allegany backfield stars are not being counted upon to play in the fray with both Fullback Bob Anderson and Halfback Charles Eirich sidelined with injuries. They will be replaced by Dick Widdows, who is still nursing a bad shoulder, and Bob Hook or Ray Easton. Left end Joe Hager also is not counted upon for duty. Pence revealed last night, and John Eversole is expected to take his place.

The Campers have not scrimmaged with a full first team this week, Pence stated, as they prep for the important resume of an old rivalry.

Officials Are Listed

Officials for the game will be Gordon Eismon, Charles Town, W. Va., Ken Rentch, Shepherdstown, W. Va., and Joe Campbell, Hagerstown, Pence reported.

The undefeated Fort Hill Sentinels, other team in the three-cornered race for the city diadem, will be on the road this week as the Scarlet and White eleven travels to Wheeling, W. Va., to battle Linsly Institute Saturday afternoon. Linsly has a six and two record while Fort Hill has copped seven in a row this season and 16 straight over a two-year span.

Friday's football slate is comparatively light this week with only four other scholastic tilts listed in addition to the AHS-LaSalle fracas.

Romney At Petersburg

Palmer Has One-Stroke Lead In N-S

Three Aces Scored In Pro Golf Tourney

PINEHURST, N. C., Nov. 1 (AP)—Johnny Palmer clung to his North and South Open golf tournament lead at the halfway mark today, but his margin was halved to a single stroke.

While the Badin, N. C., tournament circuit regular was posting a two-under par 70 for a 135 total after his record 65 of yesterday, Jim Ferrier of San Francisco carded a 69. This, added to his 67 of yesterday, elevated him from a five-way tie for second place into sole ownership of the position.

In third place after 67 today for 137, two strokes back of Palmer, was 42-year-old Mike Turnesa, White Plains, N. Y., professional, who authorized one of the day's three holes in one to shoot up into contention.

Fouth place was held at 139 by four players—defending champion Sam Snead of White Sulphur Springs, W. Va.; Toledo, Ohio, amateur Frank Stranahan and professionals Chuck Klein of San Antonio, Texas, and George Fazio, of Washington.

Turnesa made his on the 156-yard ninth shortly after Steve Doctor, Kane, Pa., pro had turned the trick on the same hole. Doctor could manage no better than 152 for the day, however, and his 152 total did not qualify for the third round.

The other ace came on the 186-yard, well-trapped 17th where Harry Dee, assistant to Claude Harmon at the Winged Foot Club in Mamaroneck, N. Y., bagged one for a 69 for the day and a 141 total.

SS. Peter-Paul, St. Mary's Win K Of C Youth Loop Football Games

Gaels Cop Third 32-0, AHS Loses

SS. Peter and Paul and St. Mary's copped victories in the Knights of Columbus-sponsored Catholic Youth Football League yesterday in games played at Campobello and Penn Avenue.

St. Pete's romped to an easy 51-7 triumph over the Little Campers of Allegany High for its second win in three starts while St. Mary's Gaels blanked St. Patrick's 32-0 for their third straight victory. St. Patrick's and Allegany have yet to win a game in the four-club loop, losing twice each.

John Blake sparked the Flying Dutchmen of SS. Peter and Paul by completing 11 of 13 passes and scoring twice himself while intercepting two Alco passes. The Dutchmen racked up five touchdowns and a safety in the first half to lead 37-0 over the Little Campers at halftime. A 10-yard pass from the quarterback to an end resulted in Allegany's only score.

St. Mary's Flying Gaels racked up touchdowns the first three times they got possession of the ball and led 20-0 at the half in the Penn Avenue game.

St. Patrick's threatened only once, a long pass taking the ball deep into Gaels' territory but time ran out at intermission and the losers failed to score.

Saturday St. Patrick's will play Allegany while SS. Peter and Paul meets St. Mary's. Both games will be played at Campobello.

The second intra - gridiron clash of the season is on tap Friday night in the Fort Hill stadium when Allegany High's Campers tangle with its LaSalle High Explorers under the arcs at 8 o'clock.

Coach Phil Carolan's Blue and Gold Explorers will be seeking their first win of the current campaign, having lost six straight including a 46-6 defeat at the hands of the defending city champs, Fort Hill.

BLACKSBURG, Va., Nov. 1 (AP)—No selection for the post of head football coach at Virginia Tech will be made until the end of the 1950 grid season, Athletic Director W. L. Younger said today.

Bagnell Sets Pass Interception Record

NEW YORK, Nov. 1 (AP) — Francis (Reds) Bagnell, Pennsylvania's All-America backfield candidate, set another national record — passes without interceptions — over the weekend, a statistical checkup showed today.

The Quaker tailback and captain completed nine of 19 passes against Navy Saturday for a total of 47 completions in 87 throws for the year. Not one of his heaves has been bagged by an opposing player. The 87 throws without an interception broke the mark of 85 set by Tobin Rote of Rice last season.

Auntie Cops 4th Straight Win At Salem

Scores 8th Victory As Rockingham Closes

SALEM, N. H., Nov. 1 (AP)—S. S. Barrett's Auntie scored her fourth consecutive triumph and her eighth of the season in the Au Revoir handicap, headline attraction of the closing day program at Rockingham Park, before 10,678 today.

An eighth of a mile from home Auntie withstood the stern challenge of the Circle A Stable's Roy to rule by a length and a half. Duke's Gal was third, just a nose off Roy. Auntie's win was her 12th finish in the money in 17 starts and increased her earnings for the season to $15,975. Her time for the mile and a sixteenth was 1:46, prices were: Auntie $8.20, $4.60 and $3.40, Roy $4.20 and $2.80 and Dukes Gal $3.00.

Sidney Bernstein's Jeep Gypsy accounted for the Gene Autrey purse, the secondary feature in honor of the rodeo star, who served as an honorary steward.

Uncle Miltie Wins

JAMAICA, N. Y., Nov. 1 (AP)—Toting his top weight of 126 pounds, four over scale, like a feather, J. J. Colando's Uncle Miltie scored a resounding triumph today in the 39th edition of the Wakefield Handicap, a $15,000 added affair for 2-year-olds, stepping the mile and a sixteenth in the excellent time of 1:43 4-5.

The son of Heather Broom-Twink-Mo, bred by his Maywood, N. J., owner, won by five lengths. Brookmeade Stable's Oats was second by a length over Sam E. Wilson, Jr.'s Royal Mustang, who finished a neck to the good of his stablemate, Ralph Lowe's Pictus.

Well back in the early running, Uncle Miltie was set down at the five eighths pole by Jockey Hedley Woodhouse and quickly forged to the lead, taking over outside the eighth pole to win in a gallop.

Hot Is Winner

LAUREL, Md., Nov. 1 (AP)—Rigan McKinney's Hot ran away with the 32nd renewal of the $7,500 added Chevy Chase steeplechase here today scoring by five lengths.

Mill River Stable's Monkey Wrench rallied mildly to take the place two lengths ahead of Trough Hill which won a photo for third from Semper Eadem.

The winner, ridden by Frank D. Adams, paid $5.80 straight but $6.20 second and $2.20 third.

Helis Colt Scores

CAMDEN, N. J., Nov. 1 (AP)—Ennobled, current star of the barns of the estate of William G. Helis, romped home to a hollow victory by seven lengths in the featured Pine Valley Purse at Garden State Park this afternoon.

It was the third win in four outings at the current meeting for the Helis headliner and gave Joe Culmone, engaged in a tight duel for national riding honors with the West Coast's Willie Shoemaker, his first victory of the day.

Auntie Cops 4th Straight Win At Salem

Scores 8th Victory As Rockingham Closes

SALEM, N. H., Nov. 1 (AP)—S. S. Barrett's Auntie scored her fourth consecutive triumph and her eighth of the season in the Au Revoir handicap, headline attraction of the closing day program at Rockingham Park, before 10,678 today.

An eighth of a mile from home Auntie withstood the stern challenge of the Circle A Stable's Roy to rule by a length and a half. Duke's Gal was third, just a nose off Roy. Auntie's win was her 12th finish in the money in 17 starts and increased her earnings for the season to $15,975. Her time for the mile and a sixteenth was 1:46, prices were: Auntie $8.20, $4.60 and $3.40, Roy $4.20 and $2.80 and Dukes Gal $3.00.

Sidney Bernstein's Jeep Gypsy accounted for the Gene Autrey purse, the secondary feature in honor of the rodeo star, who served as an honorary steward.

Uncle Miltie Wins

JAMAICA, N. Y., Nov. 1 (AP)—Toting his top weight of 126 pounds, four over scale, like a feather, J. J. Colando's Uncle Miltie scored a resounding triumph today in the 39th edition of the Wakefield Handicap, a $15,000 added affair for 2-year-olds, stepping the mile and a sixteenth in the excellent time of 1:43 4-5.

The son of Heather Broom-Twink-Mo, bred by his Maywood, N. J., owner, won by five lengths. Brookmeade Stable's Oats was second by a length over Sam E. Wilson, Jr.'s Royal Mustang, who finished a neck to the good of his stablemate, Ralph Lowe's Pictus.

Well back in the early running, Uncle Miltie was set down at the five eighths pole by Jockey Hedley Woodhouse and quickly forged to the lead, taking over outside the eighth pole to win in a gallop.

Hot Is Winner

LAUREL, Md., Nov. 1 (AP)—Rigan McKinney's Hot ran away with the 32nd renewal of the $7,500 added Chevy Chase steeplechase here today scoring by five lengths.

Mill River Stable's Monkey Wrench rallied mildly to take the place two lengths ahead of Trough Hill which won a photo for third from Semper Eadem.

The winner, ridden by Frank D. Adams, paid $5.80 straight but $6.20 second and $2.20 third.

Helis Colt Scores

CAMDEN, N. J., Nov. 1 (AP)—Ennobled, current star of the barns of the estate of William G. Helis, romped home to a hollow victory by seven lengths in the featured Pine Valley Purse at Garden State Park this afternoon.

It was the third win in four outings at the current meeting for the Helis headliner and gave Joe Culmone, engaged in a tight duel for national riding honors with the West Coast's Willie Shoemaker, his first victory of the day.

AP Wirephoto Highlights Assassination Attempt

WASHINGTON, Nov. 1 (AP) — Three American presidents have been killed by assassins' bullets.

In addition to the fatal assaults on Presidents Lincoln, Garfield and McKinley, armed attacks were made on former President Theodore Roosevelt and on President-elect Franklin D. Roosevelt.

Abraham Lincoln was fatally wounded April 14, 1865, by Actor John Wilkes Booth as he watched a performance at Ford's Theater in Washington. Booth was tracked down and slain by soldiers.

James A. Garfield was wounded in Washington July 2, 1881, by a disappointed office seeker named Charles J. Guiteau. Garfield lingered until Sept. 19. Guiteau was hanged.

William McKinley was wounded in Buffalo, N. Y. Sept. 6, 1901 by Leon Czolgosz. McKinley died Sept. 14, and the demented Czolgosz was executed.

Theodore Roosevelt was shot by a maniac in Milwaukee, Wis. Oct. 14, 1912, while he was campaigning for a comeback to the presidency. His wound was only slight and he went on with a scheduled speech before going to a hospital for treatment an hour and a half later.

President-elect Franklin D. Roosevelt was the target of Anarchist Guiseppi Zangara at Miami, Fla. Feb. 15, 1933. The bullet struck Mayor Anton J. Cermak of Chicago instead because a woman siezed Zangara's arm as he fired. Cermak died March 6. Zangara was electrocuted.

SCENE OF ATTEMPTED ASSASSINATION—Dotted lines show the approximate paths of approach of two Puerto Rican revolutionaries who attempted to asassinate President Truman at Blair House yesterday. One gunman, Griselio Torresola, who was approaching from the west (1), was killed by police gunfire about 30 feet from the Blair House entrance. The wounded gunman, Oscar Collazzo, approached from the east (2).

WOUNDED GUARD MOVED FROM SHOOTING SCENE—Pvt. Leslie Coffelt, one of three White House guards wounded in a gun battle in front of Blair House, is moved from the shooting scene on an ambulance stretcher. He died several hours later.

BULLET STRIKES BLAIR HOUSE DOOR—A reporter, Joseph Short of the Baltimore Sun, examines a bullet imbedded in a basement door of Blair House, President Truman's residence, following yesterday's gun battle.

GUARD FELLED—Two men bend over a White House guard shot down yesterday in a gun battle in front of Blair House, President Truman's residence. Three guards were wounded, one fatally.

TELLS OF SHOOTING—Miss M. E. Hayes (foreground), Arlington, Va., tells co-workers her version of the Blair House gun battle. She was riding in a taxi caught in the firing. Miss Hayes said shots "seemed to be coming from all over."

FENCE HIT BY BULLET—Reporters examine the broken tip of an iron fence in front of Blair House. The fence was hit by a bullet during a gun battle between White House guards and two men attempting to assassinate President Truman.

By LOUELLA PARSONS

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 1 (INS)—Angela Lansbury is flying 6,000 miles to get to Hollywood in time to play a heavy in "Kind Lady" — the type of role that first brought her to MGM. She has been in London for months with her husband, Peter Shaw, and had parted company with this studio at the time she went abroad. But the chance to play with Ethel Barrymore and Maurice Evans decided her to return.

She has to be here by the middle of the month to report to Armand Deutsch. She'll play a conspirator with Maurice's Evans in an attempt on Ethel Barrymore's life.

Maurice told me, "Isn't it awful that in my first picture I have to try to kill the actress I most admire —Ethel Barrymore."

•—•—•

"How young are you feeling today?" Mary Astor asked me over the telephone.

"What's the matter, are you going to be a grandmother?" I replied.

"You guessed it," she said, "Marilyn is going to have a baby in April, and she said, 'Call Louella right away'! She and her young husband, Frank Roh are so happy that it makes me happy just to see them."

Then we started reminiscing, and it seemed only yesterday that I had helped Jesse Lasky re-name Lucille Langhanke, Mary Astor. Well, if the baby is a daughter, and she looks like her grandmother, she'll be a beauty.

Chatter in Hollywood: When I met Humphrey Bogart at luncheon he was frankly worried over Harry Zaharias, the man who hid in the hills near their home in an attempt to talk to Lauren Bacall.

"I want him put in jail and kept there," said Bogey. "I don't think he should be allowed out. He was in the hills for three days with an axe, and when he talked with my butler he said, 'Well, I don't know of any better way to get publicity.'

"I am not going to have Betty frightened to death, and I am not going to run the chance of having anything happen to her or our baby."

The very excitable Mrs. Arch Oboler, who can floor a co-worker with a roundhouse as aptly as his writing can leave an audience stunned, has just completed the first motion picture about the atomic age.

Arch, who assumed the triple threat job of writing, directing and editing the film, went about it very quietly at his Malibu Hills ranch, with Susan Douglas (of "Lost Boundaries" fame) and William Phipps co-starring.

Oboler provided all the necessary cash to make the picture, which he says concerns the last five people on earth who survive a mythical atomic war waged by a not-so-mythical foreign enemy of the United States.

Snapshots of Hollywood collected at random:

Loretta Young and Tom Lewis are guests of George Gallup at Princeton. Well, maybe they can get him to tell them how he arrives at his poll results, some of which are good and some of which aren't worth five cents—merely a personal opinion.

Poor Anna Roosevelt, who has been so ill for so many months, was telephoned the news of the suicide

Maj. General Russell P. Hartle

Our nation needs men of Major General Hartle's integrity, matured judgment and leadership, writes General Douglas MacArthur from far off Tokyo.

"Your candidacy is good news," says the Supreme Commander of the U. N. forces in the Far East. "Our country needs men of such sound balance, wide experience and proven integrity at this critical period in our existence."

From San Antonio, Texas, General Walter Krueger, another famed leader of World War II, writes: "We need men like you in war and peace and I wish you every success in the coming election."

A vote for Hartle on November 7 will be a vote for effective leadership and accomplishment.

"The Authority on Authorities"

NOT A GRANDSTAND PLAY

SOME bridge enthusiasts, who do not understand the mechanics of the so-called "Vienna coup," consider it a "grandstand play" which is not necessary at all to successful operation of a squeeze, but merely for the sake of showing off. They feel that, when the declarer deliberately scores the top card of some suit, establishing the next card for the defender who holds it, the big idea is to impress his opponents with his brilliancy. The top card play, however, is absolutely necessary to the operation of many such plays, as otherwise the declarer would black himself from one of his winning cards.

Both tables of a team match furnished that bidding, and in each case West led the spade 3. East scoring three rapid tricks in the suit and returning the club Q to the K. Both Souths then tried to execute a squeeze for the final trick, one of them succeeding and one failing.

The unsuccessful declarer followed the club K trick with a direct run of all his hearts. When he led the last, he also retained the diamond J-5 and club 8, with the dummy holding the diamond A-Q and club A-10. East had kept the diamond K-10 and club J-9. South on the final heart discarded the dummy's diamond Q and East the diamond 10. The diamond 5 to the A then felled the K, establishing the J for South. But he could not use it, as he had no re-entry. So he scored the club A and then had to give up the setting trick with the club 10 to the J.

The other South used foresight. He planned ahead the cards he wanted to have left in his own hand and the dummy. To produce that situation, he followed the club K trick with the diamond A, establishing East's K. Then he ran hearts. As he led the last, he also held the diamond J and club 8, and dummy the diamond Q and club A-10. East had to pare down to the diamond K and club J-9. When South then discarded the diamond Q on the last heart, East was helpless. If he shed his diamond K, the jack and the club 8 to the A would get the last two tricks. But his club 9 discard was just as bad, as it enabled the 8 to the A to fell his J and the 10 then took the final trick.

How should declarer classify this hand, played at 4-Hearts, when he sees the club K lead?

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

By Shepard Barclay

NOT A GRANDSTAND PLAY

SOME bridge enthusiasts, who do not understand the mechanics of the so-called "Vienna coup," consider it a "grandstand play" which is not necessary at all to successful operation of a squeeze, but merely for the sake of showing off. They feel that, when the declarer deliberately scores the top card of some suit, establishing the next card for the defender who holds it, the big idea is to impress his opponents with his brilliancy. The top card play, however, is absolutely necessary to the operation of many such plays, as otherwise the declarer would black himself from one of his winning cards.

(Dealer: North. Both sides vulnerable.)

| North | East | South | West |
|---|---|---|---|
| 1 ♦ | Dbl | 4 ♥ | |

Both tables of a team match furnished that bidding, and in each case West led the spade 3. East scoring three rapid tricks in the suit and returning the club Q to the K. Both Souths then tried to execute a squeeze for the final trick, one of them succeeding and one failing.

The unsuccessful declarer followed the club K trick with a direct run of all his hearts. When he led the last, he also retained the diamond J-5 and club 8, with the dummy holding the diamond A-Q and club A-10. East had kept the diamond K-10 and club J-9. South on the final heart discarded the dummy's diamond Q and East the diamond 10. The diamond 5 to the A then felled the K, establishing the J for South. But he could not use it, as he had no re-entry. So he scored the club A and then had to give up the setting trick with the club 10 to the J.

The other South used foresight. He planned ahead the cards he wanted to have left in his own hand and the dummy. To produce that situation, he followed the club K trick with the diamond A, establishing East's K. Then he ran hearts. As he led the last, he also held the diamond J and club 8, and dummy the diamond Q and club A-10. East had to pare down to the diamond K and club J-9. When South then discarded the diamond Q on the last heart, East was helpless. If he shed his diamond K, the jack and the club 8 to the A would get the last two tricks. But his club 9 discard was just as bad, as it enabled the 8 to the A to fell his J and the 10 then took the final trick.

(Dealer: South. East-West vulnerable.)

How should declarer classify this hand, played at 4-Hearts, when he sees the club K lead?

Curtiss-Wright, the most active issue, advanced 50 cents to $10.50 a share on sales of 58,100 shares.

TV shares closed uniformly higher, gains ranging to around $1 a share.

Also up were Consolidated Edison, N. Y. Central, Douglas Aircraft, Lockheed, American Telephone, Air-Reduction, duPont, Philip Morris, Sinclair Oil, Standard Oil (NJ), Standard Oil of California, Gulf Oil, and Jones-Manville.

Trimmed were Goodrich, Eastman Kodak, International Paper, American Tobacco, and American Woolen.

Initial Housing Project Plans Nearly Ready

Special Meeting To Be Called This Week

A special meeting to approve planning work for the first phase of the Cumberland housing project is expected this week, according to James B. Raines, executive director of the Housing Authority here.

Start of the project will be the construction of 17 apartment buildings on slightly over seven acres of land in South Cumberland.

Raines said all of the 11 options necessary for acquiring property have been secured.

The 17 buildings will be two-story structures of brick and frame, each containing from six to eight apartments. They will be designed to house 125 families.

Shaw Visits Here

Shaw said he has reviewed the development program for the 125-family units and added it should be ready to send to Philadelphia within the next few days.

The Philadelphia office must review the plans and recommend them to the main PHA office in Washington. After a second review there, the plans will go to President Truman.

Altogether the local housing project is designed to furnish apartments for 300 families.

Second part of the project will be construction of apartments to house 25 families which will be located at a different site.

Survey and appraisal work already has begun for that project.

To Present Plans

William L. Wilson, Jr., chairman of the Cumberland Housing Authority, said Raines and Thomas B. Finan, attorney to the group, plan to go to Philadelphia to present the 125-unit program to the PHA field office in person.

Shaw said that architectural plans drawn by S. Russ Minter show that physical standards required by the PHA are being met.

He said rising costs are a problem in other housing projects but added he hopes to have "the complete financial picture here ironed out" before he leaves today for Philadelphia.

Raines said the development program for the South Cumberland project includes detailed data describing the site, floor plans, property acquisition and available transportation, shopping, recreational facilities and utilities.

Shaw said a combined community building and management headquarters could be constructed, or one of the apartments could be used as temporary headquarters for the manager.

A third possibility, he said, is to wait until the project is completed and build such a structure to serve the entire housing development.

Speaks From Experience

Next week is the second annual Allegany County Safety Week, and Virginia Walker (left), jumps at the opportunity to get in an advance safety warning. Virginia is reminding Ruth Shade that walking between two parked cars can be mighty dangerous. Virginia ought to know. As a 4-year-old girl she walked between two parked cars in a similar manner and was struck by a passing vehicle. Both Virginia and Ruth are sophomores at Allegany High School, where the picture was taken. Number 68, which Virginia carries, is the magic number for Allegany County Safety Week. Its meaning will be explained later.

McKeldin Terms Lane Tax-Happy

BALTIMORE, Nov. 1 (AP)—Theodore R. McKeldin tonight used words of Governor Lane's chief opponent in the Democratic primary election to emphasize his contention that Lane was tax-happy.

The Republican nominee for governor quoted George P. Mahoney as saying, "We have had at Annapolis one of the greatest spenders and taxers of all time. . ."

Then McKeldin launched into a criticism of the sales tax, an issue Mahoney used in his campaign and one McKeldin has stressed in his.

McKeldin told a radio audience "On Principle I am opposed to the sales tax as an unfair, unequal tax bearing most heavily on those least able to pay."

Then he gave his stand on what should be done:

"I am firmly committed to ending the sales tax on all purchases under 50 cents, ending the sales tax on all food wherever purchased, and ending the sales tax on all drugs, medicines, household remedies and items for the care of infants."

11 Programs Scheduled For Safety Week

County-Wide Event To Start Sunday

Plans for the second annual Allegany County Safety Week, beginning Sunday, were virtually completed at a meeting last night at the Public Safety Building, according to Lynn Walker, president of the Western Maryland Safety Council.

Eleven special programs for clubs and other safety-minded groups were arranged at last night's session, Walker said.

Highlight of the week-long program, Walker emphasized, will be the dinner meeting at Ali Ghan Shrine Country Club at 6:45 p. m. Friday, November 10.

Toastmaster at that dinner meeting will be Neil Toey, safety chairman for Celanese Local 1874, Textile Workers Union of America. Other details concerning that program will be announced later.

First of the 11 additional safety programs will feature the meeting Saturday, November 4, of United Commercial Travelers at the IOOF Hall. Another meeting will be held next Monday when the Rotary Club of Frostburg convenes.

Safety will not even take a back seat for the election as two programs have been planned for that day, next Tuesday. One of these will be at the C. and A. Gas Company shop and the other will be the Exchange Club meeting at the Shrine Club.

Wednesday, November 8, safety programs will be staged for the Potomac Valley Lions Club at Cresaptown, the Lonaconing Rotary Club and the Optimist Club, meeting at Central YMCA.

Programs planned Thursday, November 9, will benefit the Kiwanis Club, at Central YMCA; U. S. Army Engineers, at Post Office Building, and the Mt. Savage Lions Club. Finally, the Rotary Club will witness its safety program at Central YMCA Tuesday, November 14.

Food Subsidy Is Unchanged

Federal monetary aid to the nation's school lunch program remains at the $82,500,000 mark, William P. Cooper, director of the Allegany county school lunch program, reported yesterday.

He said Congress declined to raise the subsidy to $100,000,000 due to Korean War expenditures.

Cooper recently appeared before Congressional committees as legislative chairman of the School Food Service Association, representing 2,000 school lunch employes in 48 states.

Cooper said Allegany county gets $48,000 for Maryland's $585,000 quota.

Food which was purchased locally cost 25 cents, cost of the meal to the student.

Labor costs for the state averaged 10 cents per meal.

Government surplus food, supplied free to the schools, is valued at about five cents per meal.

Cooper said Allegany county's labor cost is lower than in the state, due to the fact that an average of 10,000 meals are served each day in school lunch rooms.

Registration Is At 928,000 Mark In Free State

Democrats Make Numerical Gains

[By The Associated Press]

About 928,000 Marylanders are eligible to vote in Tuesday's general election — many thousands more than have been on the registration books for any other election in Free State history.

As usual, the Democrats have better than a 5 to 2 book majority over the Republicans.

The breakdown, with close approximations for Baltimore City and Worcester county, shows 653,993 Democrats, 255,570 Republicans, and 18,425 registered as independents or members of minor parties. This makes a total of 927,988 registrants.

Democrats Gain

It shows that the Democrats have made numerical gains since the 1946 state election, and the Republicans have lost almost 9,000 registrants. The totals then were Democrats, 600,058; Republicans, 264,976; others 17,741 for a grand total of 882,775.

There were only 863,951 registered for the 1948 presidential election, including 593,397 Democrats and 248,047 Republicans.

Baltimore, Prince George's and Montgomery counties — the three big metropolitan subdivisions — showed the biggest gains over the last four years.

Baltimore county had 83,131 registrants in 1946, dropped to 82,810 in 1948, and now has surged to 116,430 eligibles.

The comparative figures for Prince George's are 45,418; 43,959 and 54,776. For Montgomery they are 46,248; 51,952 and 56,675.

Staggers' Question Will Haunt, Foe Says

ELKINS, W. Va.—A question put to the voters of the Second Congressional District by Harley O. Staggers will come back to haunt him next Tuesday if the voters honestly think out the answer to that question, Melvin C. Snyder, Republican candidate for Congress, said in a radio address here last night.

Snyder said he was joining his opponent in asking the voters, as Staggers has done in all his campaign advertising, if they were doing all right under the Truman administration.

"Are you doing all right, Mr. and Mrs. Voter," Snyder asked, "when you get 50 cents' worth of services, groceries, and clothing for your hard earned dollar? Are you doing all right when the administration of Mr. Truman's socialist program makes you work three months out of every year to pay your taxes? Are you doing all right when that administration, which Staggers supports with all his might, wants to socialize farmers, industry, medicine, and everything American?"

"Are you doing all right with a government that has taken $90 billion for defense that was not ready last summer and is not ready now? If you are a veteran of World War II and are now waiting a call that will take you away from your family, your home, and your job, are you doing all right? If you've already been called to service, or have someone in your family who has been called to do a job that was supposed to be done five years ago, and which the Truman planners erased by appeasment, are you doing all right?

Student Nurses Plan Bake Sale

Student nurses of Allegany Hospital will sponsor a bake sale to be held Saturday morning, starting at 10 o'clock, at the Pittsburgh Plate Glass Company, North Mechanic Street.

Reservists Will Get More Time Before Recall

Navy Announces New Arrangement

A new policy of giving Naval Reservists at least 30 days between call and report for active duty was disclosed here last night by Lt. Cmdr. F. A. Lewis, unit instructor, Organized Naval Reserve, here.

Cmdr. Lewis last night released a lengthy statement from Vice Admiral J. W. Roper, U. S. Navy, chief of Naval Personnel, Department of the Navy, concerning the planned Naval Reserve recall and release program.

This statement stressed that the 30-day policy between call and report for active duty will be "implemented immediately." By next July, it is hoped to institute a program whereby reservists will receive at least four months notice of recall.

Admiral Roper stated that for the foreseeable future it will be necessary for the Navy to continue the recall of Reserve personnel, officer and enlisted. The principal factor determining the number of Reserve officers recalled will be the number of Reserve officers who choose to enlist.

The Navy operates its recalls on a priority basis, Organized Reserve personnel being called first and Volunteer Reserve personnel second. Personnel transferring to Organized Reserve after October 15 are not subject to priority recall.

Naval Reservists in the Cumberland area also were reminded that the controlling factor in calling Reserves to active duty will be their qualifications to fill Navy billets on the basis of their records. Present law which authorizes involuntary recall of Reserve personnel specifies that the maximum period of involuntary duty is limited to 21 months. The statement also noted that the Navy Department is not knowingly ordering Naval Reserve personnel to active duty involuntarily if they have four or more dependents.

All policies briefed in this statement are based upon present circumstances which require a build-up of the fleet and its supporting establishments to a new, presumably stabilized, level but does not envisage full mobilization. A change in the international situation would require that all Reserve personnel serve on active duty when and as required to man a wartime fleet and supporting shore establishment.

School Contest Speakers Given

Ladies Of VFW Give 25 Boxes For GIs

The Ladies Auxiliary of Henry Hart Post No. 1411, Veterans of Foreign Wars, has announced that it will donate 25 gift boxes for servicemen in connection with the National Red Cross program of "Christmas on the High Seas," according to Mrs. Lee Witherup, of the local Red Cross chapter.

Each box is valued at $2.50 each, Mrs. Witherup said, adding that the contributions of the VFW and the Navy Mothers' Club, which donated 25 boxes last week, make up 50 per cent of the quota which the local Red Cross chapter has been requested to give.

Any organization interested in supplying some boxes or an individual wishing to contribute may do so by contacting Mrs. Witherup (telephone 4181).

Savage River Dam Work Progresses

Installation of the huge gates to control the flow of water through the Savage River Dam will be made in the near future.

Contractors for the project are now placing the cast steel linings for the gate housings.

Work on the project was delayed by heavy rains in this area several weeks ago.

Since then, work in the tunnel has been progressing beyond a temporary bulkhead installed ahead of the gate chamber.

Births Announced

Initial Housing Project Plans Nearly Ready

Special Meeting To Be Called This Week

A special meeting to approve planning work for the first phase of the Cumberland housing project is expected this week, according to James B. Raines, executive director of the Housing Authority here.

Start of the project will be the construction of 17 apartment buildings on slightly over seven acres of land in South Cumberland.

Raines said all of the 11 options necessary for acquiring property have been secured.

The 17 buildings will be two-story structures of brick and frame, each containing from six to eight apartments. They will be designed to house 125 families.

Shaw Visits Here

Shaw said he has reviewed the development program for the 125-family units and added it should be ready to send to Philadelphia within the next few days.

The Philadelphia office must review the plans and recommend them to the main PHA office in Washington. After a second review there, the plans will go to President Truman.

Altogether the local housing project is designed to furnish apartments for 300 families.

Second part of the project will be construction of apartments to house 25 families which will be located at a different site.

Survey and appraisal work already has begun for that project.

To Present Plans

William L. Wilson, Jr., chairman of the Cumberland Housing Authority, said Raines and Thomas B. Finan, attorney to the group, plan to go to Philadelphia to present the 125-unit program to the PHA field office in person.

Shaw said that architectural plans drawn by S. Russ Minter show that physical standards required by the PHA are being met.

He said rising costs are a problem in other housing projects but added he hopes to have "the complete financial picture here ironed out" before he leaves today for Philadelphia.

Raines said the development program for the South Cumberland project includes detailed data describing the site, floor plans, property acquisition and available transportation, shopping, recreational facilities and utilities.

Shaw said a combined community building and management headquarters could be constructed, or one of the apartments could be used as temporary headquarters for the manager.

A third possibility, he said, is to wait until the project is completed and build such a structure to serve the entire housing development.

Speaks From Experience

Next week is the second annual Allegany County Safety Week, and Virginia Walker (left), jumps at the opportunity to get in an advance safety warning. Both Virginia and Ruth are sophomores at Allegany High School, where the picture was taken. Number 68, which Virginia carries, is the magic number for Allegany County Safety Week. Its meaning will be explained later.

11 Programs Scheduled For Safety Week

County-Wide Event To Start Sunday

Plans for the second annual Allegany County Safety Week, beginning Sunday, were virtually completed at a meeting last night at the Public Safety Building, according to Lynn Walker, president of the Western Maryland Safety Council.

Eleven special programs for clubs and other safety-minded groups were arranged at last night's session, Walker said.

Highlight of the week-long program, Walker emphasized, will be the dinner meeting at Ali Ghan Shrine Country Club at 6:45 p. m. Friday, November 10.

Toastmaster at that dinner meeting will be Neil Toey, safety chairman for Celanese Local 1874, Textile Workers Union of America. Other details concerning that program will be announced later.

First of the 11 additional safety programs will feature the meeting Saturday, November 4, of United Commercial Travelers at the IOOF Hall. Another meeting will be held next Monday when the Rotary Club of Frostburg convenes.

Wednesday, November 8, safety programs will be staged for the Potomac Valley Lions Club at Cresaptown, the Lonaconing Rotary Club and the Optimist Club, meeting at Central YMCA.

Food Subsidy Is Unchanged

Federal monetary aid to the nation's school lunch program remains at the $82,500,000 mark, William P. Cooper, director of the Allegany county school lunch program, reported yesterday.

He said Congress declined to raise the subsidy to $100,000,000 due to Korean War expenditures.

Cooper recently appeared before Congressional committees as legislative chairman of the School Food Service Association, representing 2,000 school lunch employes in 48 states.

Cooper said Allegany county gets $48,000 for Maryland's $585,000 quota.

Food which was purchased locally cost 25 cents, cost of the meal to the student.

Labor costs for the state averaged 10 cents per meal.

Government surplus food, supplied free to the schools, is valued at about five cents per meal.

Cooper said Allegany county's labor cost is lower than in the state, due to the fact that an average of 10,000 meals are served each day in school lunch rooms.

Registration Is At 928,000 Mark In Free State

Democrats Make Numerical Gains

[By The Associated Press]

About 928,000 Marylanders are eligible to vote in Tuesday's general election — many thousands more than have been on the registration books for any other election in Free State history.

As usual, the Democrats have better than a 5 to 2 book majority over the Republicans.

The breakdown, with close approximations for Baltimore City and Worcester county, shows 653,993 Democrats, 255,570 Republicans, and 18,425 registered as independents or members of minor parties. This makes a total of 927,988 registrants.

Democrats Gain

It shows that the Democrats have made numerical gains since the 1946 state election, and the Republicans have lost almost 9,000 registrants. The totals then were Democrats, 600,058; Republicans, 264,976; others 17,741 for a grand total of 882,775.

There were only 863,951 registered for the 1948 presidential election, including 593,397 Democrats and 248,047 Republicans.

Baltimore, Prince George's and Montgomery counties — the three big metropolitan subdivisions — showed the biggest gains over the last four years.

Baltimore county had 83,131 registrants in 1946, dropped to 82,810 in 1948, and now has surged to 116,430 eligibles.

The comparative figures for Prince George's are 45,418; 43,959 and 54,776. For Montgomery they are 46,248; 51,952 and 56,675.

Staggers' Question Will Haunt, Foe Says

ELKINS, W. Va.—A question put to the voters of the Second Congressional District by Harley O. Staggers will come back to haunt him next Tuesday if the voters honestly think out the answer to that question, Melvin C. Snyder, Republican candidate for Congress, said in a radio address here last night.

Snyder said he was joining his opponent in asking the voters, as Staggers has done in all his campaign advertising, if they were doing all right under the Truman administration.

"Are you doing all right, Mr. and Mrs. Voter," Snyder asked, "when you get 50 cents' worth of services, groceries, and clothing for your hard earned dollar? Are you doing all right when the administration of Mr. Truman's socialist program makes you work three months out of every year to pay your taxes? Are you doing all right when that administration, which Staggers supports with all his might, wants to socialize farmers, industry, medicine, and everything American?"

"Are you doing all right with a government that has taken $90 billion for defense that was not ready last summer and is not ready now? If you are a veteran of World War II and are now waiting a call that will take you away from your family, your home, and your job, are you doing all right? If you've already been called to service, or have someone in your family who has been called to do a job that was supposed to be done five years ago, and which the Truman planners erased by appeasment, are you doing all right?

Reservists Will Get More Time Before Recall

Navy Announces New Arrangement

A new policy of giving Naval Reservists at least 30 days between call and report for active duty was disclosed here last night by Lt. Cmdr. F. A. Lewis, unit instructor, Organized Naval Reserve, here.

Cmdr. Lewis last night released a lengthy statement from Vice Admiral J. W. Roper, U. S. Navy, chief of Naval Personnel, Department of the Navy, concerning the planned Naval Reserve recall and release program.

This statement stressed that the 30-day policy between call and report for active duty will be "implemented immediately." By next July, it is hoped to institute a program whereby reservists will receive at least four months notice of recall.

Admiral Roper stated that for the foreseeable future it will be necessary for the Navy to continue the recall of Reserve personnel, officer and enlisted. The principal factor determining the number of Reserve officers recalled will be the number of Reserve officers who choose to enlist.

The Navy operates its recalls on a priority basis, Organized Reserve personnel being called first and Volunteer Reserve personnel second. Personnel transferring to Organized Reserve after October 15 are not subject to priority recall.

Naval Reservists in the Cumberland area also were reminded that the controlling factor in calling Reserves to active duty will be their qualifications to fill Navy billets on the basis of their records. Present law which authorizes involuntary recall of Reserve personnel specifies that the maximum period of involuntary duty is limited to 21 months. The statement also noted that the Navy Department is not knowingly ordering Naval Reserve personnel to active duty involuntarily if they have four or more dependents.

All policies briefed in this statement are based upon present circumstances which require a build-up of the fleet and its supporting establishments to a new, presumably stabilized, level but does not envisage full mobilization. A change in the international situation would require that all Reserve personnel serve on active duty when and as required to man a wartime fleet and supporting shore establishment.

TWO PUERTO RICAN NATIONALISTS FAIL IN ATTEMPT TO KILL TRUMAN

Tanks Lead Chinese N. Korean Assault

SEOUL, Thursday, Nov. 2, (AP) — Rocket-firing Chinese and North Korean troops today pressed attacks which have encircled an American regiment and forced other units to retreat in northwestern Korea.

Utilizing a new weapon—82 millimeter rockets—the revitalized Reds struck on the left flank of an American armored column which pushed up the west coast to within 15 air miles of the Manchurian border. This was a four-mile advance since yesterday.

A U. S. First Army Corps spokesman called the situation serious. The attacks put U. S. First Cavalry elements and four South Korean divisions—the First, Sixth, Seventh and Eighth—on the defensive. One thousand Reds on horseback were in the attacking forces.

For the first time, a U. S. First Corps spokesman admitted that "Chinese Troops" were attacking in the northwest.

Corps officers cautiously added hey were "not sure whether Chinese troops form the bulk of enemy forces which have thrown the United Nations off balance for the moment."

High American officers previously had acknowledged a Chinese Red regiment was in action in northeastern Korea. South Korean officers have insisted at least two Chinese Red divisions were in battle there.

The surrounded American regiment, a unit of the U. S. First Cavalry Division, was in the Unsan area on the east flank of a U. S. armored spearhead which drove west 13 miles yesterday to within 19 air miles of the Manchurian border.

Aid Is Moved Up

Other First Cavalry elements moved up to the aid of the encircled regiment.

Division headquarters said the situation was "too confused" to say exactly how far the American and South Korean units had been forced to retreat.

The enemy blows rained down on U. S. First Cavalry and South Korean forces in the Unsan area, about 30 miles east of one of two 24th Infantry Division columns pounding for the border.

So close was the fighting that the First Cavalry Division lost several mortars, which the Reds turned on the Americans. The spokesman said the South Koreans lost heavily in men and equipment.

The blow followed four days of determined attacks by Communist forces, including considerable numbers of the Chinese.

The U. S. 24th Division's spearhead nearest the border moved ahead as Russian-made jet fighter planes made their debut in support of Red forces. Six jet planes fought inconclusively with slower, propeller-driven Mustangs, then broke off the engagement.

Spotty Resistance

East of Unsan on the curving, 250-mile front, North Korean and Chinese Reds put up spotty resistance. While they struck fiercely in some places, they vanished at other points. They dropped out of sight for no apparent reason before South Koreans on the north central front. And they attacked the U. S.

Stassen To Give Republican Reply To Truman Talk

[By The Associated Press]

Republicans trained their big guns on President Truman's foreign policy—in the Far East especially—yesterday as the President made ready to fire his own campaign barrage next Saturday night.

The GOP National Committee picked Harold E. Stassen, sharp critic of the Truman policies in China and elsewhere in the Far East, to go on the air immediately after the President's broadcast and give the Republican answer.

GOP Chief Hits Demos

And GOP National Chairman Guy George Gabrielson declared at Charleston, W. Va., that "the Democrat administration must share with Communist imperialism the responsibility for the 30,000 known American casualties—so far—in Korea."

Gabrielson's speech followed a Tuesday night broadcast in which Democratic National Chairman William M. Boyle, Jr., said Mr. Truman's "quick and bold statesmanship has opened a new chapter in history for this country and for mankind."

Vice President Barkley is expected to enlarge on this theme in a Mutual network broadcast from Chicago at 10:30 p. m. (EST) tomorrow (Friday) night.

Agree On One Point

The rival party leaders agreed on only one point—that everybody should vote in next Tuesday's election of a new congress and of 32 state governors.

President Truman and his aides were reported well along on the five-network radio and television speech which the Chief Executive is to deliver at 10 p. m. (EST) Saturday. White House sources indicated the St. Louis speech, an avowed campaign talk, would stress foreign affairs.

Tank "Joyriding" Charge Faces Duo

ASHLAND, Wis., Nov. 1 (AP)—Two young men were accused today of alarming the countryside last Friday by taking a joyride in the National Guard unit's Sherman tank.

Federal warrants charged Theodore Lolich and John Meyers, both 23, with taking the 57-ton tank "with intent to steal" and damaging it to the extent of $50.

Super Carrier Drive Launched

WASHINGTON, Nov. 1 (AP) — A new drive started in Congress today for construction of a super aircraft carrier explicitly designed to mother planes capable of delivering the atomic bomb.

Rep. Vinson (D-Ga) said he will introduce a bill in the short session of Congress starting this month to authorize the building of such a ship, long a fond dream of the Navy.

What he has in mind is a 60,000-ton craft, either of flush deck design or else with small superstructure that would present a minimum of interference for landing and takeoff operations of good-sized bombers. The Navy's biggest carriers now are 45,000-tonners. Even from them fliers have contrived to launch A-bomb size aircraft; recently such a plane negotiated a landing on a 45,000-ton carrier.

Dog Shoots Man

Webb, 25, climbed into a car, the dog jumped into the back seat to welcome him and landed on a shotgun. The gun went off, wounding Webb in the neck. Hospital officials said his condition was serious.

Rebel Leader Under Police Siege In Home

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico, Nov. 1 (AP)—Pedro Albizu Campos, leader of the rebel nationalist party, has been under police siege in his home here for the past two days. Two letters from Campos were found on the body of one of the nationalist revolutionaries who tried today to assassinate President Truman.

Last night a nationalist was shot to death trying to break through the police guard and enter the home of Albizu, a Harvard-educated revolutionary who has served a six-year term in the federal penitentiary at Atlanta, Ga., for insurrectionary activity.

Over 30 Killed

The nationalists set off a revolt here Monday that claimed more than 30 lives in a two-day period. It was marked by an assassination attempt on Gov. Luis Munoz Marin similar to that made on President Truman. The revolt was smashed by Puerto Rican police and national guardsmen. Rounded up were 118 nationalist party members. The outbreak was the most serious since the United States acquired Puerto Rico as a result of the Spanish-American War in 1898.

Governor Says Reds Aid Revolt

Puerto Rico lies in the Caribbean about 1,000 miles southeast of the southern tip of Florida. It has an area of 3,435 square miles, somewhat smaller than Connecticut, and a population of 2,149,000.

Gov. Marin charged that the latest revolt was a "conspiracy against democracy helped by the Communists." He says it is "fanatical" in nature and has no real popular support.

The nationalist party has had a long record of violence. Leader Albizu, has figured in rioting and disturbances that date back to 1931.

U.N. Extends Lie's Term Despite Russian Warnings

Secretary Given 3 More Years In Office

NEW YORK, Nov. 1 (AP)—The U. N. Assembly today gave Secretary-General Trygve Lie three more years in office and a big vote of confidence. It overrode repeated Soviet warnings that Moscow will ignore Lie and refuse to deal with him.

The final vote on extending Lie's term to Feb. 2, 1954, was 46 to 5 with seven abstentions. The Russian bloc alone voted against him. The U. N. listed abstentions as Australia, Nationalist China, Egypt, Iraq, Saudi Arabia, Syria and Yemen. Haiti was absent and the 60th and newest member, Indonesia, did not vote.

Lie deliberately stayed away from the Assembly while it discussed him. He returned this afternoon, accepted the extension, and pledged himself to work for peace through universal collective security against armed aggression.

Lie also called for persistent efforts to bring about a reconciliation of the conflicting interests that divide the world and pledged himself to work hard for that aim. Finally, he said the U. N. must develop a bold and statesmanlike program to raise the standard of living in the world.

Russia Foreign Minister Andrei Y. Vishinsky fought to the last to delay action. He accused Warren R. Austin, U. S. delegate, of trying to rush the issue through the Assembly. He appeared to the delegates to approve a Soviet resolution sending the question back to the Security Council for further talks.

The Russian resolution was rejected. Only nine countries voted for it, 37 against and 11 abstained.

France To Stand Firm, Moch Says

WASHINGTON, Nov. 1 (AP) — French Defense Minister Jules Moch predicted tonight that France never will give up its opposition to the creation of German divisions for the North Atlantic defense force.

He gave his opinion at a news conference only a few hours after Secretary of State Acheson had predicted, also at a session with reporters, that the western democracies shortly will work out an arrangement to include German units in the force.

Just how far apart the French and American cabinet members were was not immediately certain since Acheson did not say what size German units he had in mind. But the disagreement over use of German fighting power was sharp enough to have been the cause of a deadlock on creation of the composite force.

Moch asserted that "clandestine links" would be certain to spring up between any German divisions, thus creating the menace of a new German war machine—something which France traditionally dreads.

The defense minister, who represented France as the 12-nation North Atlantic talks adjourned last night without final agreement, said German units should be no larger than battalions. That would be 800 to 1,200 men.

Communists "Shocked"

One Slain And Other Wounded By Alert Guards As Gun Battle Rages In Front Of Blair House

By ARTHUR EDSON

WASHINGTON, Nov. 1 (AP)—Two fiery Puerto Rican revolutionists shot their way to President Truman's doorstep today but were mowed down in a gun battle with White House guards before the could carry out their plot to murder the sleeping President.

One of the gunmen was killed, the other seriously wounded.

Tonight, a Secret Service man died of bullet wounds suffered in the roaring gun fight in front of Blair House, the President's temporary home across the street from the White House. Two other guards were hurt, one seriously.

It was the first conspiracy—by two or more persons—to kill a president of the United States since John Wilkes Booth shot Abraham Lincoln in a plot to wipe out the whole leadership of the government.

Mr. Truman was taking a nap at the time the assassins stormed his home. The shots awakened him but he was unhurt.

Those killed were:

Griselio Torresola, from New York, one of the gunmen.

Pvt. Leslie Coffelt, 40, of the Secret Service.

He was shot in the chest, stomach and legs in his valiant—and successful—defense of the President.

Truman Taking Nap

The other two guards were criticaly injured, as was the remaining gunmen.

The gun battle took place on the very doorstep of the Blair House. One gunmen went down stretched out across the bottom of the mansion's steps. The other fell amid shrubbery nearby.

Thus Mr. Truman escaped the fate of Presidents Lincoln, Garfield and McKinley, all of whom died of assassins' bullets.

Mr. Truman was taking a nap in his underwear, getting a rest before time to go to Arlington Cemetery to help dedicate a monument to the late Sir John Dill, the British wartime chief of staff.

The President once peered out of the window, to see what the shooting was all about. He was quickly waved back by frantic guards.

Thirty minutes later he attended the Arlington ceremonies as scheduled. He made an address pleading for understanding among peoples.

The dead man was identified by the Secret Service as Griselio Torresola, shot through the head from ear to ear. He was described as a young man from New York. In his pocket were two letters from Pedro Albizu Campos, leader of Puerto Rico's violently anti-United States party.

Injured Assassin May Live

The injured man was Oscar Collazzo, 37, of the Bronx, New York. He was shot in the chest, and may live.

In New York, Mrs. Collazzo said her husband belonged to the nationalist party whose revolution in Puerto Rico was put down earlier this week with a loss of more than 30 lives.

Puerto Rico is a possession of the United States, but elects its own local officers and governor.

The nationalist party has said it started the revolution in an attempt to get independence. Gov. Luiz Munoz Marin has described the rebels as members of "a conspiracy against democracy helped by the Communists."

Mrs. Collazzo said of herself and husband:

"We voted for Roosevelt and Tru-

GBS, Irish Wit, Dies At Age 94

AYOT ST. LAWRENCE, England, Thursday, Nov. 2 (AP) — George Bernard Shaw (above) died this morning. He was 94.

The end came in his cottage on the outskirts of this tiny village of 110 population, where he had lain unconscious for a day.

The Irish wit came home a month ago to die, as his friends knew, from the nearby Luton hospital. He had spent 24 days there after suffering a broken left thigh in his garden where he was trimming a fruit tree on Sept. 10.

Blair House Gun Battle Described By Eyewitness

Thought That First Shot Was Backfire

(Editor's Note: Miss Mae E. Hayes of Arlington, Va., an official of the Association of American Railroads, was an eyewitness to today's shooting at the Blair House. Here is her story as told to the Associated Press.)

By MAE E. HAYES

WASHINGTON, Nov. 1 (AP) — I saw three, maybe four men shot this afternoon in front of Blair House, where President Truman lives.

I was coming up 17th Street in a taxi. We had just passed around the back of the White House and were stopped at the traffic light at 17th and Pennsylvania Avenue.

Suddenly I heard what I thought was a backfire, just before the light turned green.

"That's no backfire, lady," my driver said. "It ain't movies either. That's shooting for real."

The first shot seemed to come from right close to Blair House. It was followed by at least two more, right away.

China Reds Putting Up Only Token Resistance In Korea

TOKYO, Nov. 1 (AP) — Top U. S. commanders say the Chinese Communists so far have put up only token resistance in Korea.

They expect the next few days to be decisive. Those days will decide whether the war is almost over or whether it will drag on.

The test is whether the Chinese Communists intend to throw into battle a substantial number of their best troops.

The appearance of the full Red air force also would change the course of the campaign.

But the officers are convinced the Chinese troops so far identified in action and the appearance of Red aircraft do not signalize the kind of reinforcement necessary.

They see the opposition now meeting United Nations troops as a last-minute gesture, not the start of a long defensive campaign.

These are the predominant opinions in Tokyo and among leading commanders in Seoul, from where I have just returned.

Officers both in Korea and Tokyo said the Chinese Communists so far identified in action represent only small, unimportant units.

They are inclined to think the Peiping regime is using them so they can tell the North Koreans they were not abandoned by their "allies."

Mahoney, Named To Democratic Committee, Endorses Lane

BALTIMORE, Nov. 1 (AP)—George P. Mahoney took up his new allegiance to Gov. Lane today with a statement that the Governor has now adopted the Mahoney platform and principles and should be re-elected in order to carry them out.

Mahoney beat Lane in the popular vote in the Democratic primary in September but Lane got the nomination with more unit votes.

The Mahoney statement asking for Lane's re-election came as the vanquished candidate and his top campaign aides took over the suite of rooms at the Lane headquarters.

"We know by experience," Mahoney said, "that it is impossible to obtain effective and progressive legislation with a Republican governor and a Democratic General Assembly

"I am offering my services and whatever ability I may possess to Gov. Lane.

"I have a solemn obligation to the 192,000 citizens who voted for me in the primary. This responsibility precludes any personal ambitions or feelings.

"I am intensely interested in the welfare of the mentally ill. I advocated completion of the roads and school building program at reasonable cost. (The Governor has promised to give the people of Maryland the tax relief they so sorely needed."

Mahoney On Demo Committee

WASHINGTON, Nov. 1 (AP) — George P. Mahoney of Baltimore tonight was accepted as a member of the Democratic National Committee by the party's national chairman, William M. Boyle, Jr.

This was revealed in a telegram made public by the Democratic National Committee which said that Robert B. Ennis, chairman of the state central committee of Maryland, had informed Boyle of the appointment of Mahoney to succeed Gov. William Preston Lane Jr.

The telegram signed by Boyle and addressed to Mahoney at Owings Mill, Md., said:

"The Democratic National Committee has received the official notification of Robert B. Ennis, chairman of the State Central Committee of Maryland, that pursuant to authority granted him by resolution passed by the Democratic state convention of 1948 he has appointed you Democratic national committeeman from the State of Maryland to replace Gov. William Preston Lane, Jr., whose resignation because of the press of other responsibilities we were forced to accept with regret several days ago.

"While you cannot be formally seated in your new position until the next meeting of the Democratic National Committee I am glad to welcome you as a new member of the Democratic National Committee and to assure you that we will work with you as of today in full cooperation as national committeeman from Maryland. x x x"

Lindstrom Divorces Ingrid, Says He Has No Bitterness

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 1 (AP)—Dr. Peter Lindstrom first learned of Ingrid Bergman's pregnancy by another man from a newspaper story, he testified in obtaining a divorce today. But the deceived husband added:

"I have no bitterness toward her. I think she has many good qualities as well as being beautiful and very fine actress."

The Swedish-born neuro surgeon was less charitable, however, to Italian Director Roberto Rossellini who married the actress after she obtained a Mexican divorce. He has admitted fathering the child, born last Feb. 2. Dr. Lindstrom never once referred to Rossellini by name—only "this Italian director."

Dr. Lindstrom, charging Miss Bergman with cruelty and desertion after 13 years of marriage, said that he went to Italy to beg Ingrid to come back after reading reports she "had taken up a relationship other than professional."

"We had conference (in May, 1949)," testified Dr. Lindstrom. "She said she had changed her mind and would return. To use her own words, she said: 'This ((affair) has to stop.' xxx

"Did you know at that time she was pregnant?" asked his attorney, Isaac Pacht.

"No, I did not. I first learned of it in the newspapers. xxx"

Ancient Roman Catholic Belief Becomes Creed

VATICAN CITY, Nov. 1 (AP)—The ancient Roman Catholic belief that the Virgin Mary was taken into heaven in body as well as in spirit became an article of the church's creed by proclamation of Pope Pius XII in a spectacular ceremony today.

A multitude regarded here as the greatest assembly of its kind since the start of Christendom prayed and cheered under the eyes of the Pope in St. Peter's Square. Vatican sources estimated the crowd numbered more than 500,000.

As night came on around the world, Catholics lit up their churches and homes in rejoicing. This All Saints Day—a day in which all saints are venerated—had witnessed the crowning event of the Catholic 1950 Holy Year Jubilee. It will go down in history as the Jubilee of the Assumption.

From the moment of the proclamation of the dogma, or doctrine, of the Assumption of Mary, the mother of Jesus Christ, all the 425,000,000 communicants of the church were required to accept the belief or risk exposure to the sin of heresy.

White House No Longer Picketed

WASHINGTON, Nov. 1 (AP)—Mrs. Eola Wright, who has been picketing the White House since Sept. 14, gave up today after the shooting across the street at the Blair House.

Mrs. Wright claims her civil rights have been taken from her unfairly, and the placard she carried said she wants them back. She lives in Washington.

man because they promised us independence and we did not get it. Roosevelt is dead so we can't blame him. We are both nationalists."

Connection Not Clear

The connection between Torresola and Collazzo was not immediately made clear. But in one of the letters Campos, the revolutionary leader, told Torresola:

"If for any reason it should be necessary for you to assume the leadership of the movement in the United States, you will do so without hesitation of any kind."

And Collazzo told Secret Service agents:

"We came here for the express purpose of shooting the President."

Only a few hours before the attempted assassination, an unidentified man hurled two blazing gasoline bottles into a crowd at the Puerto Rican government labor office in New York.

The wounded policemen were:

Pvt. Don T. Birdzell, 41. Both knees shattered by shots, but he will recover.

Pvt. Joseph H. Downs, 44, a plain clothes officer. Shot in chest and stomach. His condition is "critical, very serious."

At 2:15 p. m. (EST), all was calm on this warm, lovely fall day. Then pandemonium.

U. E. Baugham, chief of the Secret Service, said that Collazzo strolled by the sentry box at one side of the Blair House without attracting notice.

He went along the Pennsylvania Avenue sidewalk until he was within 10 feet of the entrance.

Birdzell was there, but facing the other way. He heard a click, and turned.

Collazzo said nothing, but opened fire.

Birdzell rushed into the street, even though hit. He said he was trying to draw the fire away from the Blair House.

By this time Officer Floyd Boring, standing outside the sentry box, and Officer Joseph O. Davidson, who was inside, opened fire.

One of them dropped him. Neither knows which one.

He fell at the foot of the steps. One report said he actually had gone up a few steps before the bullets mowed him down.

Torresola was operating to the west of the Blair House.

What happened here is confused. Both the men who shot him are in critical condition, and he is dead.

He died against a clump of shrubbery, about 30 feet from his companion.

Both men were well dressed. Each wore what appeared to be identical pinstripe suits. Oddly, each fell and lay with his hat on.

About 20 shots were fired.

Court Of Appeals Explains Anti-Subversive Act Ruling

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Nov. 1 (AP)—The Court of Appeals today explained why it upheld loyalty pledges for state-office candidates and the Progressive Party immediately renewed its protest to the Supreme Court.

It was an opinion in which three of the six appellate judges indicated broad approval of the state's entire anti-subversive law.

Earlier this month the Court of Appeals in a split decision ruled Shub off the ballots in next week's general election unless he signed the oath.

The Supreme Court refused an immediate hearing on Shub's appeal for want of an opinion telling how the majority reached its conclusion.

The opinion, along with a dissent, was filed today.

Chief Judge Ogle Marbury wrote the majority opinion which settled only the power of Maryland's legislature to order a candidate to swear he is not "a subversive person." But he alluded briefly to the Progressives' attack on the entire law.

Federal courts already have answered most of their charges in the conviction of 11 top communists for conspiracy and in two other cases, Marbury commented. Then he added:

"We are unable to find that the statute before us, on its face, violates any of the fundamental rights of appellants, or that it is susceptible of an interpretation which makes it necessary for the courts to strike it down.

"On the contrary, there is a presumption in favor of its validity, and there has been presented to us no argument which impairs or rebuts that presumption."

Rape Charge Against Errol Flynn Probed

MONACO, Nov. 1 (AP) — A local judge has opened an investigation of a charge of rape against Movie Actor Errol Flynn, it was disclosed today.

The complaint was filed by the parents of a 19-year-old girl whose name was given only as Danielle D—. The complaint said the attack occurred in August, 1947, when she was not yet 16.

The judge was told this story:

Flynn's yacht was anchored in the Monaco harbor. Danielle, bathing nearby, was invited aboard for a drink. The attack was alleged to have followed.

passenger to duck down. We squatted in the back of the cab. The shots were coming from very close. They seemed to be going off almost next to my ear.

I remember noticing that the few pedestrians around quickly scattered for cover. I was told to get out of the taxi and take shelter behind a tree in front of the west side of the old State Department building, right on the corner.

I ducked over there behind two other cars but when I arrived the shooting was about over. There were just one or two more desultory shots.

I looked across Pennsylvania Avenue and saw at least three men shot and lying on the ground. I think I saw a fourth.

The policeman was lying in the middle of the avenue and as I watched he moved his head slightly.

Eight Or Ten Shots

The third man, also a civilian, was lying on the pavement in front of Blair House. I have only an unclear recollection of the fourth man.

I just could not believe it. The whole thing happened almost in the time it took the light to change from red to green.

There was hardly any traffic at all at the corner, but at the first shot policemen seemed to come from all over and converge on President Truman's home.

When the shooting stopped — I would say there had been at least eight or ten separate shots or bursts of shots — I crossed Pennsylvania Avenue and walked back to my office two blocks away in a complete daze.

Looking back now, it was just like a dream, grotesque and fantastic.

If it was an attempt to kill President Truman, I certainly am glad those cops were able to take care of it.

"WE'LL HAVE YOU OUT BY LUNCHTIME"—Rescue workers, shown shoveling away dirt which trapped three laborers neck deep in the collapse of a sewer trench wall at Philadelphia yesterday morning, encouraged the men with word they would be freed by lunchtime. Before noon, 2½ hours after the cave-in, the last man was freed. Trapped men (top center, wearing safety belts) still covered waist deep, got oxygen through mask on hose (between heads). Two were removed unhurt; third (hidden by earth and shoring timbers at top left) received leg injuries.

Brewster Urges Probe Of Revolt

WASHINGTON, Nov. 1 (AP)—Sen. Brewster (R-Maine) today demanded an investigation by Congress of the nationalist uprising in Puerto Rico and its reported relationship to the assassination attempt against President Truman.

"It is strange," Brewster told a reporter, "that this situation should have developed apparently without warning.

"Congress should be advised why such intelligence agencies as the FBI, the Secret Service and others did not apparently have a clue as to what was brewing."

Brewster said he is curious, too, about a resolution passed yesterday by Cuba's legislature which he said indicated sympathy for the nationalist rebellion in which many were killed this week.

Coincident with Brewster's remarks the Interior Department, which is responsible for federal activities in Puerto Rico, made it plain that it plans to continue leaving insular affairs to the Puerto Rican government.

Secretary of Interior Chapman said yesterday that he was sure the administration of Gov. Louis Munoz Marin was capable of handling the situation.

A department spokesman reiterated tonight that Chapman has the utmost confidence in the governor's administration and believes that the violence in the island has been ended.

New Bakery Manager Named

Alfred E. Howe has been appointed manager of the Cumberland plant of the Schmidt Baking Company, it was announced yesterday by Carl P. Schmidt, Baltimore, president of the company.

Mr. Howe succeeds Kenton B. Farrell who has been promoted to the capacity as manager of the company's plant in Baltimore. He will assume his new duties about December 1.

Mr. Howe, a graduate of Allegany High and Catherman's Business School, entered the employ of the Schmidt Company in 1935 in a clerical position and became office manager in 1938. He was in the Army five years during World War II. He was drafted in 1941, earned a commission in 1942, and reverted to inactive status in the rank of captain. He is a member of the Army Reserve unit here.

The new manager is a former resident of Cumberland and a past exalted ruler of Cumberland Lodge No. 63, B.P.O. Elks, but has been residing at 118 Centre Street, Frostburg, in recent years. He is married to the former Mary McGraw, of Frostburg, and they have two children.

Moberly To Assume Duties November 15

The new superintendent of Memorial Hospital, John A. Moberly, 36, of Clearfield, Pa., will arrive here November 15 to assume his duties, William A. Gunter, president of the institution's Board of Governors, has announced.

Gunter said that Moberly has purchased a home at 16 North Allegany Street, here. He is married and has an eight-year-old son.

Moberly will replace Benjamin W. Wright, who resigned last month to accept the post of superintendent at Wilmington, Del., Hospital. He has been head of Clearfield Hospital for the past five years.

Of Mines And Men

The Navy candidly admits it hasn't been able to cope with the problem of underwater mines on the east coast of Korea. A naval officer, Capt. R. T. Spofford, points up some of the practical difficulties of sweeping up the mines off Wonsan, the port and naval base up in the narrow waist of the Korean peninsula. The minefield was 30 miles in length, with its width varying according to the depth of the water.

The mines were of two varieties, contact (moored) and "influence." The latter is a particularly nasty variety, as Navy men who operated in European waters will tell you. The magnetic force of a steel hull may detonate them, or the change in water pressure caused by a ship's passage overhead may set them off.

Captain Spofford says these are all brand new types of mines and says experts in mine warfare (he left no doubt that he didn't refer to North Korean experts) had been on the job. To date the Navy has had five minesweepers sunk and has announced that nearly two score men are lost and missing.

Still the cleanup continues under the worst possible conditions. Those in charge of sweeping this vast danger area are short of ships, trained crews and the right equipment for the job. The only blue sky to be seen is that an unhurried examination may now be made of mining techniques that presumably might be met along Russian controlled coastlines.

Admiral Allen E. Smith, who is in overall charge of escort and sweeping operations in Far Eastern waters, thinks mine warfare and mine countermeasures should be given the same priority the Navy now gives to anti-submarine warfare and carrier operations.

Russia Doesn't Pay

Senator Henry Cabot Lodge of Massachusetts says he is going to try to get Russia to pay a larger percentage of the United Nations budget. The United States, smaller than Russia both in population and in area, pays approximately 40 per cent of the UN budget. Russia pays only seven per cent for the privilege of having its foreign minister, the second in command to Stalin in the Soviet, and lesser Communist plotters, roaming about the United States at will.

The altruistic idea was that initially the nations which had suffered heavily from the war should pay less on the UN budget. But that formula should not be expected to apply forever, and this is as good a time as any to revise it.

In the five years since the war ended Russia, in violation of her pledges, has made satellites of her neighbors and proceeded to milk them dry. She has dismantled and looted former enemy territory to an extent not contemplated in the arrangements accepted by her former allies. She is exploiting much of Europe and China, colonial fashion.

Russia seems to have no lack of funds to maintain the largest standing army on earth, or to finance activities of subversion in every country on the globe. Paying a fair share of the relatively small budget of the UN ought to be easy for her now.

But it is doubtful if the Lodge suggestion will get anywhere. Probably this country's delegates to that organization will not even recognize it.

Substitute For Plasma

It is not likely that there will ever be a substitute for whole blood in shock therapy. The presence of little red and white boats in the plasma stream is often required for transfusions. But now the Red Cross is calling for 7,000,000 pints of plasma. Isn't there any substitute for it?

The laboratories often start out with a new, good, but very expensive natural substance and eventually come up with a cheap and effective synthetic. The search for a plasma substitute is intensified now because of the possibility of burns from atomic explosions affecting thousands of persons in a relatively small area. For a person who has lost blood serum after being burned needs plasma to replace it.

A review of the history of the search for a blood substitute dating from World War I is interesting. Gelatin was then seen as possibly a type of protein with cells that would not seep through the blood vessels and out of the circulatory system. There wasn't much success with it. By the end of World War II a new kind of gelatin had been developed which worked better.

The search goes on. At Newark, Del., Dr. Ellice McDonald heads the Biochemical Research Foundation. The staff there is experimenting with a gelatin plasma substitute which differs from other substitutes in containing food for tissue growth. It is described as a gelatin-glucose-salt solution which has had good results on rabbits.

One of the great discoveries of medical science would be a substitute for human blood in any large amount for any purpose.

The Dangerous Drivers

Look out when a 21-year-old is driving down the street. Better not try to enter traffic till he has gone by. He is more menacing than the much-abused teenager, says Prof. A. R. Lauer of Iowa State College. Out of his experience in conducting a driving laboratory, he reported these conclusions to the Chicago convention of the National Safety Council.

His findings on drivers of various ages are interesting. Women are better drivers than men from 16 to 33, and again between 41 and 53. At other ages the men are better. Men would be better than women at all times if they did not take unwise chances and force their way into dangerous situations.

As in many other things, it isn't what you know that matters, but what you think you know. If you are wrong in your estimate, then comes trouble. When a rapidly moving automobile is involved, the trouble is quite often fatal.

Poor Sight In Dim Light

ONE of the most remarkable feats performed by man was to duplicate in the laboratory the photochemical reaction that takes place in the eyes to make vision in dim light possible. To see at dusk, the rods of the retina must be able to produce a certain pigment—visual purple—and unless this chemical exists night blindness ensues.

Vitamin A enters the picture because it is an essential constituent of visual purple. Furthermore, by oxidizing this vitamin and adding a special protein, visual purple can be made in the laboratory. The yield is not as great as nature is capable of forming within the eyes but the work is important because it extends our knowledge of the mechanics of night vision.

Light has a tendency to destroy visual purple and, until an additional supply can be manufactured, visual acuity at night is decreased. Vitamin A is of no value in such cases. It is better to wear sunglasses during the day because they screen out a high percentage of light rays, permitting more of the pigment to remain. This does not mean, however, that the vitamin is of no benefit. An inadequate amount of this substance curtails the manufacture of visual purple because the vitamin is the most important ingredient of the pigment.

There are several causes of night blindness but lack of vitamin A has received the most publicity. The disturbance refers to difficulty in adapting to dim light so that after the sun goes down, and before the street lights appear, time is required for the eyes to become used to the change. A machine is available to test for night blindness and is used occasionally to determine the vitamin status.

• — • — •

One of the chief functions of vitamin A is to help keep the cells of the mucous membranes and the outer skin of the body in good condition. By scraping the skin and collecting some of the epithelial cells it is possible for experts to tell whether there is a shortage of the vitamin. A third clew as to the presence or absence of this chemical is obtained by a study of the blood. Tests of this nature are necessary to detect mild cases. Vitamin A deficiencies in America are rare; in one survey of 450 subjects only 11 had blood levels below normal and of these eight were children.

Symptoms seldom appear, but when they do, night blindness, conjunctivitis, and skin dryness are the most common. An eruption also occurs that resembles gooseflesh in that the hair follicles are prominent. It differs from goose-flesh in that chilling does not induce it and warmth will not make it disappear. In this condition, supplementary vitamin A is needed and doses up to 50,000 units daily are required. Thereafter foods rich in vitamin A maintain the supply. These include fruits and vegetables, milk, butter, liver, kidneys, and fish oils.

TOMORROW: Music as a form of treatment.

PHOBIAS

L. K. writes: Should a person with a certain phobia force himself to do the thing he is afraid of? For example looking down from a height frightens me. Would it be better to stay away from elevations or make myself look down from tall buildings?

REPLY

A phobia represents a real fear that stems from an incident earlier in life (which may or may not be remembered). In your particular case, it might be better to shun the high spots rather than go out looking for mountains so you can look down.

• — • — •

HEAT TO SORE KNEE

B. N. writes: I have arthritis of the right knee and would like to know how often to apply a heating pad and how long it should be kept on.

REPLY

Most individuals tolerate one-half hour to one and one-half hours three times daily.

• — • — •

CHEST DEFORMITY

L. K. writes: What would cause a 4 year old boy to have a pigeon breast?

REPLY

In this defect, the breastbone protrudes, producing a deformity resembling a pigeon's breast. In some instances, rickets is responsible; in others, the condition is congenital.

• — • — •

TENSION AND THE HEART

Mrs. T. writes: Does nervous tension cause heart attacks?

REPLY

Indirectly, by encouraging spasm of the coronary arteries. Nerve tension also leads to high blood pressure which in turn has an effect on the coronary circulation.

• — • — •

PRESSURE MEASUREMENT

Mrs. R. writes: Can the blood pressure be taken on the legs instead of the arms?

REPLY

Yes, but the procedure is more difficult. Furthermore, the level is 15 to 20 points higher than in the upper arms.

Ohio Senate Race Involves Future Of Republican Party; Truman Advisers Wanted Taft To Win; Taft's Attack On Marshall Hurt His Chances

Says DREW PEARSON

CLEVELAND, Ohio—The hot and hectic Ohio senatorial campaign has now boiled down to a battle of labor versus capital, the farm belt versus the city. This class-warfare angle is unfortunate, because the issue goes much deeper and involves the future leadership of the Republican party.

The Ohio race is not merely a race between a hard-hitting GOP Senator who had the courage to espouse the Taft-Hartley act; and a nice but colorless Democrat who champions labor. Actually the issue is also whether the Republican party is to become once more the progressive party of Lincoln and Theodore Roosevelt, or whether it is to lapse back to the international creed of the McKinleys and the Herbert Hoovers.

The fact that this basic issue is not defined in the Ohio senatorial race is partly the fault of the Truman high command. For the truth is that Truman's political advisers originally wanted Taft to win. They figured that he would be much easier to beat than Eisenhower in the race for the White House in 1952; therefore, it was better not to run a strong Democrat against Taft this year.

But whereas the White House failed to grasp the basic issue in Ohio, Arthur Vandenberg, who worked beside Taft for years, grasped the issue long ago. So did Senators Ives of New York, Morse of Oregon, Aiken of Vermont, Tobey of New Hampshire, Smith of Maine, and other Republicans who believe that their party cannot remain isolationist, must be made more progressive.

"Pack Of Jackals"

"Taft is so able, so tireless and so headstrong," said the Senator from Michigan, "that he carries the McCarthys, the Malones, the Jenners and the Kems right along with him. That pack o' isolationist jackals meets with Taft almost every night to plot against me and the Marshall plan. I am not sure whether I can lick them."

Vandenberg did lick them in that particular fight. The Marshall plan, which had more to do with defeating European communism than any other factor, was passed.

But Vandenberg is old and sick now. He makes no pretense of trying to hold a whip hand over the "pack of isolationist jackals" whom he used to lick when it came to crucial votes on the bipartisan foreign policy.

And this year the so-called "pack of isolationist jackals" has been crying communism all over the country, despite the fact that their own votes on foreign policy have gone right down the line with pro-Communist Congressman Marcantonio. This group has used the technique of shouting so loudly about Communists at home that the reverberations had obscured their own pro-Communist votes on policies abroad.

Confusing The Issue

This again is where the Truman high command has not played its cards well. In Indiana, for instance, the issue has become not communism, but Truman versus GOP Senator Capehart. Wisely, the Republicans played down the communism issue in Indiana because in that state the Democrat running against Capehart is Alex Campbell, the forthright former assistant attorney general who ordered the prosecution of Alger Hiss, the 12 Communist leaders in New York, Harry Bridges and various others.

In California, however, where GOP Congressman Nixon is running for the Senate, the GOP strategists have pounded home the Communist issue to a faretheewell. For Nixon, as a member of the un-American Activities Committee, hounded Hiss; and this has been played up so adroitly that it covers up Nixon's Marcantonio votes on such things as Korea and military aid under the North Atlantic Pact.

Likewise in Ohio, Taft's Marcantonio votes have now been pretty well obscured in the melee over the Taft-Hartley act. Also forgotten is his private encouragement of Senator McCarthy's spy-hunt at a time when Taft frankly admitted to other Republicans that he "didn't think Joe had anything."

Not quite forgotten in Ohio, however, is Taft's more recent attack on General Marshall when Marshall was appointed secretary of defense. This hurt Taft; and his friends are hoping it will be completely forgotten.

Actually the attack on Marshall was a flare-up of the real Taft—the Taft who is absolutely sincere and honest in believing that we can have no bipartisan foreign policy, that we cannot get along with Europe, and that the isolationist rantings of the Chicago Tribune should be the foreign-affairs platform of the Republican party.

U. S. Needs No Allies

Taft's personal philosophy was quite accurately expressed at an overseas writers' dinner not long before Korea, where, after some amazing statements that the United States was best defended by two oceans, Taft was asked by Barnet Nover of the Denver Post:

"Then you think, Senator, that we would be better off fighting Russia without any allies at all."

"Yes," replied the Senator from Ohio, "I guess that's about it."

Shortly thereafter, when Korea was invaded, Taft publicly reversed himself. He issued a statement clamoring for more allies to help us fight communism.

But Taft's original isolationist thinking, plus his ability, his courage and his indefatigable energy is why he always carries the Kems, the Wherrys, the Jenners, the Malones, the Capeharts and the other GOP isolationists with him. Together they form a compact and powerful unit which guides one wing of the Republican party.

And that is why the basic issue in the current Ohio race is actually whether the Republican party will become more isolationist or more progressive in the future.

Merry-Go-Round

Strictest secrecy precautions in diplomatic history were invoked to guard the meeting of the 12 Atlantic Pact defense ministers and their military chiefs of staff. . . . On the day before the first meeting in the huge government auditorium on Constitution avenue, 20 FBI men and special army counterintelligence agents scoured every nook and cranny for hidden microphones and wiretaps. . . . They even looked into huge chandeliers that light up the conference room to see if the Communists had secreted microphones in them. As an extra precautions, nearly 100 military policemen with fixed bayonets were assigned to guard the building with orders that newsmen were not even to be allowed in the lobby—which is far from the conference room.

MATTER OF FACT

By JOSEPH And STEWART ALSOP

The Dirksen Formula

CHICAGO, Ill.

FORMER Congressman Everett McKinley Dirksen, in a casual remark to this reporter, summed up the basis for both Republican hopes and Republican strategy throughout this area. Dirksen is trying to unseat the well-entrenched Democratic Majority Leader, Sen. Scott Lucas. He is confident he will do so. Asked why, he replied, "The People are dissatified. They are sort of frustrated. They know something has gone very wrong."

This sense of dissatisfaction certainly exists—and it is certainly the function of an opposition party to exploit it. But much depends on how this is done. A speech Dirksen made last Sunday at a Republican rally in the prosperous Chicago suburb of Oak Park may be taken as a fair sample of the technique of exploiting dissatisfaction employed by Dirksen and most other Republicans in this general area.

Dirksen's speaking style is intensely ecclesiastical, like that of a rather gloomy and unctuous parson, with an added suggestion of a radio uncle telling children's bedtime stories. The ecclesiastical note was struck at the outset. Dirksen told how an old man had asked him how his mother would have felt about his campaigning on a Sunday. Dirksen replied that she would have approved highly, because he was engaged, not in a political campaign, but in a crusade spreading "Holy Doctrine."

Dirksen then proceeded to outline the "real issues of this campaign." His old and dear friend Carl Vinson, chairman of the House Armed Services Committee, has said that spending and high taxes and the drafting of young men "must go on and on and on." This meant, he said, "windrows of young men marching away" to an uncertain fate. President Harry Truman had accused the Republicans of "pitchforking the farmer." At least the Republicans had not "pitchforked the young men" into war.

The Republicans had not "grabbed nineteen year old boys" to send them to battle against communism, while at the same time paying "fancy salaries" to the Communists in the government. And what was the result of all this appeasement and Communist-coddling? It was unbearable taxes and intolerable prices. Already, Dirksen warned his hearers, they were headed "down the dismal road to disaster."

Dirksen also says that aid to Europe (for which he himself fought effectively in his last term in Congress) is "throwing money down a bottomless pit." Thus you have the essence of the Dirksen formula for exploiting the dissatisfaction and frustration of the voters. He is clearly convinced that the voters' resentment against the draft, high taxes, Korean casualties, and all the other heavy burdens of American world leadership, can be exploited in such a way that conservative isolationism can again triumph in the Middle West.

Dirksen's enemies say that his reconversion to isolationism really springs from a conversation between Dirksen and Col. Robert R. McCormick, in McCormick's lair in the Tribune tower. It is true that McCormick exercises a veto power over Republican nominations in Illinois, and that Dirksen wanted very much to be nominated. But Dirksen also wants very much to be elected, and he is an extremely astute politician. He has changed his mind on great issues of national policy before this—no less than 63 times, according to the count of the "Chicago Sun-Times," and he has usually succeeded in switching to the popular side of issues. A good many other Republicans, as astute as Dirksen, clearly share his views on the isolationist resurgence.

Meanwhile, there were two aspects of the Dirksen meeting at Oak Park which seemed significant. First, every person present was quite obviously already a convinced Republican. Second, every person present was well on in years. Virtually every Republican rally this reporter has attended has had the same characteristics. At least in this area, the Republican Party is falling into the ancient error of persuading the already persuaded—and it is the undecided, not the already persuaded, who determine the outcome of elections. Partly for this reason, the Republican Party is tending to become the party of the old and middle-aged. The middle-aged become old, unfortunately, and the old die.

In short, the Republican Party is in danger of becoming a permanent minority party—and this is a real danger to the American political system. The Dirksen formula for exploiting the dissatisfactions of the voters may seem to reverse this trend—that will be decided on November 7, which Dirksen, in sepulchral tones, calls "judgment day." But it cannot really reverse the trend, simply because it is flatly inconceivable that the United States should return to isolationism. That is why the continuing battle within the Republican Party, between men like Dirksen and men like Sen. Arthur Vandenberg, may determine whether the two-party system is to survive.

Failure To Vote Is Seen As Defect Of Democracy

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON, Nov. 1—This is the season when it is considered non-partisan and of civic importance to urge people to go to the polls and exercise their prized privilege of voting. There are even some observers who think compulsory voting and a fine for those who fail to vote would be in the public interest.

But, actually, what America has most to fear is a heavy vote when the persons who go to the polls are dragged there and told how to vote.

For many years it has been customary for well-intentioned citizens to organize to transport voters to the polls. There seems to be adequate transportation when the women folks want to get to a beauty parlor or when the men folks want to get to midtown for any one of a hundred errands they have to do in the course of a year. But that it should be necessary to furnish automobiles to get voters to the polls seems to some extent a reflection on the initiative of the citizen as well as his independence of mind.

Obligation Created

For, when the precinct workers call for the voter and take him or her to the polls, an obligation is created to vote the way the precinct workers indicate. There are at the polls also on election day many workers who furnish handbills or engage the voters in conversation at the proper distance from the voting booth.

There can hardly be an objection to the arguing or to the distribution of campaign literature but, with all the controversy nowadays about money being spent in political contests, one rarely sees an estimate of the cost in time and money of those workers who virtually drag citizens to the polls.

It may be wondered how much intelligence is exhibited by an electorate when so large a proportion of the vote cast is controlled, directed or influenced or high pressured by workers, paid or otherwise.

The very exhortations heard every year "to get out the vote" seem innocent enough on the surface but along with this kind of appeal usually there are organized efforts to call on voters at their homes and fill them in a few minutes with last words of prejudice or emotion. The party or candidate having the most effective "organization" of this kind not infrequently wins out.

It is significant that the Democratic chiefs are talking about how certain they are to win more seats in Congress this year if the Democrats get out and vote. It is also significant that Republicans claim that they lost in 1948 because too many Republicans stayed at home.

Non-Partisan Transportation

Surveys made in Akron, Ohio, of what happened in the presidential election a couple years ago reveal that a large percentage of business and professional men and others in what would be called the educated groups failed to go to the polls. It is quite likely that the percentage of the total eligible to vote who do vote would decline considerably if there were no pressure used to get citizens to the polls.

It is frequently asserted that the women do not avail themselves of the vote, as had been predicted when woman suffrage was being urged. This may or may not be due to the fact that household duties and lack of transportation sometimes prevent them from getting to the voting booth. There is undoubtedly a need for transportation but this should be furnished by nonpartisan organizations formed for this purpose and assisted by public funds.

Americans can hardly be proud of any election in which so much effort has to be expended, first, to get people acquainted with the basic issues, and, second, when so much time and money must be spent to transport voters to the polls. Clearly there is here a serious defect in American democracy. Maybe the schools and colleges or even the churches have failed to teach individual responsibility and the obligations of citizenship. Surely, somewhere, there has been a failure.

These Days

The Red Masquerade

SO I WENT to a party of red-baiters — not the Johnny-come-latelies who swear that they were never pinkoes and hate Stalin's very pancreas — but men and women who over the years and at great sacrifice fought Stalin's stooges. There is always a spirit of camaraderie among those who were unafraid when it was more popular to sign petitions and sponsor front organizations and now when the opportunists beg to be forgotten if not forgiven, there is some pardonable elation. Among those present was Angela Calomiris.

I had never seen her before and it was hard enough now. A tiny mite, weighing somewhere near a hundred pounds, sharp-eyed, with a gay humor, she was the guest of honor. A few days earlier, her first book, "Red Masquerade," had appeared and she was now a literary personage.

Angela Calomiris had been an FBI undercover girl for seven dangerous years and it was exciting to see her in the company of other former FBI agents at this party. They were bound together by the ordeal through which they had passed.

But the next morning — it was Sunday — I looked in the book sections of the New York Herald Tribune and the New York Times, two newspapers that have practically monopolized book reviewing in the United States. Not one word appeared about this important book. They did not even say that it was bad; they ignored it. It is the more amazing that both should simultaneously reject this book. What is this, a cartel?

So, I pushed aside a day's work and read, with more excitement and fascination every moment, "Red Masquerade," by Angela Calomiris. Here is an American girl of Greek origin who is recruited by the FBI in wartime to do dangerous work for her country, with no protection, with no compensation, with only her expenses paid. She is told at the start that should she be involved in difficulties, the FBI would not acknowledge her for obvious reasons. This work she did so well that she reached an important place in the Communist movement and thus laid the basis for the indictment and conviction of the 11 Communist leaders in New York.

It is a heroic tale not only of Angie herself but of the hard-working, painstaking FBI agents who are on the job day and night working for the American people.

"Red Masquerade" is the best-written, the most literate, and by far the most accurate description of the methods of the Communist party and their associate organizations in the United States. It is the only book that I know that gives a close-up view of the function of cells and district organizations.

Quite apart from the absorbing story of Angela Calomiris, this is an invaluable sociological and political study which should be in every library in the country.

Yet, the two big Sunday book review magazines ignored it completely. They gave loads of space to Owen Lattimore's self-serving defense, but not one word to a carefully written, competently documented account of the methods by which the FBI actually succeeded in gaining convictions of Communists in our courts.

It is impossible to believe otherwise than that the editors of the "Herald Tribune" and "Times" book review magazines desire that this important book should not be read. Many libraries make their purchases on the basis of reviews in these publications and when a book is not noticed even unfavorably, when it is not even mentioned, its sale becomes extremely difficult.

Therefore, I am appealing to readers to buy this book, "Red Masquerade," by Angela Calomiris, to read it, and if they like it to recommend it to their local library committees.

It is worth-while that in this era when we produced an Aiger Hiss and a Judith Coplon, we also produced an Angela Calomiris. Although she never moved among the great in Washington, she served this country as valiantly and as dangerously as any soldier at the front in the worst of battle.

And to this she has added a book that even the most perfectionistic of reviewers cannot regard as a journalistic makeshift. Hers is a literary gift of high order and her book carries the reader from cover to cover.

Navy League Cited By Liquor Board

The Allegany County Liquor Control Board has cited the Navy League here to appear before it for the second time within a month to show cause why its liquor license should not be suspended or revoked.

Action was taken Tuesday at a meeting of the Board in the Court House. Summoned to appear in the Court House November 14 at 10 a. m. are the licensees,—James E. Niland, Robert J. Washabaugh and Daniel T. Drew.

The board reported that the club located at 148 North Centre Street will have to explain its conviction of a gambling device charge in Circuit Court October 16.

The club's officers were fined $400 in Circuit Court when they pleaded guilty to maintaining two gaming devices.

The club is serving out a 30-day suspension of its liquor license handed by the board on October 10 for being found at fault for not allowing a police officer to inspect the club's premises. The suspension ends November 8.

Uplinger Fined In Liquor Case

Found guilty and fined $150 in Police Court Tuesday for selling alcoholic beverages without a license to an "undercover agent" of the City Police Department was Ralph Uplinger, 41, of 506 Springdale Street. Uplinger, who entered a plea of not guilty, appealed the verdict.

Another defendant, Lee Carroll, who resides at the rear of East Laing Avenue, drew a suspended fine of $100 on the same charge. Police said it was his first offense, and Magistrate Peter J. Carpenti imposed the sentence.

Uplinger, represented by Edward J. Ryan and William L. Wilson, Jr., was arrested once before on a license charge about four months ago. At that time Magistrate Frank E. Perdew fined him $150 and he filed notice of an appeal. The outcome is pending in Circuit Court.

Washington Whirl

By AUSTINE

WASHINGTON

WE'VE GOT THE White House and Truman's piano. . . . We've got Dean Acheson, the Mellon Gallery and the original Constitution. . . . We've got Frank G. Ashbrook.

AUSTINE

Prim, neat and almost sixty, you would not think he could look at a bear, let alone eat one . . . But he has eaten almost everything that crawls, hops, runs or swims on the North American Continent . . . And lived to tell about it. And loves to tell about it . . . A fast and long-winded talker, Ashbrook peppers his sentences with cusswords.

---

He can give you what he claims is an excellent recipe for Armadillo Sausages, for Beaver Barbecued or Fricasseed for a Ragout of Raccoon, or Filet of Whale.

As head of Wild Fur Animal Investigation of the Fish and Wildlife Service of the Department of Interior, he knows all about cooking and eating wild animals.

If you turn up your nose and toes at his Armadillo Sausage, he sneers, "There is no accounting for the average American's timidity. Day after day, year after year, he will travel the tiresome trail of meat, gravy and potatoes."

"How did YOU ever get out of the rut and off the beaten trail? I asked him.

"My father had been telling me for a long time that I was missing a lot by not eating different foods. I wouldn't touch calves brains, vinaigrette, or oysters, for instance. When I got to college I HAD to eat a lot of things I didn't like. I think it must have been in college that I made up my mind I was going to try anything and everything."

"But, Mr. Ashbrook," I argued, "even if I wanted a Ragout of Raccoon, which let it be clearly understood right now I don't, there are few restaurants, if any, where it's on the menu."

"The eating habits of the American people are disgraceful," he lectured. "Why, for lunch they go in the nearest drugstore and gulp down the darndest looking sandwich you ever saw. Even doctors don't practice what they preach. They nibble peanut butter crackers all the time. They have to smoke between each course. Can't understand that smoking ruins their sense of taste. Fine cooking isn't appreciated any more. That's one of the reasons Washington has lost so many of its fine restaurants. They can't compete with drugstores."

To prove how miserably we dine, Mr. Ashbrook exhibits a menu of the Gay Nineties. It includes Turkey a la Toulouse, Saddle of Venison with Currant Jelly, and Terrapin a la Maryland, Canvasback Duck, Pheasant, Partridge and Grouse. . . . Accompanied by ten vegetables, dessert and coffee. . . . He doesn't advocate a return to the lax game laws of the Gay Nineties, but urges us to learn that wild birds and animals, hunted in season in our fields, streams and forests, can provide delicious vitamin-rich food, easily prepared, cooked and digested. . . . Game meat is healthful and savory and yet many American families have never tasted it.

In the Ashbrook family he does all the cooking. . . . And his wife, a teacher of dramatics and arts at a nearby Junior College, is a wonderful audience.

One of their favorite recipes is Buffalo Stew. "I always cut it up in chunks, brown it in the pan with onions before adding it to the stew. I never use water in a stew. Tomato puree or tomato juice. It's a dish fit for the gods."

Famous Folks' Favorite Foods

Conducting a private poll from dinner table to dinner table, I find steak and potatoes are far from the favorites in the Capital:

ATTORNEY GENERAL'S WIFE, MRS. J. HOWARD McGRATH: likes (better than anything else in the world) a French Meat Pie, recipe inherited from her grandmother. . . . Ingredients fresh ham, potatoes and sherry.

SENATOR BERT MILLER of Idaho, 79 years old, says his favorite food is Mountain Trout with Bacon. . . . Most Senators from Idaho, when asked their favorite foods, chant "Why, Baked Idaho Potatoes, of course!" But Miller has lived long enough to stand on his convictions.

MRS. STYLES BRIDGES would walk a mile for "Lobster broiled with seaweed." "Gives it that old briny flavor!"

ITALIAN AMBASSADOR TARCHIANI, though he has lived and traveled in America for years, still goes into ecstacy over green noodles covered with fresh-made sauce of meat or mushrooms and pounds of fresh grated Parmesan cheese.

"PTARMIGAN with sour cream sauce - - - Ah, it's divine!" raves MADAME MORGENSTIERNE whose husband is Norwegian Ambassador and Dean of the Diplomatic Corps. . . . But about giving away her secret recipe for her favorite dish, the lady is as silent as the "P" in Ptarmigan.

Here's a preparation schedule to assure party-pretty looks whenever there's an important occasion!

SECRETS OF CHARM

by JOHN ROBERT POWERS

IT TAKES more than a pretty evening dress to create party-pretty looks! Like the setting of a jewel, a low decolletage displays your perfection or points up your flaws.

Of course, I know that no woman strives for anything less than perfection of her beauty on formal occasions. But, hmmm . . . what sins are committed in the name of perfection!

Mistaken Preparations

There's the overdone hair-do with "every hair in place" — yes, plastered right to the head, probably corkscrew curled and certainly styled in an exaggerated way! It's a delusion that appears only on the heads of those who have not learned that it's the natural appearance that charms.

Such disasters can and should be avoided by having your hair done in advance of the big evening in a sleek style that is becoming to you. Then, if you protect it in a net for sleeping and brush "in" the waves and curls as often as you get a chance, your coiffure will look soft, shining and as though it belongs to you — not the hairdresser.

Often the hurried and flurried look, too, is the by-product of the desire for perfection. It's sure to be yours if you try to take care of all details on the party day. Your manicure, pedicure, deoderant and depilatory activities should be completed on the previous day, and each detail of your costume checked as well.

Such thoughtful scheduling will leave you plenty of leisure for those final touches that slay the stag line. You'll have ten minutes for a fragrant, bubbly bath, followed by a complete body rub with creamy lotion. (Pay special attention to smoothing your neck, shoulders, back, arms, elbows and hands. Rub up from your fingertips until you've covered the entire surface your dress leaves exposed.) Twenty minutes now for a nap with your feet elevated and your eyes covered with cold cotton pads. Fifteen minutes to don your clothes with luxurious care.

Party Pretty

Among the greatest party-night sins committed in the name of perfection is the coating of your face with cosmetics until it resembles the dead-pan visage of a store window mannequin. There's no surer way to cancel out the beautiful effect of all your previous pains.

A natural looking make-up never results from seeing how much of the stuff you can use, but how skillfully you can use it. It takes just fifteen minutes to attain perfection this way: A sparing layer of foundation that matches your skin tones; a faint glow of rouge; a pink-tinged powder to off-set the yellow glare of night lights; a clear, bright lipstick (not purply); a whisk of eyeshadow and a flick of mascara; an eyebrow brush and hair brush grooming.

Theater Ready For Longest Run

By CHARLES E. WHITING

LONDON — (AP) — The Old Vic Theater, closed by German bombs nine year ago, is re-opening its doors in November for the longest season in its history.

Its shabbiness has been covered by fresh paint. The new stage has automatic controls. The old temperance tradition has been wiped out with the installation of cocktail bars.

But to Londoners it will be the same Old Vic—the closest approach to a national theater in Britain.

Well outside the fashionable precincts of the West End theater district, the squat brick building in Waterloo road on the south side of the Thames is the home of the star-studded Old Vic company.

Built in 1812 as the Royal Coburg Theater, it was a music hall of ill repute when Lillian Baylis took it over during the First World War and transformed it into a home of Shakespeare and the opera.

All the famous names of the British theater trod her boards during the next quarter century—Lawrence Olivier, Ralph Richardson, John Gielgud, Edith Evans, Dame Sybil Thorndike, and Charles Laughton, to mention a few.

A German land mine smashed the Old Vic's roof in May, 1941, and since then the stage has been darkened. Part of the building has been used, however, as a theater school by the new Vic theater company. It has attracted many students from America.

Reconstruction work now has been completed at a cost of 50,000 pounds ($140,000). Many of the theater's Victorian appointments have been retained.

The narrow benches in the gallery have been kept. They will seat 400 persons at one shilling sixpence (21 cents) per head.

Miss Peggy Ashcroft of the Shakespeare Memorial Theater Company at Stratford-on-Avon, is joining the Old Vic company for its ten-month season. Others in the company include Roger Livesey, Alec Clunes, Ursula Jeans and Robert Eddison.

Benefit Dance To Be Held Tomorrow

A dance for the benefit of the Kiddies Christmas party will be held tomorrow evening at Ali Ghan City Club, sponsored by the Ali Ghan Band. Dancing will be from 9 until 1 o'clock with the Ali Ghaneers playing. An old fashioned cake walk will feature the evening with entertainment during the intermission.

PIN-WORMS GO! Jayne's P-W Gets Real Results

Fidgeting, nose-picking and a tormenting rectal itch are often telltale signs of Pin-Worms... ugly parasites that medical experts say infest one out of every three persons examined. Entire families may be victims and not know it.

To get rid of Pin-Worms, these pests must not only be killed, but killed in the large intestine where they live and multiply. That's exactly what Jayne's P-W tablets do ... and here's how they do it:

First—a scientific coating carries the tablets into the bowels before they dissolve. Then—Jayne's modern, medically-approved ingredient goes right to work—kills Pin-Worms quickly and easily.

Don't take chances with this dangerous, highly contagious condition. At the first sign of Pin-Worms, ask your druggist for genuine Jayne's P-W Vermifuge ... the small, easy-to-take tablets perfected by famous Dr. D. Jayne & Son, specialists in worm remedies for over 100 years.

If electricity were sold over the counter—like meat or shirts—chances are you'd sometimes be caught without a kilowatt in the house! But if you bought kilowatts at the store, you'd be reminded often about electricity's low cost!

Commerce Department To Be Proposed For Md.

The special Commission on Unemployment and Relief of Maryland's employment security system will recommend that the State have a Department of Commerce to induce industries to locate within it borders, according to William H. Mahaney, chief of the system.

Mahaney said another step toward bolstering employment in Western Maryland is a survey the State Planning Commission is now making of recreation possibilities and development of natural resources.

Establishment of the Department of Commerce would follow along the lines of a suggestion made at a public hearing here by David Kauffman, chairman of the Steering Committee For Economic Development. At that time, Kauffman listed as one of his 13 points for state aid to jobless areas, the setting up of a separate bureau of economic or industrial development within the Maryland State Planning Commission.

John B. Funk, state engineer, said yesterday the private organization making the Planning Commission survey will have completed the preliminary phases by the middle of this month and have a report ready for the January session of the General Assembly.

Mahaney's special Unemployment and Relief Commission was set up by a resolution passed in the 1950 general assembly. It's final recommendations are now being drafted for submission to Governor Lane.

The employment commissioner said the situation in Western Maryland is not as critical now as it was when the legislature acted. Many still are jobless, however, because mines have been shut down and some industries have laid off workers.

The commission visited Cumberland and Oakland in September, went through some of the large industrial plants, and conferred with business leaders.

Police said Shade apparently fell or jumped from a bridge over the creek and was killed when his head struck the rocky bottom. They said they found no signs of foul play.

Engineer To Review Plans For District

A State Department of Health engineer will be here next week to review preliminary plans for a Georges Creek sanitary district, according to a letter from George H. Hall, state sanitary engineer, to the Allegany County Metropolitan Sanitary Commission.

Hall said Peter C. Dodge, health department engineer, will assist the commission in reviewing engineering material received from Whitman, Requardt, and Associates, Baltimore engineering firm.

At Westernport, it is planned that a sewage disposal plant, accommodating the trunk line, will be built.

The commission also received a letter from Governor W. Preston Lane acknowledging the county group's request for investigating the possibility of obtaining aid for the creation of an overall sanitary district for the creek region.

Governor Lane informed the commision that he has referred the letter to John B. Funk, chief engineer of the state, for investigation.

Another communication was received from Rep. J. Glenn Beall in which he stated that he was well aware of the sanitary conditions in Georges Creek.

The Frostburg representative asked the board for a conference in the next week or two to discuss the possibilities of obtaining funds from various sources.

Horace P. Whitworth, Jr., chairman of the Allegany County delegation to the General Assembly, also requested a conference next week for the furtherance of this plan.

The first woman newspaper syndicated daily numorist in the United States was Helen Rowland of the New York World in 1908.

Gen. Douglas MacArthur's father also was Army chief of staff.

Today, as always, you can buy Coca-Cola for 5¢ a bottle, 25¢ a carton and $1.00 a case. Our dealers can still sell Coke for these prices because our wholesale price has remained unchanged year after year.

Our production and distribution costs, like those of everyone else, have greatly increased over the last decade. Through your ever-increasing patronage, however, our sales volume has grown tremendously, too. The economies that result from this large volume of business are the main reason why we can still maintain our customary wholesale price.

We hope that you will continue to choose Coca-Cola as your favorite refreshment. And we hope that you will always be able to buy a bottle of Coke for 5¢.

A WORD TO OUR DEALERS:

Through wars, booms and depressions, your experience and ours has proven that sales and profits of soft drinks are highest when they are sold for the traditional prices of 5¢ a bottle, 25¢ a carton and $1.00 a case. # Palmer Has One-Stroke Lead In N-S

Three Aces Scored In Pro Golf Tourney

PINEHURST, N. C., Nov. 1 (AP)—Johnny Palmer clung to his North and South Open golf tournament lead at the halfway mark today, but his margin was halved to a single stroke.

While the Badin, N. C., tournament circuit regular was posting a two-under par 70 for a 135 total after his record 65 of yesterday, Jim Ferrier of San Francisco carded a 69. This, added to his 67 of yesterday, elevated him from a five-way tie for second place into sole ownership of the position.

In third place after 67 today for 137, two strokes back of Palmer, was 42-year-old Mike Turnesa, White Plains, N. Y., professional, who authorized one of the day's three holes in one to shoot up into contention.

Fouth place was held at 139 by four players—defending champion Sam Snead of White Sulphur Springs, W. Va.; Toledo, Ohio, amateur Frank Stranahan and professionals Chuck Klein of San Antonio, Texas, and George Fazio, of Washington.

Turnesa made his on the 156-yard ninth shortly after Steve Doctor, Kane, Pa., pro had turned the trick on the same hole. Doctor could manage no better than 152 for the day, however, and his 152 total did not qualify for the third round.

The other ace came on the 186-yard, well-trapped 17th where Harry Dee, assistant to Claude Harmon at the Winged Foot Club in Mamaroneck, N. Y., bagged one for a 69 for the day and a 141 total.

SS. Peter-Paul, St. Mary's Win K Of C Youth Loop Football Games

Gaels Cop Third 32-0, AHS Loses

SS. Peter and Paul and St. Mary's copped victories in the Knights of Columbus-sponsored Catholic Youth Football League yesterday in games played at Campobello and Penn Avenue.

St. Pete's romped to an easy 51-7 triumph over the Little Campers of Allegany High for its second win in three starts while St. Mary's Gaels blanked St. Patrick's 32-0 for their third straight victory. St. Patrick's and Allegany have yet to win a game in the four-club loop, losing twice each.

John Blake sparked the Flying Dutchmen of SS. Peter and Paul by completing 11 of 13 passes and scoring twice himself while intercepting two Alco passes. The Dutchmen racked up five touchdowns and a safety in the first half to lead 37-0 over the Little Campers at halftime. A 10-yard pass from the quarterback to an end resulted in Allegany's only score.

St. Mary's Flying Gaels racked up touchdowns the first three times they got possession of the ball and led 20-0 at the half in the Penn Avenue game.

St. Patrick's threatened only once, a long pass taking the ball deep into Gaels' territory but time ran out at intermission and the losers failed to score.

Saturday St. Patrick's will play Allegany while SS. Peter and Paul meets St. Mary's. Both games will be played at Campobello.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Nov. 1 (AP) — The dean of American League shortstops, Luke Appling, dropped off the Chicago White Sox roster today to sign up as manager of the Memphis Chicks.

Thus Appling, at 41, ended a 20-year record breaking career as a big league player to move into the brain trust section of the Class AA Southern Association.

Allegany Preps For Intra-City Grid Clash With LaSalle Eleven

Campers Weakened By Player Injuries; Fort Hill On Road

The second intra - gridiron clash of the season is on tap Friday night in the Fort Hill stadium when Allegany High's Campers tangle with its LaSalle High Explorers under the arcs at 8 o'clock.

Coach Phil Carolan's Blue and Gold Explorers will be seeking their first win of the current campaign, having lost six straight including a 46-6 defeat at the hands of the defending city champs, Fort Hill.

Campers Are Favored

The Campers, under the direction of Coach Bob Pence, will be heavily favored to make it seven victories in eight starts for the Alco squad, but Mentor Pence has a note of worry in his voice as he laments upon the injuries and bruises suffered by his team in their 19-13 win over Martinsburg (W. Va.) High last week.

To date two of the Allegany backfield stars are not being counted upon to play in the fray with both Fullback Bob Anderson and Halfback Charles Eirich sidelined with injuries. They will be replaced by Dick Widdows, who is still nursing a bad shoulder, and Bob Hook or Ray Easton. Left end Joe Hager also is not counted upon for duty. Pence revealed last night, and John Eversole is expected to take his place.

The Campers have not scrimmaged with a full first team this week, Pence stated, as they prep for the important resume of an old rivalry.

Officials Are Listed

Officials for the game will be Gordon Elsmon, Charles Town, W. Va., Ken Rentch, Shepherdstown, W. Va., and Joe Campbell, Hagerstown, Pence reported.

The undefeated Fort Hill Sentinels, other team in the three-cornered race for the city diadem, will be on the road this week as the Scarlet and White eleven travels to Wheeling, W. Va., to battle Linsly Institute Saturday afternoon. Linsly has a six and two record while Fort Hill has copped seven in a row this season and 16 straight over a two-year span.

Friday's football slate is comparatively light this week with only four other scholastic tilts listed in addition to the AHS-LaSalle fracas.

Romney At Petersburg

Romney's unbeaten but once-tied Pioneers will travel to Petersburg for a Potomac Valley Conference clash with the Vikings while Parsons High goes to Elkins, Moorefield is host to Berkeley Springs and Circleville is at Franklin.

Saturday finds Beall High's Mountaineers of Frostburg colliding with the Ridgeley High Blackhawks on the West Virginia school's gridiron and Keyser High's Golden Tornado also traveling to Wheeling to battle Triadelphia in a night contest in addition to the Fort Hill-Linsly go.

Today pits the West Virginia School for Deaf against Morgantown High at Morgantown and Saturday Potomac State will seek another conference victory against Salem at Salem.

Catamounts Need Win Saturday For Perfect Season In Conference

Potomac State School of Keyser has only one more hurdle to make to conclude its 1950 season in the West Virginia Conference with a perfect record.

Seeking their 4th straight victory in the 12-school circuit, the Catamounts of Coach Dana "Horse" Lough will tackle the Salem Tigers at Salem on Saturday.

To date, the Kesyer eleven has beaten Glenville 14-7, Shepherd 14-7 and Concord 30-0 in conference games. State's over-all record is six wins and one loss.

Potomac plays its 9th and final game of the season with Gallaudet College of Washington, D. C., at Keyser, Saturday, November 18.

| Team | W. | L. | T. |

Silents Will Oppose Clyde's MHS Eleven

Gridders from West Virginia School for the Deaf of Romney will play their 7th game of the season tonight when they oppose Coach Arthur Clyde's Morgantown High School eleven at Pony Lewis Field, Morgantown, W. Va.

VPI Football Coach To Be Chosen Later

BLACKSBURG, Va., Nov. 1 (AP)—No selection for the post of head football coach at Virginia Tech will be made until the end of the 1950 grid season, Athletic Director W. L. Younger said today.

Younger said the school had decided on such a policy "in fairness to the present coaching staff" which is headed by newly-appointed Head Coach Al Learned.

Auntie Cops 4th Straight Win At Salem

Scores 8th Victory As Rockingham Closes

SALEM, N. H., Nov. 1 (AP)—S. S. Barrett's Auntie scored her fourth consecutive triumph and her eighth of the season in the Au Revoir handicap, headline attraction of the closing day program at Rockingham Park, before 10,678 today.

An eighth of a mile from home Auntie withstood the stern challenge of the Circle A Stable's Roy to rule by a length and a half. Duke's Gal was third, just a nose off Roy. Auntie's win was her 12th finish in the money in 17 starts and increased her earnings for the season to $15,975. Her time for the mile and a sixteenth was 1:46, prices were: Auntie $8.20, $4.60 and $3.40, Roy $4.20 and $2.80 and Dukes Gal $3.00.

Sidney Bernstein's Jeep Gypsy accounted for the Gene Autrey purse, the secondary feature in honor of the rodeo star, who served as an honorary steward.

Uncle Miltie Wins

JAMAICA, N. Y., Nov. 1 (AP)—Toting his top weight of 126 pounds, four over scale, like a feather, J. J. Colando's Uncle Miltie scored a resounding triumph today in the 39th edition of the Wakefield Handicap, a $15,000 added affair for 2-year-olds, stepping the mile and a sixteenth in the excellent time of 1:43 4-5.

The son of Heather Broom-Twink-Mo, bred by his Maywood, N. J., owner, won by five lengths. Brookmeade Stable's Oats was second by a length over Sam E. Wilson, Jr.'s Royal Mustang, who finished a neck to the good of his stablemate, Ralph Lowe's Pictus.

Well back in the early running, Uncle Miltie was set down at the five eighths pole by Jockey Hedley Woodhouse and quickly forged to the lead, taking over outside the eighth pole to win in a gallop.

Hot Is Winner

LAUREL, Md., Nov. 1 (AP)—Rigan McKinney's Hot ran away with the 32nd renewal of the $7,500 added Chevy Chase steeplechase here today scoring by five lengths.

The winner, ridden by Frank D. Adams, paid $5.80 straight but $6.20 second and $2.20 third.

Helis Colt Scores

CAMDEN, N. J., Nov. 1 (AP)—Ennobled, current star of the barns of the estate of William G. Helis, romped home to a hollow victory by seven lengths in the featured Pine Valley Purse at Garden State Park this afternoon.

It was the third win in four outings at the current meeting for the Helis headliner and gave Joe Culmone, engaged in a tight duel for national riding honors with the West Coast's Willie Shoemaker, his first victory of the day.

AP Wirephoto Highlights Assassination Attempt

WASHINGTON, Nov. 1 (AP) — Three American presidents have been killed by assassins' bullets.

In addition to the fatal assaults on Presidents Lincoln, Garfield and McKinley, armed attacks were made on former President Theodore Roosevelt and on President-elect Franklin D. Roosevelt.

Abraham Lincoln was fatally wounded April 14, 1865, by Actor John Wilkes Booth as he watched a performance at Ford's Theater in Washington. Booth was tracked down and slain by soldiers.

James A. Garfield was wounded in Washington July 2, 1881, by a disappointed office seeker named Charles J. Guiteau. Garfield lingered until Sept. 19. Guiteau was hanged.

William McKinley was wounded in Buffalo, N. Y. Sept. 6, 1901 by Leon Czolgosz. McKinley died Sept. 14, and the demented Czolgosz was executed.

Theodore Roosevelt was shot by a maniac in Milwaukee, Wis. Oct. 14, 1912, while he was campaigning for a comeback to the presidency. His wound was only slight and he went on with a scheduled speech before going to a hospital for treatment an hour and a half later.

President-elect Franklin D. Roosevelt was the target of Anarchist Guiseppi Zangara at Miami, Fla. Feb. 15, 1933. The bullet struck Mayor Anton J. Cermak of Chicago instead because a woman siezed Zangara's arm as he fired. Cermak died March 6. Zangara was electrocuted.

SCENE OF ATTEMPTED ASSASSINATION—Dotted lines show the approximate paths of approach of two Puerto Rican revolutionaries who attempted to assassinate President Truman at Blair House yesterday. One gunman, Griselio Torresola, who was approaching from the west (1), was killed by police gunfire about 30 feet from the Blair House entrance. The wounded gunman, Oscar Collazzo, approached from the east (2).

WOUNDED GUARD MOVED FROM SHOOTING SCENE—Pvt. Leslie Coffelt, one of three White House guards wounded in a gun battle in front of Blair House, is moved from the shooting scene on an ambulance stretcher. He died several hours later.

BULLET STRIKES BLAIR HOUSE DOOR—A reporter, Joseph Short of the Baltimore Sun, examines a bullet imbedded in a basement door of Blair House, President Truman's residence, following yesterday's gun battle.

GUARD FELLED—Two men bend over a White House guard shot down yesterday in a gun battle in front of Blair House, President Truman's residence. Three guards were wounded, one fatally.

TELLS OF SHOOTING—Miss M. E. Hayes (foreground), Arlington, Va., tells co-workers her version of the Blair House gun battle. She was riding in a taxi caught in the firing. Miss Hayes said shots "seemed to be coming from all over."

Maurice's Store Opening Planned

KEYSER, W. Va.—Maurice's new store will open tomorrow at 10 a. m. at 73-75 North Main Street.

The store has a new modern front, with beautiful interior lighting fixtures, making it one of the most modern and best lighted stores in Mineral County.

The management will keep the store open Friday until 9 p. m.

A complete line of junior type department store merchandise will be carried, including wearing apparel for all members of the family, plus domestics.

The store also will have a complete shoe department and an extensive domestic and dry goods department.

This establishment is opening with about 18 employes of whom 90 per cent are from Keyser and vicinity, in charge of J. G. Pfaff, former manager of Murphy's Store in Keyser. Margaret Lepley is assistant manager.

Maurice's store was first established in Bedford, Pa., in 1923 and with the opening of this new store in Keyser, will have a chain of five stores.

The management cordially extends an invitation to everyone in Keyser and vicinity to attend the opening.

HOLLYWOOD

By LOUELLA PARSONS

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 1 (INS)—Angela Lansbury is flying 6,000 miles to get to Hollywood in time to play a heavy in "Kind Lady" — the type of role that first brought her to MGM. She has been in London for months with her husband, Peter Shaw, and had parted company with this studio at the time she went abroad. But the chance to play with Ethel Barrymore and Maurice Evans decided her to return.

She has to be here by the middle of the month to report to Armand Deutsch. She'll play a conspirator with Maurice's Evans in an attempt on Ethel Barrymore's life.

Maurice told me, "Isn't it awful that in my first picture I have to try to kill the actress I most admire —Ethel Barrymore."

"How young are you feeling today?" Mary Astor asked me over the telephone.

"What's the matter, are you going to be a grandmother?" I replied.

"You guessed it," she said, "Marilyn is going to have a baby in April, and she said, 'Call Louella right away'! She and her young husband, Frank Roh are so happy that it makes me happy just to see them."

Then we started reminiscing, and it seemed only yesterday that I had helped Jesse Lasky re-name Lucille Langhanke, Mary Astor. Well, if the baby is a daughter, and she looks like her grandmother, she'll be a beauty.

Chatter in Hollywood: When I met Humphrey Bogart at luncheon he was frankly worried over Harry Zaharias, the man who hid in the hills near their home in an attempt to talk to Lauren Bacall.

"I want him put in jail and kept there," said Bogey. "I don't think he should be allowed out. He was in the hills for three days with an axe, and when he talked with my butler he said, 'Well, I don't know of any better way to get publicity.'

"I am not going to have Betty frightened to death, and I am not going to run the chance of having anything happen to her or our baby."

The very excitable Mrs. Arch Oboler, who can floor a co-worker with a roundhouse as aptly as his writing can leave an audience stunned, has just completed the first motion picture about the atomic age.

Arch, who assumed the triple threat job of writing, directing and editing the film, went about it very quietly at his Malibu Hills ranch, with Susan Douglas (of "Lost Boundaries" fame) and William Phipps co-starring.

Oboler provided all the necessary cash to make the picture, which he says concerns the last five people on earth who survive a mythical atomic war waged by a not-so-mythical foreign enemy of the United States.

Snapshots of Hollywood collected at random:

Loretta Young and Tom Lewis are guests of George Gallup at Princeton. Well, maybe they can get him to tell them how he arrives at his poll results, some of which are good and some of which aren't worth five cents—merely a personal opinion.

Poor Anna Roosevelt, who has been so ill for so many months, was telephoned the news of the suicide

ELECT GEN. HARTLE to CONGRESS!

Our nation needs men of Major General Hartle's integrity, matured judgment and leadership, writes General Douglas MacArthur from far off Tokyo.

"Your candidacy is good news," says the Supreme Commander of the U. N. forces in the Far East. "Our country needs men of such sound balance, wide experience and proven integrity at this critical period in our existence."

From San Antonio, Texas, General Walter Krueger, another famed leader of World War II, writes: "We need men like you in war and peace and I wish you every success in the coming election."

By Shepard Barclay

"The Authority on Authorities"

NOT A GRANDSTAND PLAY

SOME bridge enthusiasts, who do not understand the mechanics of the so-called "Vienna coup," consider it a "grandstand play" which is not necessary at all to successful operation of a squeeze, but merely for the sake of showing off. They feel that, when the declarer deliberately scores the top card of some suit, establishing the next card for the defender who holds it, the big idea is to impress his opponents with his brilliancy. The top card play, however, is absolutely necessary to the operation of many such plays, as otherwise the declarer would black himself from one of his winning cards.

Both tables of a team match furnished that bidding, and in each case West led the spade 3, East scoring three rapid tricks in the suit and returning the club Q to the K. Both Souths then tried to execute a squeeze for the final trick, one of them succeeding and one failing.

The unsuccessful declarer followed the club K trick with a direct run of all his hearts. When he led the last, he also retained the diamond J-5 and club 8, with the dummy holding the diamond A-Q and club A-10. East had kept the diamond K-10 and club J-9. South on the final heart discarded the dummy's diamond Q and East the diamond 10. The diamond 5 to the A then felled the K, establishing the J for South. But he could not use it, as he had no re-entry. So he scored the club A and then had to give up the setting trick with the club 10 to the J.

The other South used foresight. He planned ahead the cards he wanted to have left in his own hand and the dummy. To produce that situation, he followed the club K trick with the diamond A, establishing East's K. Then he ran hearts. As he led the last, he also held the diamond J and club 8, and dummy the diamond Q and club A-10. East had to pare down to the diamond K and club J-9. When South then discarded the diamond Q on the last heart, East was helpless. If he shed his diamond K, the jack and the club 8 to the A would get the last two tricks. But his club 9 discard was just as bad, as it enabled the 8 to the A to fell his J and the 10 then took the final trick.

Yesterday's Answer

is L O N G F E L L O W

One letter simply stands for another. In this example A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophies, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

A Cryptogram Quotation

Initial Housing Project Plans Nearly Ready

Special Meeting To Be Called This Week

A special meeting to approve planning work for the first phase of the Cumberland housing project is expected this week, according to James B. Raines, executive director of the Housing Authority here.

Start of the project will be the construction of 17 apartment buildings on slightly over seven acres of land in South Cumberland.

Raines said all of the 11 options necessary for acquiring property have been secured.

The buildings will be two-story structures of brick and frame, each containing from six to eight apartments. They will be designed to house 125 families.

Shaw Visits Here

Shaw said he has reviewed the development program for the 125-family units and added it should be ready to send to Philadelphia within the next few days.

The Philadelphia office must review the plans and recommend them to the main PHA office in Washington. After a second review there, the plans will go to President Truman.

Altogether the local housing project is designed to furnish apartments for 300 families.

Second part of the project will be construction of apartments to house 25 families which will be located at a different site.

Survey and appraisal work already has begun for that project.

To Present Plans

William L. Wilson, Jr., chairman of the Cumberland Housing Authority, said Raines and Thomas B. Finan, attorney to the group, plan to go to Philadelphia to present the 125-unit program to the PHA field office in person.

Shaw said that architectural plans drawn by S. Russ Minter show that physical standards required by the PHA are being met.

He said rising costs are a problem in other housing projects but added he hopes to have "the complete financial picture here ironed out" before he leaves today for Philadelphia.

Raines said the development program for the South Cumberland project includes detailed data describing the site, floor plans, property acquisition and available transportation, shopping, recreational facilities and utilities.

Shaw said a combined community building and management headquarters could be constructed, or one of the apartments could be used as temporary headquarters for the manager.

A third possibility, he said, is to wait until the project is completed and build such a structure to serve the entire housing development.

Speaks From Experience

Next week is the second annual Allegany County Safety Week, and Virginia Walker (left), jumps at the opportunity to get in an advance safety warning. Virginia is reminding Ruth Shade that walking between two parked cars can be mighty dangerous. Virginia ought to know. As a 4-year-old girl she walked between two parked cars in a similar manner and was struck by a passing vehicle. Both Virginia and Ruth are sophomores at Allegany High School, where the picture was taken. Number 68, which Virginia carries, is the magic number for Allegany County Safety Week. Its meaning will be explained later.

McKeldin Terms Lane Tax-Happy

BALTIMORE, Nov. 1 (AP)—Theodore R. McKeldin tonight used words of Governor Lane's chief opponent in the Democratic primary election to emphasize his contention that Lane was tax-happy.

The Republican nominee for governor quoted George P. Mahoney as saying, "We have had at Annapolis one of the greatest spenders and taxers of all time. . ."

Then McKeldin launched into a criticism of the sales tax, an issue Mahoney used in his campaign and one McKeldin has stressed in his.

McKeldin told a radio audience "On Principle I am opposed to the sales tax as an unfair, unequal tax bearing most heavily on those least able to pay."

Then he gave his stand on what should be done:

11 Programs Scheduled For Safety Week

County-Wide Event To Start Sunday

Plans for the second annual Allegany County Safety Week, beginning Sunday, were virtually completed at a meeting last night at the Public Safety Building, according to Lynn Walker, president of the Western Maryland Safety Council.

Eleven special programs for clubs and other safety-minded groups were arranged at last night's session, Walker said.

Highlight of the week-long program, Walker emphasized, will be the dinner meeting at Ali Ghan Shrine Country Club at 6:45 p. m. Friday, November 10.

Toastmaster at that dinner meeting will be Neil Toey, safety chairman for Celanese Local 1874, Textile Workers Union of America. Other details concerning that program will be announced later.

First of the 11 additional safety programs will feature the meeting Saturday, November 4, of United Commercial Travelers at the IOOF Hall. Another meeting will be held next Monday when the Rotary Club of Frostburg convenes.

Safety will not even take a back seat for the election as two programs have been planned for that day, next Tuesday. One of these will be at the C. and A. Gas Company shop and the other will be the Exchange Club meeting at the Shrine Club.

Wednesday, November 8, safety programs will be staged for the Potomac Valley Lions Club at Cresaptown, the Lonaconing Rotary Club and the Optimist Club, meeting at Central YMCA.

Food Subsidy Is Unchanged

Federal monetary aid to the nation's school lunch program remains at the $82,500,000 mark, William P. Cooper, director of the Allegany county school lunch program, reported yesterday.

He said Congress declined to raise the subsidy to $100,000,000 due to Korean War expenditures.

Cooper recently appeared before Congressional committees as legislative chairman of the School Food Service Association, representing 2,000 school lunch employes in 48 states.

Cooper said Allegany county gets $48,000 for Maryland's $585,000 quota.

Food which was purchased locally cost 25 cents, cost of the meal to the student.

Labor costs for the state averaged 10 cents per meal.

Government surplus food, supplied free to the schools, is valued at about five cents per meal.

Cooper said Allegany county's labor cost is lower than in the state, due to the fact that an average of 10,000 meals are served each day in school lunch rooms.

Registration Is At 928,000 Mark In Free State

Democrats Make Numerical Gains

[By The Associated Press]

About 928,000 Marylanders are eligible to vote in Tuesday's general election — many thousands more than have been on the registration books for any other election in Free State history.

As usual, the Democrats have better than a 5 to 2 book majority over the Republicans.

The breakdown, with close approximations for Baltimore City and Worcester county, shows 653,993 Democrats, 255,570 Republicans, and 18,425 registered as independents or members of minor parties. This makes a total of 927,988 registrants.

Democrats Gain

It shows that the Democrats have made numerical gains since the 1946 state election, and the Republicans have lost almost 9,000 registrants. The totals then were Democrats, 600,058; Republicans, 264,976; others 17,741 for a grand total of 882,775.

There were only 863,951 registered for the 1948 presidential election, including 593,397 Democrats and 248,047 Republicans.

Baltimore, Prince George's and Montgomery counties — the three big metropolitan subdivisions — showed the biggest gains over the last four years.

Baltimore county had 83,131 registrants in 1946, dropped to 82,810 in 1948, and now has surged to 116,430 eligibles.

The comparative figures for Prince George's are 45,418; 43,959 and 54,776. For Montgomery they are 46,248; 51,952 and 56,675.

Staggers' Question Will Haunt, Foe Says

ELKINS, W. Va.—A question put to the voters of the Second Congressional District by Harley O. Staggers will come back to haunt him next Tuesday if the voters honestly think out the answer to that question, Melvin C. Snyder, Republican candidate for Congress, said in a radio address here last night.

Snyder said he was joining his opponent in asking the voters, as Staggers has done in all his campaign advertising, if they were doing all right under the Truman administration.

"Are you doing all right, Mr. and Mrs. Voter," Snyder asked, "when you get 50 cents' worth of services, groceries, and clothing for your hard earned dollar? Are you doing all right when the administration of Mr. Truman's socialist program makes you work three months out of every year to pay your taxes? Are you doing all right when that administration, which Staggers supports with all his might, wants to socialize farmers, industry, medicine, and everything American?"

"Are you doing all right with a government that has taken $90 billion for defense that was not ready last summer and is not ready now? If you are a veteran of World War II and are now waiting a call that will take you away from your family, your home, and your job, are you doing all right? If you've already been called to service, or have someone in your family who has been called to do a job that was supposed to be done five years ago, and which the Truman planners erased by appeasment, are you doing all right?

Student Nurses Plan Bake Sale

Navy Announces New Arrangement

A new policy of giving Naval Reservists at least 30 days between call and report for active duty was disclosed here last night by Lt. Cmdr. F. A. Lewis, unit instructor, Organized Naval Reserve, here.

Cmdr. Lewis last night released a lengthy statement from Vice Admiral J. W. Roper, U. S. Navy, chief of Naval Personnel, Department of the Navy, concerning the planned Naval Reserve recall and release program.

This statement stressed that the 30-day policy between call and report for active duty will be "implemented immediately." By next July, it is hoped to institute a program whereby reservists will receive at least four months notice of recall.

Admiral Roper stated that for the foreseeable future it will be necessary for the Navy to continue the recall of Reserve personnel, officer and enlisted. The principal factor determining the number of Reserve officers recalled will be the number of Reserve officers who choose to enlist.

The Navy operates its recalls on a priority basis, Organized Reserve personnel being called first and Volunteer Reserve personnel second. Personnel transferring to Organized Reserve after October 15 are not subject to priority recall.

Naval Reservists in the Cumberland area also were reminded that the controlling factor in calling Reserves to active duty will be their qualifications to fill Navy billets on the basis of their records. Present law which authorizes involuntary recall of Reserve personnel specifies that the maximum period of involuntary duty is limited to 21 months. The statement also noted that the Navy Department is not knowingly ordering Naval Reserve personnel to active duty involuntarily if they have four or more dependents.

All policies briefed in this statement are based upon present circumstances which require a build-up of the fleet and its supporting establishments to a new, presumably stabilized, level but does not envisage full mobilization. A change in the international situation would require that all Reserve personnel serve on active duty when and as required to man a wartime fleet and supporting shore establishment.

The Ladies Auxiliary of Henry Hart Post No. 1411, Veterans of Foreign Wars, has announced that it will donate 25 gift boxes for servicemen in connection with the National Red Cross program of "Christmas on the High Seas," according to Mrs. Lee Witherup, of the local Red Cross chapter.

Each box is valued at $2.50 each, Mrs. Witherup said, adding that the contributions of the VFW and the Navy Mothers' Club, which donated 25 boxes last week, make up 50 per cent of the quota which the local Red Cross chapter has been requested to give.

Any organization interested in supplying some boxes or an individual wishing to contribute may do so by contacting Mrs. Witherup (telephone 4181).

Savage River Dam Work Progresses

Installation of the huge gates to control the flow of water through the Savage River Dam will be made in the near future.

Contractors for the project are now placing the cast steel linings for the gate housings.

Since then, work in the tunnel has been progressing beyond a temporary bulkhead installed ahead of the gate chamber.
